Unfiltered & uncurated:

SONA-ZAHEER SET THE BAR HIGH FOR LOW-KEY WEDDINGS

Sonakshi Sinha and Zaheer Iqbal's wedding has been a talking point for the elegance and confidence with which the couple broke several conventions at once. Right from the quirky invitation card, to their charmingly minimalistic look and the joyous afterparty, the uncurated wedding came as a refreshing break from the elaborate, templated affairs that have been the norm these days.

"On this very day, seven years back (23.06.2017) in each other's eyes, we saw love in its purest form and decided to hold on to it. Today that love has guided us through all the challenges and triumphs... leading up to this moment..."
— Sonakshi wrote in a post

To retain the joyful vibe of their big day, the couple turned off the comments section on their wedding post and kept social media toxicity at bay

@asisona

The bride wore red

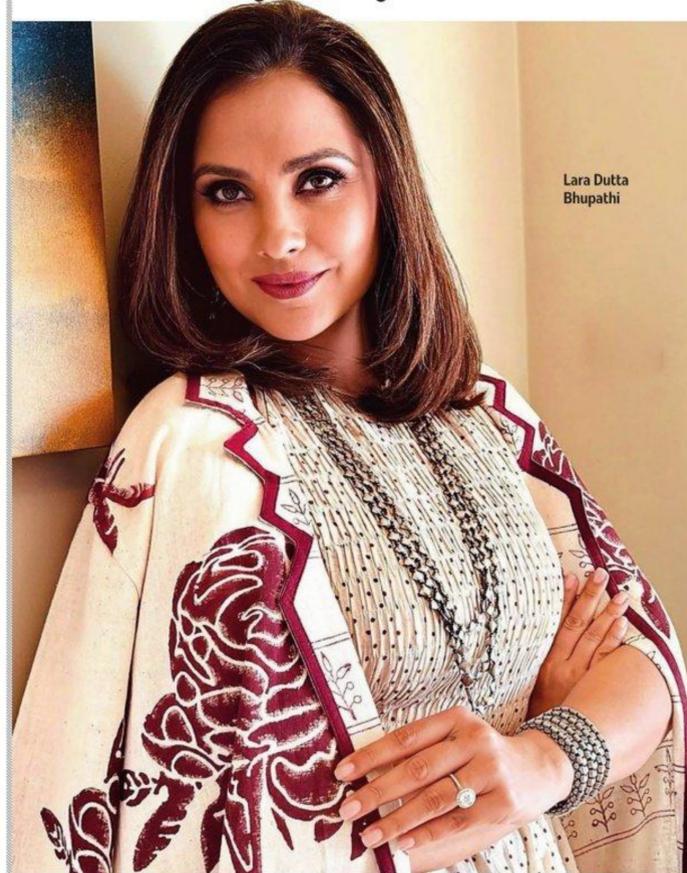

The reception saw Sonakshi dressed in a red brocade Banarasi with chand-butia detailing. Armchair fashion police pointed out that the motifs were a nod to their inter-faith marriage, but it was the couple's unfiltered look that eventually stole the show. Sonakshi wore a streak of bright red sindoor, an emerald choker with a neat hairdo. Zaheer wore white - opting not to twin with the bride as is often the norm.

An intimate family affair

The morning was a cosy do, a registry attended by the couple's family and friends. Sonakshi wore an intricate ivory chikankari sari draped the usual way, a neat bun with gajra with a matching choker set. Instead of the default mehndi, she opted for spots of alta on her hands, that added a touch of auspicious red to the couple's white-on-white look. "With the blessings of both our families and both our gods... we are now man and wife," the couple wrote while sharing the photographs that evidently had been spared heavy airbrushing.

Stories on OTT are depicting real women of today, says Lara

Lara Dutta Bhupathi

Onkar Kulkarni

Unlike the theatrical medium where we still see far and few women-oriented projects, and such stories have only picked up pace in the last few years, the digital medium has offered its audience a plethora of shows that are dominated by key female characters. Be it Aranyak starring Raveena Tandon, Aarya headlined by Sushmita Sen, Heeramandi which focused on a group of women from a certain era, or Ranneeti: Balakot & Beyond, featuring Lara Dutta Bhupathi to name a few, all these shows have powerful women leading the way.

Today, you have incredible actresses like Neena Gupta, Ratna Pathak Shah and Zeenat Aman, who are performing so well on screen. These are some fabulous women, who are playing their age on screen

Talking to us about what drew her to this medium, Lara Dutta Bhupathi says, "I think there is far more freedom within this medium and here, we are actually depicting real women today. Otherwise, you were playing into a formula-driven form of storytelling."

Being a mom isn't easy; Abhinav has been my support: Rubina

Hasti Doshi

Rubina Dilaik, who gave birth to twin girls Jeeva and Edhaa in November last year, believes that it is important to strike a balance between motherhood and work. The Shakti - Astitva Ke Ehsaas Ki actress, a self-confessed workaholic, says, "Now my attention has to be divided between my career and personal life because my daughters need that attention. It is challenging and overwhelming at times to manage everything. I've realised that brain fog is real - I tend to forget a lot of things, but eventually, it helps because that way I can slow down. Being a mother is not easy. To nurture new lives, I have to be at ease and get out of that rigorous cycle that I've been following for so long."

Ask her if work has taken a backseat for now and she replies, "No, it hasn't. I was working till the day I delivered my daughters and then within a month, I was back to work. It's all about prioritising things."

While the pre-wedding get-together of Sonakshi's closest friends was an informal and private affair, the reception saw a galaxy of stars at an upscale venue, who let go of formalities as they hugged, danced and blessed the couple. There was no celebrity DJ or rehearsed performances, but the mood was upbeat thanks to the dholak players who greeted the guests as they walked in. The couple even mingled freely with the paps, posing for groupies and making them very much a part of the celebrations. The night ended with Sonakshi changing into a more comfy but festive red anarkali, as she danced her heart out with Zaheer.

I've been blessed with a very supportive family, says Rubina Dilaik

Rubina says, "I want to strike a good balance between work and managing my home. I've been blessed with a supportive family and an understanding husband. With their constant support and motivation, I've been able to manage my life better."

I am being very selective about work. I want to take up a project that doesn't keep me away from home for long periods

Rubina and husband Abhinav Shukla's relationship, too, has changed for the better after embracing parenthood. She shares, "After becoming parents, 70 per cent of our focus is our daughters. We try to make the most of the remaining 30 per cent. We knew how things would change and we were prepared for it. There is a great deal of understanding now between us." She adds, "We divide our time mindfully. We take our time out to do the things that we like and manage to unwind. Abhinav has been a pillar of support for me and makes sure that I take time out for myself."

'Family values are most important'

Talking about how they want to raise their daughters, Rubina says, "Abhinav & I have had heart-to-heart conversations about how we want to raise our girls. Family values are most important. We both practise so many things in our own lives, so we don't need to teach them that. We're sure they will imbibe those qualities. We ensure that our kids spend time with their grandparents, so that they understand the value of family."

experienced healthcare professionals. Dr Dinesh Goel (consultant paediatrician, president, IAP, West Delhi), Dr Maninder S Dhaliwal (consultant paediatrician, secretary, IAP West Delhi) Dr Smita Ramachandran (paediatric endocrinologist faculty and resource person), Dr Mukesh Verma (consultant paediatrician, secretary IAP, Delhi 23, President, IMA Dwarka 20-22), and Dr Rajiv Sharma (consultant psychiatrist faculty and resource person) graced the occasion. The session commenced with a discussion on the importance of understanding puberty as a natural part of human development. Interactive demonstrations and visual aids assisted in elucidating complex concepts.

duction, a soulful rendition by the school choir and orchestra presentation. The choir sang the Sufi song "Jhoom". The theme of the annual production was "Traversing the Chakravayuh within and beyond". The day was graced with two shows being conducted, one for the parents of classes VI and VII and the other for classes VIII to X. The students were awarded certificates for excellence in academics, photography, computers, quizzing, full attendance, and social commitment. School founder-principal and director Usha Chopra, principal Vandana Chawla and director of NEPS Dwarka, Rohit Chopra addressed the audience.

Apeejay School, Pitampura

Apeejay School, Pitampura hosted a lecture cum demonstration session under the aegis of SPIC-

MACAY. Odissi maestro Arushi Mudgal gave a performance accompanied by her accomplished artists. The audience comprised students of classes V to X. The ceremony began with the traditional lighting of the lamp. The artist took to the stage, mesmerising everyone with her 'abhinaya', or expressive storytelling through dance. She engaged in a quick interaction with the audience, and explained in detail about the footwork and hand movements of the dance form and its various aspects. School principal Veena Goel, then shared her words of wisdom.

Apeejay School, Panchsheel Park hosted Debate-Able 2024, an inter-school English debate competition. The event saw participation from 35 schools across Delhi NCR. Travis Scott turned mug shot into T-shirt

Travis was arrested for getting into a fight on a yacht. As per the police report, he admitted he had been drinking and was quoted as saying, "It's Miami." He turned the phrase and his mug shot into a T-shirt the same day

After a night of partying in South Florida, superstar rapper Travis Scott ended his Thursday with two more charges on his record and one more product on his website than he started with. Scott, 33, turned a spotlight on what many would consider an embarrassing moment when he started selling T-shirts featuring his mug shot, just hours after his arrest in Miami Beach. The new merchandise reinforced the idea that for certain celebrities and politicians, brushes with the law can be easily recast as lucrative business opportunities.

The rapper, who has two kids with beauty mogul and reality show celeb Kylie Jenner, made headlines after police responded to reports of a fight aboard a yacht docked at a marina. Scott was charged with trespassing and disorderly intoxication and then released on bond after paying $650 (over ₹54k) on both charges, according to local news outlets. Scott admitted he had been drinking alcohol. "It's Miami," he was quoted as saying in the police report.

That same phrase, along with his mug shot - altered from the much more stoic original to include a broad, movie-star smile - had landed by day's end on a dark T-shirt selling for $35 (around ₹3K) on his website. By Friday, the T-shirt was off the website.

It's been a tough week: Justin Timberlake post drunk driving arrest

Actor-singer Justin Timberlake addressed his recent arrest for the first time during his concert in Chicago. "It's been a tough week. I know I'm hard to love sometimes, but you keep loving me right back," Timberlake told the crowd, reports pagesix.com.

Timberlake made these remarks during a message to his fans, emphasizing that they've both been through "ups-and-downs and lefts-and-rights." During his arrest, Timberlake voiced his concern that the arrest would "ruin the tour."

The 10-time Grammy winner was arrested for drunk driving in New York shortly after midnight on Tuesday while travelling back to his hotel from a dinner with friends. Agencies

Today, there are fabulous women playing their age, says Lara Dutta

 Lara says, "Today, you can project women who are manipulative, powerful, diabolical... all kinds of shades without resorting to just playing goody two shoes or playing the self-sacrificing woman on screen. For any actress who is worth her salt, this is truly a wonderful challenge and a blessing at the same time, to be relevant at this point and be able to portray characters like these."
 Lara is confident that the success of such shows will only inspire and encourage filmmakers to experiment with subjects like these for theatrical releases as well. She says, "Today, you have incredible actresses like Neena Gupta, Ratna Pathak Shah and Zeenat Aman, who are performing so well on screen. These are some fabulous women, who are playing their age on screen. It is fantastic that you have representation across ages for women in our cinema now."
