GENERAL ELECTION: JUST 30 DAYS OF THIS NONSENSE LEFT

Minister out risks

GRANT Shapps and Penny Mordaunt are among ministers at risk of losing their seats.

And Labour could win its biggest majority in 23 years, new analysis suggests.

The Conservatives will potentially have their lowest number of MPs since 2001, research company More in Common found.

At the same time, the Liberal Democrats could more than double the number of MPs they won at the last election.

100-day plan call

THE next Government must develop a credible plan for sustainable economic growth in its first 100 days, a business group says.

The Confederation of British Industry has called for an immediate focus on the economy following the General Election on July 4.

Rain Newton-Smith, of the CBI, wants "brand Britain" revitalised and firms given "a clear flightpath for growth".

Broc on Biggles

RISHI "Biggles" Sunak says his favourite order from chicken chain Nando's includes a side order of broccoli.

The PM was questioned by a girls' team at Wantage Town FC.

Mr Sunak said his Nando's order was a half chicken, medium spiced, with chips and the veg, adding: "It's good broccoli."

The PM also likes to "mix it up" sometimes and get chicken thighs.

Kemi is off limits

KEMI Badenoch refused to comment about Liz Truss's appearance on the Lotus Eaters.

The website was set up by Carl Benjamin, who once joked about raping an MP.

The Tory minister told the BBC: "It is for her constituents to decide whether she has done a good job or not."

He confirmed yesterday he is also taking over from Richard Tice as the party's leader.

It will be the eighth time Garage has tried to become an MP.

He also said the Tories would be in opposition after the election but are "incapable" as they are "split down the middle on policy".

Suits fit for film measure

ACTOR Patrick J Adams would love to star in a Suits movie.

The legal drama – which ran from 2011 to 2019 – has enjoyed a resurgence on streaming platforms.

While there are already plans for a spin-off in the works, the 42-year-old confirmed creator Aaron Korsh is keen to bring the story to the big screen.

Patrick said: “It’s definitely something [Aaron] is interested in doing, trying to get the band back together.

“It’s gonna depend on a million things if that can happen, but it is possible.”

RICKY Gervais has revealed he hasn’t had a proper holiday for 30 years.

The star, 62, who played David Brent in The Office, said he is a workaholic and would hate to have a long break.

Asked in an online Q&A if he could take a week’s vacation and not think about work, he admitted: “No. I don’t think we’ve had a proper vacation – you know a week somewhere, walk and sit on a beach – for 30-odd years.

“I don’t think I’d do it now. I don’t think I’d like it. I can’t do one of those where you just sit around the pool for a week.

“I’d like a couple of days off. I like when I do a gig and have like 40 hours off. That’s nice.”

The After Life star added: “But I can’t do anything and not think of work.

“I’d like a doing-things holiday, a tennis or a winter holiday, but a week is even too long for that.

Corrie's set pic sorrow

CORRIE paid a touching tribute to Rob Burrow after he supported the soap's motor neurone disease storyline.

Bosses shared a snap on Instagram showing the late rugby league legend and his wife Lindsey on set with actors Peter Ash and Dan Brocklebank last year.

Rob had discussed the ITV show's heart-wrenching plot surrounding the disease.

Corrie chiefs wrote: "We are very sad to hear of the passing of Rob.

"He was an inspiration to so many throughout his battle with motor neurone disease."

Last year, Peter's character Paul Foreman was diagnosed with MND.

MEMORIES: Nugent

TV star Sally in tribute

BBC Breakfast presenter Sally Nugent has remembered Rob Burrow as "incredibly brave, frightened of nobody".

The programme followed him over the years and Nugent spent a lot of time with Rob and his family.

She said: "When he was a kid trying to play rugby, everyone said he was too small and he ignored them all.

"And that is what made him so, so powerful.

"He was incredibly brave, frightened of nobody, these huge big intimidating men, miles taller than him, he didn't care. He knew he could beat them."

AWARD CALL: Kevin

Pal Sin: He will live on forever

■ by JERRY LAWTON

KEVIN Sinfield last night said Rob Burrow would "live forever" - as calls grew for Kevin to be knighted.

Fighting back tears, Sinfield said his close pal's death will leave a "massive hole".

The pair raised millions together for charities in a bid to find a medical breakthrough.

Kevin, 43, won hearts when he carried his former Leeds Rhinos and Great Britain team-mate across the finish line at the Leeds Marathon.

Yesterday, Sinfield said: "I think we all lose special people but it's very, very rare you lose someone who's so special to so many different people."

"What's really important is Rob Burrow continues to live forever."

The pair got CBEs last year, and supporters are now calling for Kevin to have new recognition.

Bargain Hunt star Philip Serrell said: "So sad to hear about Rob Burrow... surely the time is right to knight Kevin Sinfield. Don't understand why it hasn't happened." A fan added: "Please put right."

'He was the best'

DAD-of-three Rob's widow Lindsey, an NHS physiotherapist, said: "He was simply the best."

She said in a statement: "We are all deeply saddened by the loss of our devoted husband and father."

"My priority is to make Rob proud, and to bring our three children up as Rob would want and ensure their happiness and well-being."

"He was simply the best. Our hero."

IT'S ROB BURROW.. OVER & OUT

■ by JERRY LAWTON

HEROIC Rob Burrow has left a heartbreaking final message, declaring: "Every day is precious. Don't waste a moment."

The rugby star, who died aged 41 on Sunday after battling motor neurone disease, recorded the touching words using a special voice machine.

He said: "I hope one day we find a cure and live in a world free of MND."

"By the time that you watch this I will no longer be here. I am just a lad from Yorkshire who got to live out his dream of playing Rugby League."

"As a father of three young children I would never want any family to have to go through what my family have since my diagnosis."

"I hope I have left a mark on the disease. I hope it shows to live in the moment. I hope you find inspiration from the whole story."

"My final message to you is whatever your personal battle be brave and face it. Every single day is precious. Don't waste a moment. In a world full of adversity we must still dare to dream."

"Rob Burrow, over and out."

The former Leeds Rhinos and Great Britain ace recorded the message for a 30-minute BBC documentary. It is understood his wife Lindsey was by his side as it was made.

The film was shot by BBC Breakfast and shown on BBC One last night and a longer version will be on BBC iPlayer.

King Kev a true great

WE aren't fans of the honours system.

It's woefully outdated and often seems to reward charlatans, lickspittles and donors instead of the really deserving.

But if it does continue to exist then surely they should be reserving the biggest gongs for heroes like Kevin Sinfield.

It's disgraceful that he hasn't got a knighthood yet when many have got it for nothing more than toadying cronyism in Government.

His tireless campaigning and fundraising with Rob Burrow is exactly the sort of inspirational effort we should be rewarding.

And after Rob's tragic passing, it would be a fitting way to mark their inspiring work.

There aren't many more deserving than him.

There isn't long to wait until the next set of King's birthday honours is released this month.

We've had a few false dawns but really nothing much to speak of.

And every time we're promised a spell of sustained good conditions, there's some cold, wet or windy weather around the corner.

Now forecasters are warning we might have to wait until the end of June to see a prolonged hot period.

For the love of all that is holy.

We know we're unlikely to get four or five months of blistering weather each year.

But the window is closing every week as we hurtle through this bleak year.

There's a boring election on.

All we want to do is head outside and forget about all the other grim stuff going on.

Stars of D-Day

■ RETURN: Richard Todd on the set of The Longest Day at Benouville in Normandy

BACK TO REALITY:

Actor Richard Todd, born in Ireland, is famous for starring in the war movie The Dam Busters as RAF hero Guy Gibson. But he also featured in 1962's The Longest Day, about D-Day, having served in the war himself as a paratrooper. Todd was dropped into Normandy behind enemy lines to help capture a vital bridge and was promoted to captain. He'd play the leader of the assault, Major John Howard, in the hit film.

TO BOLDLY GO: Canadian-born star James Doohan found fame after the war as engineer Scotty on TV sci-fi classic Star Trek. As a lieutenant, he stormed Juno Beach on D-Day shooting two snipers, then leading his men through a field of anti-tank mines, before taking six bullets himself and losing a finger. Another shot to his chest was stopped by a cigarette case.

SECRET ROLE: Pink Panther actor David Niven, left, who would also play a spoof James Bond in 1967's Casino Royale, took part in the Normandy landings. He served in the Phantom, a secret reconnaissance unit of Commandos who located enemy positions.

HI-DE-HI HITLER! Best remembered as jockey Fred Quilley in the hit 80s BBC sitcom Hi-De-Hi, British comic actor Felix Bowness served with the Royal Berkshire Regiment during the conflict. His landing craft was sunk on D-Day as it approached the beaches. He passed out in the commotion, eventually coming round in a French convent – and initially thinking he was dead.

PITCHING IN: Top American baseball star Yogi Berra served in the US Navy on the USS Bayfield. Sailing in close to the Utah landing beach, the New York Yankees catcher was part of a crew that helped fire machine guns and rockets at defending German forces, later describing the scene as like "the fourth of July."

WRITE STUFF: As a US infantry sergeant, author JD Salinger attacked Utah Beach amid a hail of bullets, in the second wave. He carried with him a draft of his book Catcher In The Rye, that would later find him fame. Salinger would go on to fight in the Battle Of The Bulge in the Ardennes too.

LONE SURVIVOR: American actor Charles Durning is a familiar face from movies like Tootsie, The Muppet Movie and O Brother Where Art Thou?. Before his screen career, the star served as an army ranger in the first wave to storm Omaha Beach on D-Day, aged 21. He was the only survivor of his unit and won the Purple Heart medal.

LINE OF DUTY: TV star Vicky McClure's grandad Ralph fought at D-Day, describing it as "hell let loose". He was a Royal Navy signalman on a landing craft carrying tanks and dodged bullets from snipers, while helplessly watching bombs land on his pal's ship. He says, humbly: "We were just doing a job."

Sunny delight is over after 'taste'

SUMMER will not start until the end of the month, the Met Office has warned.

Britain basked in temperatures of up to 24C at the weekend, raising hopes sunshine was here to stay.

But forecasters warned it was only "a taste" as wet, windy and cooler weather is on the way over the coming weeks.

Brits will have to wait until the last week of June - just before polling day - for a prolonged period of settled sun.

But when it arrives it should be a sizzler.

Long-range forecasts show the UK is on course to "exceed the average temperature" of 24C in the south of England, based on climate data for June, July and August from 1991 to 2020.

This would mean a sustained period of high-20s in the south and low-20s in the north where averages are lower.

Met Office forecaster Marco Petagna said: "For

"But there are signs that towards the end of June we could see something more settled.

"It's expected to be warmer than average."

A spokesperson said: "This warmth was especially influenced by high overnight temperatures."

Trump was found guilty of falsifying business records to cover up hush money paid to porn star Stormy Daniels. He is facing a possible four-year prison stint.

Bozo, 59, branded the ruling against his former president pal as "nakedly political" and "a machine-gun, mob-style hit job".

Trump, 77, posted his admiration, saying: "Thank you to Boris Johnson."

But social media users were not impressed by the love-in. One wrote:

Rise of the giant TITS

BRIT BIRDS GROW LONGER PECKERS

BRITAIN'S great tits are getting bigger – from gorging on gardeners' nuts.

Our birds are outgrowing their continental cousins due to their diet, say boffs.

The UK species have longer beaks because of bird feeders. The average Brit great tit has a 0.3mm longer pecker, Oxford University experts found.

Prof Robin May, of Gresham College, said: “The British put out more wild bird feed in their gardens than the rest of Europe put together – and Europe is a big place.

“This is driving evolution.

■ by NADEEM BADSHAH

In hundreds of years we may end up with two distinct populations in Britain and Europe.”

Brits spend twice as much on bird feeders as folk in mainland Europe.

Uni researchers have been measuring the beak sizes of great tits in Wytham Woods, Oxon, for 70 years.

German football race row

'CALL FOR MORE WHITE PLAYERS'

GERMAN football has been plunged into a race row days before Euro 2024 kicks off.

■ by JERRY LAWTON said it was "madness" by the public broadcaster.

The tournament hosts are reeling after a survey by a broadcaster found 21% of people want more white players in the national team.

In the poll, 17% thought it a "shame" that ex-Manchester City star Ilkay Gundogan, 33, is Germany's captain – due to his Turkish roots.

The poll threatened to cast a shadow over a major tournament being staged in Germany for the first time in 18 years.

Germany manager Julian Nagelsmann, 36, was stunned by the survey, which he blasted as "crap" and "racist". He Nagelsmann added: "I thought about it briefly and I have the feeling that we need to wake up a bit. There are people in Europe who've had to flee because of war, economic factors, environmental disasters, people who simply want to be taken in."

Bayern Munich star Joshua Kimmich, 29, inset, said: "Football unites people of different skin colours and religions and that's what it's all about."

TV chiefs said 65% either disagreed or strongly disagreed with wanting more white players in the team.

THE vast majority of Brits will watch Euro 2024 from the comfort of their sofas rather than in a pricey boozer.

A solid 66% said they would be staying at home, with just 26% watching games at the pub, a study found.

Meanwhile, although 84% of women are looking forward to the footie tournament, they are half as likely as men to be interested in watching the games at a boozer (18% vs 32% of men).

Shania revealed: "I sort of see Brad Pitt as a James Dean of his generation and I see Harry Styles as that as well, of his generation. "He's rugged but pretty. There's a charm that he has and he sings good, too."

Youngsters baffled by what goes into mysterious sauce

SALAD cream makers have drafted in AI to help baffled Gen Z munchers understand the condiment.

Befuddled young people have flooded social media in recent months asking what the sauce is made of.

Manufacturer Heinz has been monitoring the confusion and has used an AI aid to deliver a definitive answer to bozos who cannot grasp its concept.

Sauce bosses asked their bot: "WTF is salad cream?"

It replied: "Mate, it's that creamy tangy stuff your nan puts on sandwiches instead of mayo. It's like mayo's quirky cousin, a bit sweeter and tangier."

But some youngsters remain unconvinced.

One said: "Someone told me it's eggy and vinegary – sounds rank."

Thiago Rapp, of Heinz, said: "When we heard that there was confusion over our beloved salad cream, we had to step in and let everyone know exactly what it is, and just how versatile it is." The condiment was the first sauce Heinz developed exclusively for the UK, launching it in 1914.

US diners are also befuddled by it. Dozens of queries on Reddit ponder over what to pair it with.

One person replied: "It's used like mayonnaise. As a blob to go with salads or on a sarnie."

'HOMBRES' A HIT ON WEB

■ by AARON TINNEY

THREE motormouth lads are racing to become as popular as Top Gear with an online version of the show.

Josh Kerr, 24, and his fellow car-nut pals Jack Birtwistle, 25, and Elliott Barrott, 28, have branded themselves The Three Hombres.

They have racked up millions of views recreating the antics of Top Gear's "classic" line-up of Creepy Jeremy Clarkson, Richard Hammond and James May.

One clip shows the trio of self-proclaimed "absolute idiots" buying three bangers for less than £500 each and driving them from Manchester to Ibiza.

The lads copy the show's style by using walkie talkies in their motors – and putting each other through hell.

Josh said: "I think everyone loves a bit of Top Gear. That's definitely what inspired us to do something like this."

"We had a lot of people beeping us and we got recognised along the way."

Their challenges on the road have involved driving with a massive boxing glove and in searing heat without air con.

The trio's other japes on the Ibiza trek included searching for the Eiffel Tower without a satnav and navigating Andorra's gusty mountain roads at night in thick fog.

CRISPS: Reviews

Crunch time for tasters

ALDI bosses want to pay their first official crisp taster – with free crisps.

The budget supermarket is billing the gig as the “job of a lifetime” even though it doesn’t come with cash.

Wannabe tasters interested in what it reckons is a “spud-tacular” role must create an application video lasting no more than 60 seconds by June 16.

Applicants need to be 16 or over and the winner of the Willy Wonka-style contest will be sent a batch of Aldi’s most popular crisps to sample at home.

They will then review and rate the snacks on “taste, crunch, texture and appearance”.

Julie Ashfield, at Aldi UK, said: “It’s crucial we listen to their honest feedback so we can ensure our products continue to deliver on taste.”

She had been using a borrowed Peugeot to get around after her car was stolen in 2020.

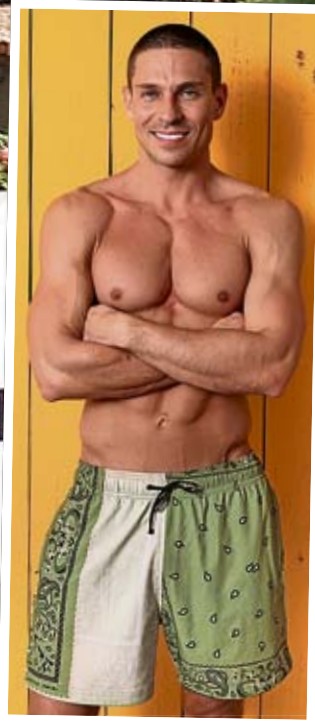

Kate shared a video of her packing up the new motor. She wrote: “I absolutely love it!”

But she added it was “bitter sweet as this would have been the perfect car to carry Derek in and out of with plenty of room for a hoist and wheelchair”.

'Fatty' myth puts women off ale

THE number of women drinking beer is falling with many put off by fears it will make them fat.

Just 14% of UK women sup ale or lager weekly, compared to 50% of men.

Seven in 10 women see the tippie as calorific and unhealthy - but a pint of 4% ABV beer has about 160 cals, compared to 158 in a 175ml glass of wine.

The Gender Pint Gap: Revisited report says the number of women beer drinkers has fallen by 3% in the last six years.

Annabel Smith of Dea Latis, which commissioned the poll, said: "The beer sector remains a traditionally male preserve in Britain." The study also found women were underrepresented in the beer industry.

A TEEN dealer tried to evade a strip search by telling police that the packets of drugs down his trousers were his testicles. The 16-year-old was later found to have Class A drugs in his pants as well as a four-inch knife attached to his waistband. Police video showed a vehicle being pulled over in Dogsthorpe, Cambs. Wads of cash were spotted in the centre console. As the PC explains why he has stopped the car, he asks: "What's that in there?" "My balls, man," the teen replies. "I don't think that is," the officer replies, "Your balls aren't hard and square." When the officer advised the youth that he would be strip searched, he knelt the PC in the groin. The boy was charged with possession with intent to supply, possession of a knife in a public place, possession of an offensive weapon, and assault of a 999 worker. Freddie Tarr, 10, joined a group of primary kids invited to test out the creation at a coaching session.

The lad from Bournemouth, whose arm was not fully developed at birth, said: "It was really fun, it's really hard but it was different with the golf arm."

He added it would be "really nice" to "spend more time" with his grandfather, an avid golfer.

The session took place at Woburn Golf Club in Milton Keynes, using the prototype limb engineered by prosthetics company Koalaa in collaboration with EDGA, formerly the European Disabled Golf Association.

Nate Macabuag, founder of Koalaa, said: "Together, we hope to inspire people with limb differences of all ages to pick up a club and hit the golf course."

House buyers go long

FIRST-time buyers took out mortgages stretching beyond 35 years in the first quarter of this year.

The trend of longer-term mortgages is "further evidence of the ongoing affordability crunch," as costs and house prices remain high relative to incomes, UK Finance said.

Some 21% of people taking their first step on the property ladder had home loans over 35 years.

But, those "borrowing at up to 40-year terms eased slightly," the group said.

Tolkien treasure at £40k

A RARE first edition of The Hobbit signed by JRR Tolkien as "Ronald" is expected to sell for £40,000.

The 1937 copy was a gift from the author to Margaret Wiseman, a Benedictine nun.

It was found in the library of St Mary's Abbey in Oulton, Staffs.

Simon Roberts, from auctioneers Bonhams, said: "Tolkien would normally sign with his initials, so it is pretty unusual for him to sign a book in any other way."

HAPPY HOLIDAYS: Sunshine break

Little acts of kindness can cheer us up..

by GEMMA FRANCIS

RANDOM acts of kindness from a stranger, getting a surprise gift and receiving a hug are among things that make us smile.

Other simple acts that make us feel happy include going on holiday, seeing a loved-one get good news and waking up on a sunny morning, says a survey.

To highlight the benefits of kindness, Bupa Dental Care commissioned the research as part of National Smile Month.

And 46% of those asked said having someone smile at them made them feel happy.

Bupa dental expert Caitlin Miller said: "The power of a smile is huge - especially when it comes from someone else and is unexpected. The impact can't be underestimated."

And 65% of adults said seeing someone smile improved their mood.

Psychologist Jo Hemmings said: "Smiling releases endorphins, dopamine and serotonin - hormones which improve our mood and our sense of well-being."

"It also reduces our stress hormone, making us feel less anxious."

MOZZIES THREAT TO BLACKBIRDS

BLACKBIRDS are being wiped out by virus-carrying mosquitoes in Britain. The public has been urged to help scientists probe the declining species. The British Trust for Ornithology (BTO) said the Usutu virus is spreading across the UK. BTO spokesman Jon Carter said: "For hundreds of years, this familiar bird has been celebrated by poets, painters and songwriters, but now the popular songster of town and country is in danger of becoming scarcer in many of its former haunts." He added: "Birdwatchers have reported fewer blackbirds in their gardens, especially in the Greater London area since 2020."

SUPER DOG HELPS B

Thomas

EXCLUSIVE
by KIM CARR

AS any dog owner knows, the love and companionship a pooch offers is unrivalled. There are over 6,000 Pets As Therapy dogs working across the UK, whose purpose it is to bring happiness. And one of those is Thomas, a 10-year-old Australian labradoodle, who is undoubtedly one of the most popular members of the Spread A Smile team. The charity supports seriously and terminally ill young people and their families during hospital stays by sending in their teams of entertainers. Regularly waddling along the wards of hospitals in London, Thomas, above, spreads a smile on the faces of everyone he meets.

Safe

Owner Olivia Leigh, who has the job title of Therapy Dog Mum, says: "Thomas is very proud of his job. "When I put his Spread A Smile bandana on he goes to sit at the door, ready to get to work. "Dog therapy should provide a happy distraction during hard times - Thomas' energy diffuses a lot of stress." Like a human going for a new job, Thomas had to undergo an interview three years ago, lasting two hours, with Pets As Therapy before he was cleared to work the wards. Olivia says: "Their gold standard is a good relationship with his owner, showing I can command him immediately. "There was a crying baby in the room and a lady dropped a saucepan lid, both were a test to see how Thomas would react - he was fine. "He's calm, patient and handsome. "There's so much trust involved when you're around kids that you have to 150% know your dog is safe." Spread A Smile was founded in 2013 by Josephine Segal and Vanessa Crocker, who both received MBE's in the King's honours this year for services to seriously and terminally ill children and their families. ## PUP'S BAG OF TRICKS

OLIVIA carries a bumbag filled with Thomas' essentials for doing the rounds.

She explains: "I pack a brush for patients to groom him, a bell, his ID – which allows him on the Tube – stickers of him and hand sanitiser, but I also encourage the children to wash their hands after feeding him a treat."

And when he gets home Thomas, left with the nurses, is still as popular. Olivia says: "For his ninth birthday we got him a puppy, a toy poodle called Minnie."

"She licks him all day long and they have a really sweet relationship."

"Hopefully when Minnie's older and ready she can also join in spreading smiles."

FIVE SERVICE AND THERAPY DOG FACTS:

1. A mere 10 minutes of playtime with a dog can lower stress hormone cortisol in our bodies.
2. Stroking a dog can help lower blood pressure and boost serotonin, reducing depression.
3. Diabetic-alert dogs identify 83% of low-blood sugar episodes.
4. A huge 850 new Guide Dogs are matched with visually impaired UK residents annually.
5. It takes nine to 12 months to train and certify a post-traumatic stress disorder assistance dog and up to two years for a disability assistance dog.

BIG HELP: A visit to St Mary's. Left, Olivia with Thomas was battling cancer she took a chance to boost his morale.

It was the positive impact of the visit that she promised him that when she was better, she would arrange for magicians and entertainers to visit him in a similar situation.

charity now has an entertainment team, including magicians and entertainers to visit, along with Thomas, help children frown upside down.

Former nurse Olivia says: "Spread A Smile are incredible and I couldn't be prouder to work for them."

"Josephine is such a wonderful, dynamic person – and she and I are such a team. Thomas has ridden on trolleys down to chemo and radiotherapy and took a step with a child who had lost a leg, by being next to the walking frame.

"He also helped a child who couldn't use their hand after a road traffic accident, when I put a treat in her hand and they did it together."

"I am so privileged."

Developing a taste for the cereal Rice Krispies when a patient dropped her bowl, Thomas now does high fives and will ring a bell for patients in exchange for a piece of the puffed sweet rice.

Olivia laughs: "He will do anything for one. Thomas also loves popcorn and a doctor keeps some for him."

"I make sure he sees a lot of staff as well."

Dogs are renowned for an almost psychic-like ability to know how to act around people.

Olivia says: "When we go into the room of someone that's not conscious Thomas knows to lie on their bed and I'll put the hands of the children on his head. He always sits on a disposable mat for hygiene and we work with the play specialists team who will tell me which patient needs stimulus, so I get permission before he jumps up."

"Thomas knows if someone does not have long left in their life and will stay by my side."

"I can click one finger only he can hear and have a whistle which he knows means, 'Come here.'"

"You've got to be able to read the room in delicate atmospheres and Thomas can do that."

MATCH STARS AIMING TO HIT TARGET

STARS are hoping to hit the £100million mark with this year’s Soccer Aid match.

The event raises cash for children’s charity UNICEF.

Over the past 18 years it has racked up more than £90m and it’s expected to secure another £10m this weekend.

Former England ace Jill Scott said: “UNICEF change so many lives with the money raised and hopefully this year we can surpass the £100m mark.”

Presenter and former player Alex Scott has been to Namibia to see the work the charity does and she was amazed.

She said: “I’ve seen what a difference making one single donation can make. It can be lifesaving.” Other celebs taking part include actor Danny Dyer, singer Robbie Williams and Line Of Duty’s Martin Compston.

Hazard means the World to new team

CELEBS EXCITED BY EDEN

CELEBS competing in this year’s Soccer Aid have been starstruck by Eden Hazard.

The former Chelsea and Real Madrid player is making his debut for this year’s match as part of the World squad.

And many of the players on his team have admitted they’re very excited to have him on board.

Presenter Roman Kemp said: “As an Arsenal fan, I used to dread us playing against Eden, so to call him a teammate is a bit of a relief if I’m honest, and something I’m very excited about.”

Comic Maisie Adam added: “Obviously he is one of the greats and I can’t believe he is on our team this year but Eden is a phenomenal name to play alongside.”

Athletics icon Usain Bolt said: “I am excited to see Eden play and hopefully help us to another win.” Even players from the rival England team are thrilled Hazard is playing.

Actor Bobby Brazier said: “To play against Eden is going to be absolutely incredible but I can’t say I am excited about it because one-on-one it’ll be a losing battle for me, every time.

“To potentially take the ball off of Eden Hazard is really exciting!”

The teams will play at Chelsea’s ground Stamford Bridge in west London on Sunday.

HotTV CHOICE With Mike Ward

Why wouldn't there be? Robson famously loves to fish. He's made several TV series where he's done little else. Give the fella a fishing rod and he simply couldn't be happier.

So it's perhaps a little surprising to learn that, on this occasion, he's initially a bit rubbish at it. He just can't seem to get the knack. Possibly because he's out of practice. Possibly because he's fishing on a stretch of water he's not familiar with.

There's a spot of fishing in the final part of INTO THE AMAZON WITH ROBSON GREEN (9pm, Channel 5). Of course there is.

Or possibly because he's trying to fish with a bow and arrow.

Yep, that's what his companion, local guide Saru, is teaching him to do – or attempting to teach him – on the final leg of Robson's Amazon adventure. Saru tells Robson he's been fishing this way since he was five years old, using this Robin Hood-style weaponry. And Robson doesn't reply: "Yeah, like heck you have, pal" because that might be considered rude.

Nor does he ask: "Why the blinking hell don't you just buy a rod? I mean, it's got to be easier, right?"

Adding to the challenge, the first thing Robson attempts to catch is not a fish he even recognises. That's because it's not a fish, full-stop. From a distance, it looks more like a pineapple. Close up, you discover why.

It's because it's a pineapple.

Earlier, on THE GREAT BRITISH SEWING BEE (8pm, BBC One), they're making blouses that look like old tablecloths.

That's because they're old tablecloths.

JUST JANE

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES
YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY
... AND EVERY DAY

Gay pal will pay to wed

I'M being lent on to take part in a sham, loveless marriage.

I feel like a rabbit trapped in headlights.

My gay friend is a wonderful person. Unfortunately his parents are demanding he get married to a woman.

He is secretly in love with his long-term boyfriend and is begging me to help him out. He says he'll pay me to be his bride as he needs to get his parents off his back.

All I have to do is stick around for five years, turn up at a few family events, then we can get divorced.

I'm broke after university but is money a good enough reason to go this far?

JANE SAYS: This is a total non-starter.

What if you fall in love and want to get married yourself?

You're talking about a business arrangement with a man and lying to a huge number of people.

I'm sure the idea of some cash is enticing but isn't it all rather cold and calculated?

You must do whatever you feel is right but I'd advise you to think long and hard about the complications and consequences.

I feel for the fella but ultimately the family problems are his not yours.

Joke's on me with callous prankster

BUTT OF FELLA'S 'JAPES'

MY boyfriend fancies himself as a joker.

He loves playing pranks (plastic spider in my bed, fake turd in the fridge etc).

He knows that I'm sensitive and highly strung yet gets a perverse kick out of driving me crazy and winding me up. I never know which cupboard he's going to jump out of next.

Recently, during a meal at a mate's house, he slipped red hot chillies into my portion of curry. I nearly hit the ceiling. He was on the floor laughing but it wasn't funny, and I felt sick for days.

At the moment I'm off sweets and cakes in an effort to get beach ready for the summer. I have a very sweet tooth and can't have treats in the house.

Yet he simply will not respect my wishes. If anything, he's eating even more bars of chocolate than usual, and right in front of me too. He's forever coming over and wafting cream cakes under my nose going: "Come on, you know you want it."

It's the same with booze and fast food. I'm determined to clean up my life, but he seems to want to fight and tempt me at every turn.

We don't live together but the other day he asked if he could move in to save money.

It seems a good idea on paper,

Picture posed by models

CRUEL: Her fella makes her the butt of all his jokes, but does he even love her?

but will he drive me nuts? Sometimes I wonder if he actually loves or respects me at all. He says he does then lets himself down by making me scream or cry. Why is he so cruel? Why am I the butt of all his jokes?

Who is he trying to impress and what is he hoping to achieve?

JANE SAYS: From what I understand, you are the main target of his "pranks".

From scaring you to almost setting your mouth on fire, he seems to find it funny to see you flinch. What kind of weirdo gets off on that?

Why are you making life so hard for yourself? Why are you with a man who seems to enjoy derailing you?

Sadly, he has no respect nor regard for you and does things he knows will upset you. He's a messed up clown.

To suggest he should move into your home is ridiculous in the extreme. Why would you want to share any space, with him? Who knows what he might come up with next.

Clearly, he doesn't have your best interests at heart and simply sees – and treats – you like a figure of fun.

What do your friends and family say about the way he treats you? I bet you'd struggle to find anyone who thinks he's a force for good.

The man doesn't care about your mental health or safety either, so you have to start putting yourself first by chucking him out of your life.

Tell him today that he's blown his last raspberry because you're off. Finally accept he's a show-off and a loser and save the beach ready new you for your true friends this summer.

Vow to have a great time away from the twisted schemes and "jokes" of a pain in the backside...

I'm not ready for tot

MY in-laws are obsessed with becoming grandparents.

I'm convinced that they don't believe that I'm good enough for their son because I've just taken another promotion at work and refuse to knuckle down and do as they say.

They often say derogatory things about my job, my family and my habits. More than once, my delightful mother-in-law has muttered: "You've had your fun, now settle down."

My husband says I should learn to ignore them – he does – but it's hard for me when I'm hypersensitive.

How do I get them to mind their own business?

JANE SAYS: It's your life and it's up to you how you live it.

If you're not ready to have children yet – or ever for that matter – then your in-laws need to leave you alone.

Can you call a family meeting to clear the air?

Speak to your family and friends about your feelings and see your GP if you're depressed.

Remind your husband he should be supporting you.

Your in-laws are intrusive and frequently cross a line.

Ex's admission has floored me

I'VE discovered that my ex-husband cheated on me throughout the whole of our marriage. Apparently, he had sex with my bridesmaid during our wedding and they continued meeting up years into our marriage.

I only know this now, because he's moving abroad and has decided to get everything off his chest. How can I ever move on from this massive betrayal?

JANE SAYS You've got the rest of your life ahead of you. Do you carry on feeling angry – or do you force yourself to let it go and get your "revenge" by living each new day to the full?

You can never know what was going through your ex-husband's mind, so focus on the good.

12 PAGES OF FANTASTIC STARSPORT START WITH TENNIS

SPRAWL OVER

NOVAK DJOKOVIC got up off the floor to stage his second unbelievable comeback at the French Open in less than 42 hours.

The world No.1 only finished his five-set victory over Lorenzo Musetti at 3.08am on Sunday morning.

And back on Court Philippe-Chatrier at 4pm yesterday, the Serbian superstar appeared to be limping to a shock defeat against No.23 seed Francisco Cerundolo when he needed treatment for a right knee injury in the second set.

Furious Djokovic blamed the clay court and told supervisor Wayne McKewen: "I screwed up my knee because I made a quick move. I'm sliding and slipping all the time."

He pulled up in agony chasing a drop shot in the fourth set and the defending champion seemed set for his earliest exit here since 2009.

The Argentinian led by two sets to one and then 4-2 in the fourth – and

Novak slips and slides to an epic victory

■ from NEIL McLEMAN in Paris

had a break point to serve for the match at 5-5.

But after being only five points from defeat, the Serb somehow shook off his latest injury to win 6-1 5-7 3-6 7-5 6-3 in four hours and 39 minutes.

In a dramatic encounter, Djokovic fell behind the baseline at the start of the fifth set – and then later pretended to fly on the clay after doing the splits to make a ridiculous diving volley to wild applause.

After raising his arms in triumph just before 9pm local time, Djokovic told the Centre Court crowd: "I need to say a big thank you because like in my last match, this victory is yours."

"Three or four times I was points away from losing this match. I don't know how I found a way to win this match. The only explanation is you."

It was Djokovic's 370th win in Grand Slam matches to reach his 59th Grand Slam quarter-final. He is just three wins away from a record of 25 Grand Slam singles titles.

Alex de Minaur became the first Aussie man to reach the quarter-finals here since his mentor Lleyton Hewitt in 2004.

Mirra all the rage

RUSSIAN teenager Mirra Andreeva silenced the boos to become the youngest woman to reach the French Open quarter-finals since 2005.

The world No.38 won 7-5 6-2 against Moscow-born Varvara Gracheva – the last French player left in the singles.

Gracheva enjoyed vocal support and Andreeva, 17, (right) said: "In the beginning it bothered me, but I just kind of adjusted it for my advantage."

Andreeva will now face Aryna Sabalenka after the Australian Open champion won her 11th consecutive Grand Slam match without dropping a set. She beat Emma Navarro 6-2 6-3.

GOTTA SPLIT: Djokovic is flat out as he battles his way past Cerundolo

TOM CURRY is back in the England squad and set to tour Japan and New Zealand.

The Sale flanker had hip surgery in January but came off the bench during Saturday's 31-23 defeat to Bath.

England coach Steve Borthwick has named a 33-man training group who meet in Bagshot today for a four-day training camp.

ESTEBAN OCON has confirmed he will be leaving Alpine at the end of the season – a week after his boss threatened “consequences” over a crash involving his team-mate.

The Frenchman, who will end a five-year spell with the team, slammed into Pierre Gasly during the Monaco GP and team principal Bruno Famin was left furious.

Biles top of the pile

GYMNASTICS

SIMONE BILES secured her ninth US Championship title ahead of the Olympic Games next month.

The 27-year-old finished six points ahead of second-placed Skye Blakely, 19, with a score of 119.750 as she looks to win her fifth gold medal in Paris.

Biles had the highest two-day score on all four events and only faltered on the vault.

ISLAM BLAM

ISLAM MAKHACHEV has laid waste to the lightweight division as part of his 14-fight winning streak – and has now put Leon Edwards on notice.

The Russian made the third defence of his 155lb title against Dustin Poirier at UFC 302 in New Jersey, finally grinding down a durable ‘Diamond’ and polishing him off with a D’Arce choke midway through round five.

Makhachev, having also claimed notable wins over Alexander Volkanovski (twice), Charles Oliveira and Arman Tsarukyan at lightweight, is now looking to conquer new land at welterweight.

That could put him on a collision course with Birmingham’s Edwards (inset), who will be out to defend the 170lb crown against Belal Muhammad in Manchester next month.

When asked what his next challenge is, Makhachev said: “Of course, second belt. I don’t see any jobs in my division

(at the moment) – I beat all of them. For me, it doesn’t make sense.

“I want a new challenge, a new belt. What the welterweight belt does, it is the thing that will make me wake up early in the morning and train every day. This is my dream.”

“But it is not enough, I can do more. I will defend my belt. I will defend my belt for many, many years. I don’t focus on records, or trying to beat some records. I just want to defend my belt against some real contenders.”

While the history books are not a major concern for the 32-year-old, he now stands just two victories from Anderson Silva’s all-time UFC record of 16 straight wins.

However, getting his hand raised against Poirier for victory No.14 was no mean feat before the Louisiana fan favourite finally succumbed after a bloody battle in Newark.

Makhachev added: “I knew Dustin was a dog and that he would fight for five rounds. If you want to stop him, you have to turn off the light – knock him out or choke him – otherwise he will fight for five rounds.”

“He is one of the best in the world and has a crazy amount of experience in this sport.

“But I showed the people that I am always ready. Five rounds, one round. However many rounds it is going to be, I will be ready.”

Makhachev’s corner was once again led by Khabib Nurmagomedov, a former lightweight champion himself who retired undefeated at 29-0 in 2020.

And the current division king heaped praise on those around him, saying: “Without Khabib, and all my training partners, it is not possible. I want to say a thank you to all my team.”

“That’s why I am the best in the world, because they push me every day, give me a hard time in training every day.”

MacIntyre said: “It’s been a dream of mine to win on the PGA Tour. I just can’t believe I done it with my dad on the bag. The guy’s taught me the way I play.”

Dougie said: “I am a grasscutter not a caddie. It is unbelievable. I got phoned at 8 o’clock last Saturday night. At 8 o’clock next morning I was on a flight out here. Wow!” With caddie’s traditionally getting 10 per cent of the winnings, Bob said: “My mum and dad will be mortgage free now.”

CRICKET: T20 WORLD CUP

CURRIE 'N RISE

Scots ace aiming to have last laugh on joker Jof

ENGLAND should never lose to Scotland at cricket – but it happened the last time they met.

If Jos Buttler's Twenty20 World Cup holders come unstuck in Barbados today, it would be the biggest shock in bilateral sporting combat between two proud nations since Englishman Scott Rider won tossing the caber at the Highland Games four times in six years.

The bookies have called it as a mismatch between peashooters and mortar fire, with Buttler's men 1/20 to open their defence of the crown convincingly.

But 13 months before Eoin Morgan's side became world champions over the 50-over course in 2019, Scotland edged a high-scoring game at The Grange in Edinburgh by six runs.

Fired by Calum MacLeod's 140 not out off just 94 balls, they answered coach Grant Bradburn's call to go "hunting history" despite Jonny Bairstow's violent 54-ball century in reply.

England's big guns should have too much firepower this time, but Sussex left-arm swing bowler Brad Currie became a worldwide YouTube hit for a sensational catch last year which attracted more than 30m views on social media.

Currie's astonishing mid-air grab against Hampshire was headlined the "greatest catch of all time" and England Test captain Ben Stokes acclaimed it as "filth".

Born and raised in Dorset, Currie – whose father is Scottish – admits he's "shamefully" never worn a kilt and is teased by county team-mate and England warhead Jofra Archer.

They will be in rival camps today but Currie told ESPNcricinfo: "We pass each other in the nets sometimes at Sussex. He's like, 'Hey Scotland, I'm coming after you' and a few shots have been fired. I've seen him milling around the pool at the hotel and I'm sure we'll have a nice warm embrace on Tuesday, but as soon as that first ball goes down, it's gone from team-mates to enemies for a couple of hours."

SCOTS BIG CATCH: Currie and (inset above) that famous YouTube video

■ by MIKE WALTERS

Currie has an outstanding T20 international record – 19 wickets at 10.15, with an economy rate below five – and admitted England's batting arsenal is "daunting".

But he warned: "I see it as an absolute free hit. We've got nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Spinner Mark Watt warned the Scots were up for "taking a few scalps along the way and putting some headlines out there". He added:

"We've been there and done that, so what happened that day gives us the belief we can do it again. All the guys are raring to go."

As for MacLeod, now retired, the glory of six years ago lives on.

He said: "It was a magic moment to have been part of it and I'm absolutely desperate to see another now."

"All the boys in the team know that beating England is not just an idea. They were No.1 in the world and we managed to beat them."

"We definitely have match-winners in there, people who are capable of changing games. I just hope somebody else can do what I did and have that big moment."

SCOTLAND: Munsey, Tear, McMullen, Berrington (c), Cross, Leask, Greaves, Watt, Sole, Wheal, Currie.

UMPIRES: Nitin Menon, Asif Yaqoob.

TV: 3.30pm, Sky Sports.

WARNING: Buttler wants 100%

From Back Page Scots sprang a massive upset at their last one-day meeting in 2018.

Buttler said: "We expect a tough challenge and we're all excited for that. They've come here to try and win."

"Every game we have to be right on it. All we are focused on is that Scotland match and that is the biggest and most important thing right now."

Five years on from his England debut, Barbados-born paceman Jofra Archer is expected to play on his home island.

Buttler said: "He's a real cool, calm, collected guy but I'm sure there's some emotion around that as well."

"I'm sure he'll have a lot of close friends and family here watching and he'll be desperate to perform well."

"We just need to allow him to be for a bit and not expect too much."

The ICC has announced a record prize pot of £8.8m for the tournament, with the winners due to collect £1.92m and the runners-up £1m.

After performing with the bat,

■ by DARREN WELLS Wiese took the ball and sealed the game for Namibia as he grabbed a wicket while conceding just 10 runs.

Oman had a nightmare start to their regulation innings, losing two wickets in the first two balls from Ruben Trumpelmann at Kensington Oval in Barbados.

Namibia had looked on course for an easy chase at 73-3 after 14 overs, but a collapse set up the exciting super over.

Oman will face Australia in their next match while Namibia tackle Scotland.

Quinton de Kock helped South Africa open their campaign with a convincing six-wicket victory over Sri Lanka at the Nassau County International Stadium in New York. De Kock top scored with 20 runs as Rob Walter's side reached their target of 78 in under 17 overs.

David Miller capped a solid batting performance with a boundary to carry them over the line with 22 balls remaining.

South Africa paceman Anrich Nortje took a T20 career best 4-7 in Sri Lanka's 77 all out.

Holland will be up next for South Africa while Sri Lanka take on Bangladesh.

RL LEGEND ROB BURROW LEAVES HUGE LEGACY

CHEEKY B***GER I KNEW SO WELL

by Wolves boss SAM BURGESS

GAME FOR A LAUGH: Burrow preparing for World Cup in Australia by tackling 'kangaroos' in Leeds

SAM BURGESS paid tribute to Rob Burrow by hailing the rugby league great's "heart of a thousand lions".

Leeds Rhinos legend Burrow died aged just 41 on Sunday after a four-and-a-half-year battle with motor neurone disease.

Warrington boss Burgess (inset), speaking ahead of Saturday's Challenge Cup final with Wigan at Wembley, played alongside the brilliant scrum-half for England and Great Britain.

The Wolves head coach also faced Burrow numerous times in Super League, while Burgess' own father Mark died from MND in 2007.

Burgess, 35, said: "I'd obviously known Rob for a long time. It is a horrible disease.

"It's a really sad day. It's tragic news but we all knew it was coming at some stage - it's the reality of MND.

"And he's left such a remarkable legacy in the MND community and sport in general, not just in England but across the globe.

"For that, many people will be forever in debt to him. That legacy will no doubt continue to grow.

"He had the heart of a lion on the field and a heart of a thousand lions off it. I'm proud to call him a friend and wish all his family and friends the best."

Burrow was scrum-half when Burgess made his Great Britain debut in 2007, announcing himself on the biggest stage with a famous hit on New Zealand's Fuifui Moimoi.

And the pair were also in tandem when Burgess first appeared for England against France the following year plus Burgess' only previous Wembley appearance - a last-minute 2013 World Cup semi-final loss to New Zealand.

He said: "I also made my Super League debut for Bradford Bulls against Rob. He kicked the winning goal for Leeds to win 26-24 at Headingley. I didn't bring that up much!"

Asked what Burrow was like, he said: "A cheeky little bugger. He was great fun to be around, a great character and great competitor.

"He defied the laws of physics on the field - half everyone else's size and weight but still caused everyone problems.

"To be able to do that you have to have a level of cheekiness and personality. That was Rob."

Burgess won the Challenge Cup twice with Leeds in 2014 and 2015. There will be a minute's silence on Saturday ahead of the men's and women's finals.

Fans will also be asked to applaud in the seventh minute.

Burgess said: "Everyone will try and represent Rob in a great fashion, not just us. Let's get a sold-out crowd, get it full and make it a special occasion for such a special bloke."

Wakefield chief Daryl Powell gave Burrow his full Leeds debut in 2001 and said: "I remember seeing him as a scholarship player and thinking, 'This kid's a bit small'. Then I saw him training and realised what a phenomenal prospect he was."

Powell, whose side face Sheffield in Saturday's 1895 Cup final at Wembley, added: "Once Rob got that iconic No.7 shirt, he never looked back."

HUGHES FITNESS RACE

BRITAIN'S fastest man Zharnel Hughes has suffered an Olympics injury scare after pulling out of this weekend's European Championship.

Hughes, among the favourites to win the 100m in Rome, hurt a hamstring racing in Jamaica on Saturday.

And last year's World bronze medallist has less than four weeks to be fighting fit for the British Olympic trials, which are being held in Manchester on June 28-29.

Matthew Hudson-Smith, who last week broke his own 400m

European record, has also withdrawn but is not injured, while Imani-Lara Lansiquot (100m) and Nethaneel Mitchell-Blake (200m) will be absent too.

Keely Hodgkinson and Katarina Johnson-Thompson are among the gold medal hopes. Meanwhile, the athletics calendar is set to receive a major shake up from 2026 with a new biennial competition featuring a prize fund worth a record £7.9m.

The Ultimate Championship will be held in Budapest from September 11-13 in 2026 and will see eight to 16 of the highest-ranked athletes per event go for a winning prize of £118,000.

Peet's poser

MATT PEET has remained coy about whether Wigan will fight the bans which have ruled out two of his main players for the Challenge Cup final.

Aussie centre Adam Keighran and England prop Tyler Dupree have both been hit with three-game suspensions following incidents in Saturday's win over Warrington, who they face again at Wembley this weekend.

Super League champions Wigan have until midday today to decide whether they will appeal or not.

Asked whether they will, boss Peet said: "I'm not exactly sure yet. I'm not sure. I'm going to get asked that a lot but I'll hold stock on that and speak to a few people. We've got until tomorrow morning.

■ by DAVE CRAVEN

"I wouldn't say we expected it but I was aware of the risks in picking the team we did. It's a week-to-week thing - you still know it could happen just because it's the Challenge Cup final.

"We're in decent shape and there's going to be a bit to contend with this week but it's the story of the game. There's always been things going on in the background and it's important it doesn't take up too much of our energy."

THE men vying to be the next Prime Minister have led the emotional and deserving tributes to Rob Burrow.

The incumbent of No.10, Rishi Sunak, and main challenger, Keir Starmer, have spoken of the "incredible legacy" Burrow has left behind after his heartbreaking death from motor neurone disease at the age of just 41.

It's true, too.

Once in a while someone rises from the wreckage of life to provide us with an inspirational reminder of what a sobering virtue perspective can be.

And right now, it's safe to assume the humble but heroic family and friends of Burrow won't give a hoot who wins the General Election next month.

Because neither Sunak nor Starmer will be able to soothe or heal the pain from the loss these people will have to go through in the coming months or years.

Yet Burrow's legacy will at least provide some help and comfort as time moves on. And it's a legacy whoever gets voted into Downing Street can take on to unprecedented levels.

The immediate impact of his tireless fundraising and improving awareness of MND could be seen in Leeds yesterday.

With tragic irony, Burrow didn't live long enough to see the first spades go into the ground to mark the start of the building of the specialist MND facility that will be named after him.

The groundbreaking 'Rob Burrow Centre for MND' at Seacroft Hospital will help those suffering from the cruellest of conditions.

It will also help those poor people who haven't even been born yet, who will also become

The centre wouldn't be rising from the ground at all if it wasn't for Burrow - or his pal Kevin Sinfield.

These two had the kind of enduring relationship there is nowhere near enough of.

Sinfield, who has pushed the boundaries to super human extremes in raising millions for MND, speaks about his friendship with Burrow in his superb autobiography, 'The Extra Mile'.

MACINTYRE ENJOYS THE CADDIE OF ALL VICTORIES

ON A similar theme, what an uplifting narrative golfer Bob MacIntyre has just provided in winning the Canadian Open.

The European Ryder Cup star held off a host of challengers, including Rory McIlroy no less, to win his first PGA Tour title.

And he did so with his father guest caddying for him. Dougie MacIntyre is head greenkeeper at Glencruitten Golf Club in Oban.

He's also the bloke who taught his son to play the game and have the determination and focus to make it to the top.

"I was going down the last and my dad's trying to tell me to stay focused and swing smooth, but in my head I wasn't listening to him," said the likeable MacIntyre.

"This is just everything for me, my family, my girlfriend, my team."

MacIntyre won £1.3m, the biggest financial prize claimed by a Scottish golfer at a single event.

It also just happens to be Father's Day on June 16 and as MacIntyre said after his victory about his father: "He'll do nicely out of it."

Equally, the memories he will be able to now share with his dad will feel priceless.

Italian in it for long haul and out to restore Blues' pride

BRIDGE THE GAP: Enzo Maresca and (below) revealing his arrival on social media

ENZO MARESCA has promised to deliver success and "make the fans proud" after finally being confirmed as Chelsea boss.

Maresca has signed a five-year contract and the club has an option of a further year, underlining just how much faith they are putting in the former Leicester manager.

The Foxes pre-empted the Blues' announcement by putting out a club statement voicing their "disappointment".

It said: "Given the promising foundations established during his season in charge, the Club is disappointed that Enzo has decided at this stage that he no longer wants to be part of our vision."

Former Juventus midfielder Maresca, 44, said it was a "dream" to take over but the reality is that he will be expected to quickly deliver silverware and a return to the Champions League.

Chelsea agreed an £8m package with Leicester for Maresca, who previously worked for Manchester City's academy.

Maresca said: "To join Chelsea, one of the biggest clubs in the world, is a dream for any coach. It is why I am so excited."

"I look forward to working with a very talented group of players and staff to develop a team that continues the club's tradition of success and makes our fans proud."

The West London club put out a joint statement from Laurence Stewart and Paul Winstanley, co-sporting directors, who said: "Enzo has proven himself to be an excellent coach capable of delivering impressive results with an exciting and identifiable style."

"He deeply impressed us in our discussions leading up to his appointment."

"His ambitions and work ethic align with those of the club."

Maresca beat Kieran McKenna and Thomas Frank to the job and is regarded as someone from the Pep Guardiola coaching model.

Chelsea also wanted Maresca because of his ability to work and develop young players at Stamford Bridge, including Cole Palmer and Romeo Lavia (inset).

The Blues do expect another busy summer of ins and outs but Maresca will work within the club structure while having a say on transfers.

Leicester are now looking for a new boss while Maresca's coaching team will come with him and include Willy Caballero, Danny Walker, Michele De Bernardin, Marcos Alvarez, Javi Molina and Roberto Vitiello.

SIZING IT UP: Mourinho

Comfort not key for Jose

■ by SIMON CASS

JOSE MOURINHO has admitted he is outside his comfort zone after taking over at Turkish side Fenerbahce.

And the former Chelsea, Manchester United and Tottenham boss warned his trophy-laden history was no guarantee of success in his latest managerial venture.

Asked what hope he could offer fans, Mourinho said: "Zero promises but a huge commitment and passion and empathy in relation to them."

"No promises but obviously the main target, the main dream, is to win the Turkish Super Lig."

"When people look at me they think I did six finals, I won five of them. People think immediately big but I think we have to go step by step."

"Ambition is to play to win, to feel the pressure you have to win every match to be champion. This is the reality of Fenerbahce."

"It means I'm not in my comfort zone. The project had an impact on me. Now it's my time to have an impact on the project."

Last season Fenerbahce finished second, three points behind Galatasaray.

He re-signed on loan in January and rediscovered his best form to help Dortmund reach the Champions League final before losing to Real Madrid.

Sancho will now be forced to return but is hoping the clubs can agree a deal in the coming weeks.

He said: "I want to congratulate Real but we should be super proud of ourselves. We are a family and these moments won't break us."

"I want to thank everyone involved at such an amazing club."

"I can't thank you enough for welcoming me back the way you all have. Thank you to

Pass master Trent worth central role

KOP ACE CAN PROVIDE SPARK

IT is almost six years to the day since Trent Alexander-Arnold made his England debut, being handed his first Three Lions jersey by Prince William the day before a friendly against Costa Rica at Elland Road.

■ by ANDY DUNN

Since then, on the international stage, it has been far from regal progress for one of the most talented players of his generation.

At club level, he has swept all before him, collecting winners' medals in the Champions League, the Premier League, the FA Cup, the EFL Cup, the FIFA Club World Cup and the UEFA Super Cup.

The extent of his influence on the Liverpool team of Jurgen Klopp's era cannot be overstated.

But four months shy of his 26th birthday, Alexander-Arnold has only 24 England caps.

He has appeared in only two tournament games, both of which were group-stage fixtures taking place after qualification for the knockout stages had been confirmed.

Circumstances have partly conspired against him, an injury keeping him out of the Euro finals in the summer of 2021, for example.

And when he was seen exclusively as a right-back, Gareth Southgate clearly shared the widespread concerns about the Liverpool man's defensive reliability.

But, belatedly, this is Trent 2.0. This is Trent, the midfield option.

And he just about showed enough in this numbingly dull contest to suggest he actually is an option for a starting place in a midfield that will be anchored by Declan Rice.

Unsurprisingly, it was his range of passing that caught the eye.

There is, of course, always a caveat when analysing this sort of match.

It is a friendly against limited opposition, played with only a fraction of the intensity that will characterise every match at Euro 2024.

And Alexander-Arnold was afforded the sort of breathing space that will be scarce in Germany.

Nonetheless, the range of his distribution was occasionally impressive, from the raking invitation for Eberechi Eze to the incisive, short ball to Cole Palmer (inset) that prompted one of England's better first-half attacks.

But in truth, it was all a bit pedestrian and Alexander-Arnold was far from faultless.

And it would have been more encouraging to see him make his own occasional forays forward rather than staying in a quarter-backing role as he did in the first half.

For the first 15 minutes of the second half, he was more advanced – and a little more effective.

He was certainly not over-adventurous but you would guess Southgate is not a great fan of over-adventure.

And he certainly did not look overly impressed to be shifted out to the right when Southgate made a raft of changes after Palmer's penalty put England ahead.

But he really should be an option for Southgate when the coach finalises his midfield combination.

Alexander-Arnold will continue to divide opinion like few others do but one thing is for sure, he is too good to be a bit-part player.

And the late showreel volley that gave him his third England goal proved exactly that.

SIGNING OFF IN STYLE: Trent gets a hug from Kane and (below) signals to the England fans

TOMMY GUNNING FOR SCOTS CALL-UP

STEVE CLARKE is considering sending out a striker SOS for young gun Tommy Conway.

The Bristol City hitman was on target for Scotland Under-21s in Turkey last night while the senior side struggled to break down Gibraltar.

Clarke's men eventually saw off the minnows 2-0 but it took 58 minutes for Ryan Christie to make the breakthrough and Che Adams (left) smashed in a second late on. The Scotland boss is still weighing up his attacking options after losing Lyndon Dykes for the Euros.

Conway has shot to the top of Clarke's list after finding the net in a 2-1 defeat for Scot Gemmill's kids.

He said: "It was nice that Tommy scored. He is a good boy, Tommy, and he is certainly in my mind.

"Can we replace Lyndon like for like? No. They dealt very very well with high balls into the box so we just need to find a little bit more craft from certain players on the pitch to unpick that type of defence.

"I told the lads if we want to keep improving as a team, when you create that number of chances in the first half – and good chances – you have to score them."

Clarke admitted he suffered a major scare when Leeds defender Liam Cooper limped off but added: "It looks like a knee on knee collision, sore for a couple of days. Fingers crossed it should be fine.

"Of course I was worried. You get some who try to pull the wool over the referee's eyes but Liam doesn't stay down very often."

ON THE RUNWAY

JEREMY CROSS gives his verdict of who will make the final cut for Germany

FORMATION: 4-2-3-1

Jordan PICKFORD

Had little to do from start to finish. But then again, his place on the plane is secure.

Ezri KONSA

Grew in confidence but faces an anxious wait to find out if he's made it. Touch and go.

Lewis DUNK

Not the most challenging of nights for the Brighton defender. Not up to the level required.

Marc GUEHI

Is maturing into a defender capable of coping at the top level, although difficult to judge him on this game.

Kieran TRIPPIER

Showed the versatility and experience at left-back that guarantees his place in the squad.

Trent ALEXANDER-ARNOLD

Coasted through most of the game in central midfield and scored a stunning goal. Has to go.

Conor GALLAGHER

Huffed and puffed but failed to blow anything down. Great work-rate will have impressed.

Jarrold BOWEN

Grew in confidence and proved a real threat in the second half. Should make the cut.

Cole PALMER

Became more influential as the game went on and scored the opening goal. Surely on the plane.

Eberechi EZE

Showed some dazzling skills at times. But is competing in a position packed with talent.

Ollie WATKINS

Fluffed the few chances that came his way. Like a few others, faces a nervous wait this week.

SUBS

- J GREALISH (for Eze, 61) - Set up the second goal. ✓
- H KANE (for Watkins, 61) - Nothing left to prove. ✓

LET'S FOG-ET

PLENTY TO PONDER: England boss Gareth Southgate has work to do

COLE PALMER and Trent Alexander-Arnold provided some light amidst England's fog on the Tyne - to secure their place on the plane to Euro 2024.

If there had been doubts these two might not make it to Germany, there won't be now.

The decisive duo were two of the few Three Lions to roar against a Bosnia side so mediocre they haven't even qualified for the finals.

Eberechi Eze and Marc Guehi also did their chances no harm.

But Palmer and Alexander-Arnold might as well start packing their bags now, after scoring second-half goals to secure an otherwise underwhelming win that left boss Gareth

by JEREMY CROSS

Southgate (left) with more questions than answers.

With the exception of one or two, he named essentially a second team.

Injuries in defence forced Southgate's hand and he picked Ezri Konsa at right-back while Lewis Dunk and Guehi made up the centre-back pairing.

Kieran Trippier, who prefers to operate at right-back, played left-back and captained the Three Lions on his home ground of St James' Park.

What felt more exciting was the fact both Palmer and Eze made their first starts, while Alexander-Arnold started in midfield and Ollie Watkins led the attack.

This summer's night on Tyneside wasn't about those big names who didn't start.

It was all about how the likes of Alexander-Arnold, Watkins, Eze and Conor Gallagher would cope with their audition.

Alexander-Arnold almost picked out Watkins with one of those laser-like passes of his in the opening two minutes.

But he did locate Eze with a similar ball moments later, which led to a free-kick in a dangerous position.

It led to nothing but the Liverpool star had made a bright start.

And it's sometimes hard to believe

BEST FOOT FORWARD: Kieran Trippier leads the way at his home ground that this was just his 24th cap at the age of 25.

He was like a magnet for the ball and had a hand in the first big chance, when he combined with Palmer to release Watkins, whose angled shot was wasted.

Eze also looked eager to impress and his quicksilver feet left Armin Gigovic for dead which eventually led to a chance for Gallagher, who failed to hit the target.

Eze then went on a weaving run past three defenders before Konsa missed a golden chance to open the scoring when a loose ball from a corner fell to him inside the box.

Southgate had said in the build-up his players didn't need to be perfect at the game to impress him. And most of them were holding him to his word – because it all felt a bit flat.

Haris Hajradinovic flashed a shot wide for the visitors to remind England there was a game on.

Jarrod Bowen attempted to lift the tedium at the opposite end, but shot straight at Nikola Vasilj, then Watkins blew another chance.

Alexander-Arnold and Palmer combined again for the latter to test Vasilj but England were faced with a problem they will have to solve at the Euros – breaking defensive teams down.

And few answers were being provided. Until Benjamin Tahirovic decided to pull down Konsa in the box and gift England a penalty, which Palmer dispatched on the hour.

Then Southgate rang the changes, making five in one go, which included handing debuts to Adam Wharton and Jarrad Branthwaite.

Another substitute, Harry Kane, did what he does best and scored from close range.

But the best moment belonged to Alexander-Arnold, who volleyed Jack Grealish's cross back across goal and into the far corner for the second.

All Southgate needs to work out now is how to get the Anfield ace into the starting XI.

ALL TO PLAY FOR: Eberechi Eze boosted his chances

SHOWTIME: Mead

Mead to get back to speed

■ by SIMON CASS

STRIKER Beth Mead is confident England have what it takes to turn their Euro 2025 qualifying campaign around when they face group leaders France in Saint-Etienne.

Sarina Wiegman's defending European champions sit third in Group A3 with four points, five shy of tonight's opponents after Friday's 2-1 loss to France in Newcastle.

The Lionesses need to finish first or second to guarantee a ticket to next summer's tournament in Switzerland.

Mead said: "We're very frustrated with Friday. We've got a team of winners, everyone is pushing for a starting place and that's the competition within the team."

"Every day, everyone is fighting for positions. There's no one more than the players who get frustrated and want to pick the hell out of the game the other night."

"But we've analysed, we feel ready, we feel that we can put in a good performance and show that we can beat France comfortably."

Hannah Hampton is set to replace injured goalkeeper Mary Earps.

UEFA are expected to give Manchester United the green light to play in the Europa League next season.

United were in danger of being demoted to the Europa Conference League as investor Sir Jim Ratcliffe also owns Nice, who have also qualified for the competition.

UEFA rules state if two clubs with the same owners qualify for the same competition only one is allowed to enter.

But it's understood UEFA are willing to allow both teams to compete as United's case that the clubs are separate entities and there will be no conflict of interest has been accepted.
