Columbia restricts campus access amid fear of 'potential disruptions'

BY CAYLA BAMBERGER
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Columbia University is restricting access to campus as of Monday due to concerns about pro-Palestinian protests as the school year revs up.

The Morningside Heights campus, which had been open to everyone for most of the day in recent weeks, started requiring student or faculty identification for entry — nearly four months after police cleared a building occupation and encampment demanding Columbia divest from Israel.

"This change is intended to keep our community safe given reports of potential disruptions at Columbia and on college campuses across the country as we approach the beginning of the new school year," Columbia Chief Operating Officer Cas Holloway said in a memo.

"We are particularly concerned about non-affiliates who may not have the best interests of the Columbia community in mind," the email to students and faculty read.

Columbia started rolling out a color-coded campus lockdown system in early July, restricting access to only students living on campus when the status turns "red." The last time the campus was regulated in that way was when university President Minouche Shafik summoned the NYPD, resulting in the arrests of more than 100 protesters, and in the weeks that followed. The majority of charges have since been dropped.

At the end of last week, the campus was open to all during the day while buildings were restricted, or "green," but shifted to "orange" after 10 p.m., meaning students needed to show identification overnight.

As of Monday, the "orange" code is in effect at all times of the day. Students and faculty can enter campus with IDs at five points around the perimeter of campus; all other entry points are closed. Only preauthorized guests may receive exemptions.

"This status will remain in effect until further notice," Holloway continued. "We will

Former Cornell student gets 21 months for threats to Jews

BY CAYLA BAMBERGER
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

A former Cornell University student was sentenced Monday for posting ominous online threats against Jewish students on campus, court documents show.

Patrick Dai, 22, who had been a junior at the upstate Ithaca college, was ordered to spend 21 months behind bars by Northern District of New York Chief Judge Brenda Sannes. He will receive credit for the 10 months he's served so far, his lawyer said.

"Antisemitic threats of violence are unacceptable in our society, and we will not tolerate this conduct," Kristen Clarke, assistant attorney general of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, said in a statement after Dai's guilty plea. "Particularly at institutions of higher learning, people should feel safe to pursue educational opportunities."

Dai, a computer science major at Cornell's College of Engineering, pled guilty in April to posting threats to kill or injure another person via interstate communications, prosecutors said.

Last October, he posted disturbing messages to the Cornell page of an online discussion forum, Greekrank, including posts that warned "gonna shoot up 104 west" — a dining hall serving kosher food next to the Cornell Jewish Center that provides residential accommodations for students. He added he was "gonna bomb jewish house."

In another unhinged post, Dai threatened to "stab" and "slit the throat" of Jewish men on campus; rape and throw off a cliff Jewish women, and behead any Jewish babies. At the same time, he announced a chilling vow to "bring an assault rifle to campus and shoot all you pig jews."

Dai of upstate Pittsford, a suburb of Rochester, had faced a maximum penalty of five years in prison. His lawyer said she plans to appeal sentencing enhancements that made the order longer.

"Patrick is not antisemitic. He is autistic and believed he could expose the atrocities of Hamas and garner sympathy for the Jewish community if he pretended to be part of Hamas," Lisa Peebles of the Syracuse office of the Federal Public Defender said, adding Dai functions at an "age equivalent" of a child between ages 5 and 10.

"He quickly realized his postings were not accomplishing his intended effect," she said. "He posted an apology and felt terrible about what he did," she said.

continuously assess the situation and adjust as necessary."

The color-coded system has faced some pushback on campus, including in the student newspaper and among some faculty, who acknowledged the echoes of last spring. Taken together with rumored plans to give some campus security personnel the power of arrest, Reinhold Martin, president of the campus chapter of the AAUP, a faculty group, warned of the implications.

"This culture of fear and the permanent state of emergency that this has more or less instituted with the color-coding ... prioritizes and speaks the language of security over that of education. It's Giuliani-era 'New York is under threat! It's like Columbia is under siege, and security comes before all else," said Martin, a Columbia architecture professor.

"I'd say there's quite a bit of dismay about the color-coding scheme, because it normalizes what should have been — in the best light — an exceptional moment. OK, there was a crisis and certain measures were taken," he added. "But now to normalize those measures and, for all that anybody can see, to institutionalize them in perpetuity — in the middle of summer, we go into this orange high-alert mode — is very disturbing to many people who might have different views on the conflict in the Middle East."

Holloway's apartment building in Brooklyn

Heights was vandalized last week with red paint and protesters leaving a box of crickets and mealworms and also breaking the glass of the lobby door with a hammer, police said. The vandals also painted red inverted triangles on the building's exterior, a controversial symbol of pro-Palestinian resistance that Hamas terrorists use to mark military targets.

"We've seen an explosion of antisemitism and there's no excuse," Mayor Adams said Friday on X. "I'm sorry to Cas Holloway for this vandalism. Hate has no place in our city."

The NYPD's Hate Crimes Task Force is investigating the matter, Adams said.

'A GREAT MAN OF GOD'

Relatives and friends stunned at murder of devout singer in

Street in Flatlands, Brooklyn, where Nathaniel Thomas III (left) was knifed to death allegedly by a neighbor who was asked by Thomas to turn down loud music a year ago. Thomas was a pillar of his community who had been a member of Love Fellowship Tabernacle in East New York, where he sang in the choir, since he was a child.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

A beloved Brooklyn church choir singer was stabbed to death on his daily walk by a next-door neighbor he had clashed with over loud music, according to cops and prosecutors.

Nathaniel Thomas III was knifed multiple times in the head and torso near Avenue K and E. 53rd St. in Flatlands at about 8 a.m. Wednesday, cops said.

Thomas, 45, the sole caregiver for his ailing mother and her only child, was out on his daily walk six blocks from the home they shared when he was killed. He had headed out to buy the newspaper, a habit he picked up from his late father.

"There's nothing no one can say or do because this young man never messed with anyone — that wasn't his M.O.," said Thomas' cousin, who gave her name as Bernice, 65.

"He always showed everybody love so for somebody to hurt him, to kill him and take him from his mother, that's ridiculous."

"He'd get up and pick up the paper every morning, but this is what his father did. He followed the ritual of his dad. His dad used to get up every morning and go get the paper, and he did the same thing after his father passed," Bernice said.

Police arrested the victim's next-door neighbor Shakel Maldonado, 24, for murder and weapon possession. It was a year after they clashed over the accused killer blasting music, disturbing the victim's ailing mom.

A witness to the aftermath of the fatal stabbing told the Daily News he saw "a deranged guy walking back and forth with a knife in his hands" whom cops took into custody.

According to police, an argument between Thomas and Maldonado at the victim's home on April 9, 2023, boiled over when Maldonado nearly slapped Thomas.

When cops responded, Maldonado vowed he would "get" Thomas, the victim's family says.

Bernice said his cousin was shaken by the encounter.

"He said, 'The guy kicked my door,'" Bernice recalled. "He said, 'I don't know what to do. He kicked the door. All I asked him was to turn the music off. My mom wasn't feeling well.'"

Thomas did not want to press charges, and Maldonado was taken to a hospital for psychiatric evaluation rather than jail, Thomas' family says. The criminal complaint against Maldonado for murder notes the victim previously filed a harassment complaint against him.

"He told him he was going to get him, but [Thomas] didn't think anything else about it," said Juanita Anderson, Thomas' aunt.

Thomas had his mind on other matters. "He loved his family," Anderson said. "He loved music. He loved the arts. He loved God. He loved his mother."

The suspect's grandfather, who declined to share his name for publication, was in tears when he spoke to The News of the slaying.

"This is very sad," he said. "I don't know exactly what happened between them. But I feel so sorry for what happened because life is so important. It's the gift of God."

The grandfather said Maldonado had attended three years of college upstate as a journalism student but hadn't returned to school.

Next-door, Thomas' relatives, gathered on the porch of the family home Sunday, were reeling at his sudden slaying.

"Heartbroken. Destroyed feelings. I'm all over the place. That was my favorite cousin," said Dainty Carr, 31. "We loved him. He loved us like sisters. We was like his little sisters because he didn't have no sisters. He has a lot of girl cousins."

Another of Thomas' cousins said the family hasn't had the heart to tell the victim's mother how her son had died.

"We had to tell her that Nathaniel is not with us and is up in heaven, and that he passed in the hospital," said Wayne

FATALLY STABBED

B'klyn church choir who cared for ailing mom

Huston, 50. “We didn’t go into the details of how he died.”

Huston could barely process the death himself.

“I opened my mouth, and I couldn’t say a word,” he said of when he heard the news. “I just froze, I couldn’t say anything.”

Huston’s mother was also murdered by a neighbor.

According to Georgia radio station WDUN, 19-year-old Albert Lee King killed Leila Huston, 51, on Sept. 10, 2003, by strangling her with a do-rag in her front yard after Huston accused the teen of stealing $1,300 from her home. King was sentenced to life in prison the following year.

“It reminded me of when my mom got killed,” Huston said of Thomas’ shock slaying. “He was murdered almost 21 years later like my mom was murdered. Not in the same manner, but he was taken like she was taken.”

Thomas memorialized his aunt’s murder in a Facebook post last year. “It hurt me profusely because she believed in me,” he wrote, noting that she was a member of the church choir like him. She “had an infectious laugh and sense of humor and made me some cool cousins, and then life took her away from me.”

Thomas was a longtime fixture at the Love Fellowship Tabernacle in East New York.

“The church is grieving,” said Elaine Frazier, 61, the church’s chief operating officer. “Our heart is grieving that such a young man, a kind man’s life was taken. ... He was taking care of his mom. He was an extremely decent young man.”

“We’re astonished this happened,” added Nadine Simmons, one of his many church friends. “He was a kind, considerate, loving, gentle person.”

Parishioners felt Thomas’ absence at Sunday’s service.

“I was in total shock and surprised. It was just unbelievable,” said Frank Patterson, the head of security at the house of worship.

“He was a man’s man. He was a great guy. He was a great man of God. He served, he sang. ... He was a solid member here for years.”

Parishioners said he had attended the church since childhood, when he took an early interest in singing. The church is led by gospel star Hezekiah Walker, with whom Thomas performed and recorded, friends say.

“He was very quiet and attentive. He would always give me hugs,” said Mary, a fellow member of the choir. “He was a good singer. He was passionate about that.”

Maldonado, who cops said has no criminal history, was ordered held without bail after he pleaded not guilty at his arraignment in Brooklyn Criminal Court Friday.

“I think he needs to get life,” Thomas’ cousin Bernice said of Maldonado. “He took a life. ... There’s nothing that can happen that’s going to bring my cousin back.”

Thomas’ final post on Facebook was made less than 24 hours before his death.

“GOD I wanna thank and praise you for being willing and able to meet every need and make anything that’s wrong right again,” he wrote. “Amen.”

All-news outlet WCBS 880 is history after slot is sold off

BY JOSEPH WILKINSON
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Longtime New York news radio station WCBS 880 will end operations later this month now that the station’s parent company sold the rights to ESPN.

The decision ends a nearly six-decade run for WCBS 880 as a go-to source for news and information across the tri-state area.

ESPN New York, which currently operates on WEPN at 98.7 FM, will take over the 880 AM signal on Aug. 26, according to a press release from Audacy, which owns WCBS.

ESPN’s FM lease will expire at the end of August.

The sale will leave 1010 WINS, also an Audacy station, as the dominant all-news network in the New York area.

“All-news is a pillar of Audacy and this decision, though difficult, fortifies that leadership position for generations to come,” the company’s New York market leader, Chris Oliviero, said in a statement.

The sale marks an odd chapter in the well-publicized WFAN-ESPN feud, as Audacy also owns WFAN, a New York-centric sports radio station. However, the sale will increase ESPN New York’s reach and signal strength when the network takes over the massive and massively popular 880 AM feed.

ESPN New York will control the programming on 880 AM for three years, sources told The Athletic. Audacy will remain the station owner, ESPN New York controlling the content. New York Mets baseball broadcasts, a staple of WCBS 880, will remain on the 880 AM channel, according to Audacy.

WCBS 880 has been an all-news broadcast since August 1967, when it pivoted from music and radio shows. Through decades of turmoil and upheaval in radio in New York and across the country, the station remained a bastion of reliable information for New Yorkers and others throughout the tri-state area.

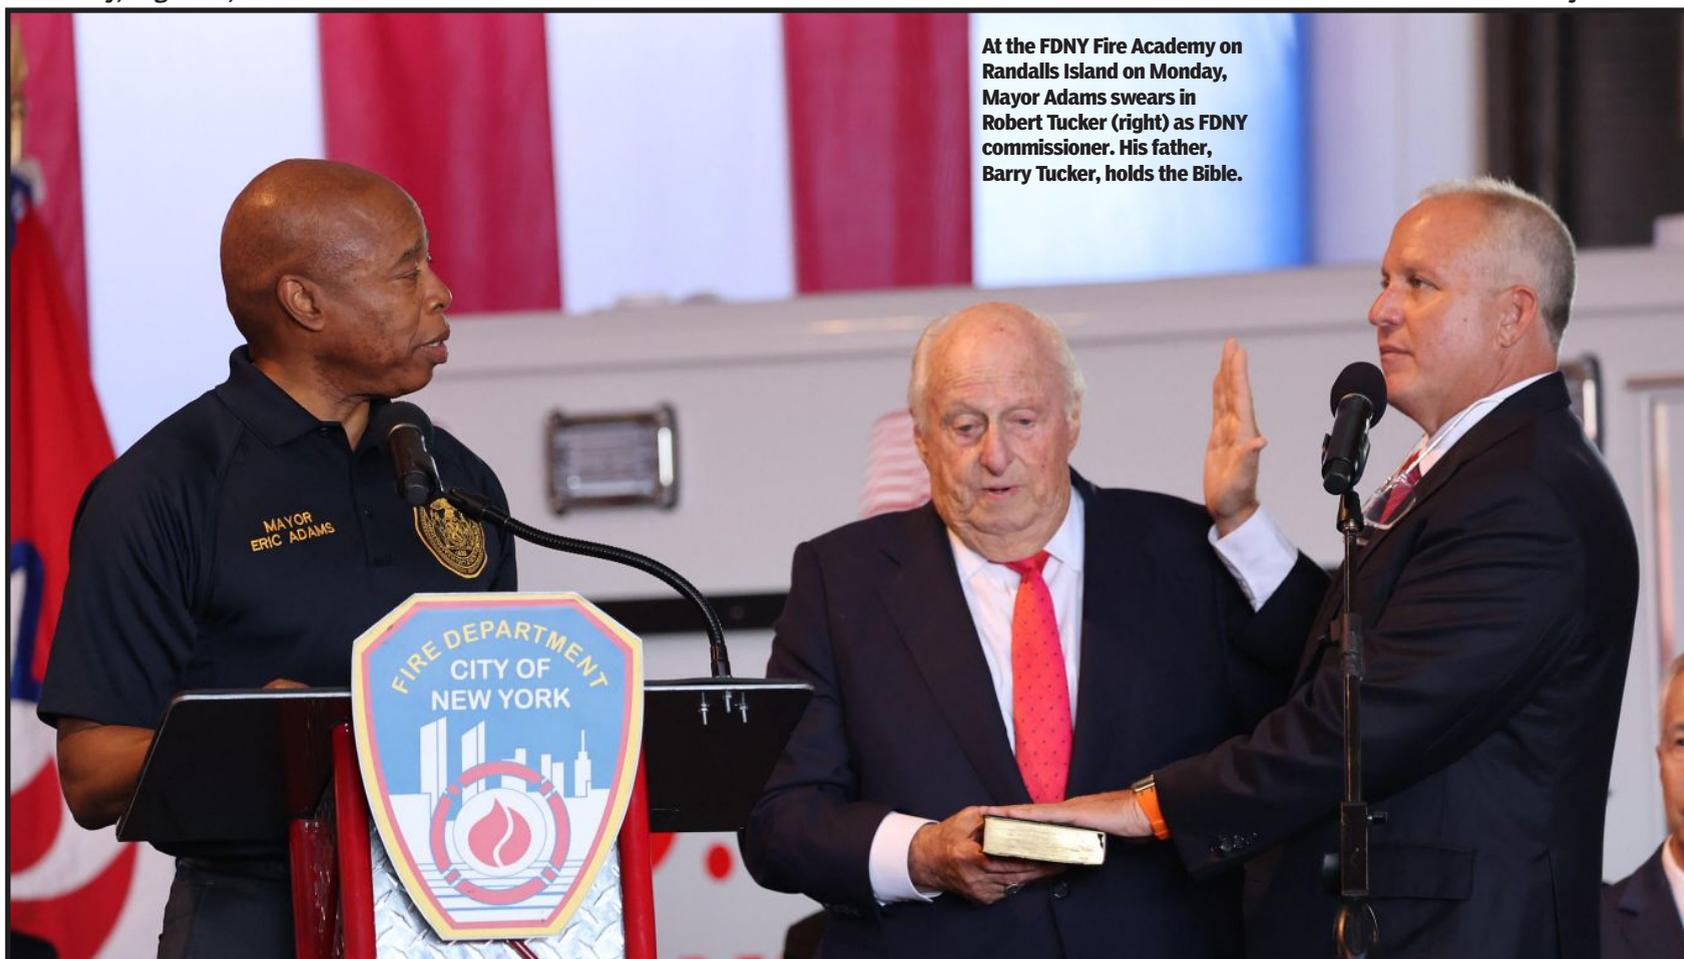

“WCBS 880 has been one of the most respected radio stations in history, with a legacy cemented by the hundreds of world-class journalists, on and off the air, who willed it into existence over the decades,” Oliviero said. “If it happened in New York or the world, you heard about it on WCBS 880.”

At least 23 employees at WCBS, represented by the Writers Guild of America, were laid off in the sale, according to the union. It’s unclear how many nonunion employees were affected.

“The closure of WCBS Newsradio 880 is another example of consolidation by a major media conglomerate, which ultimately deprives the public of critical local news stories with different perspectives,” the guild said in a statement.

Audacy applied to change the call sign of the channel from WCBS to WHSQ. The Federal Communications Commission will need to approve the request.

To commemorate the history of WCBS 880, the station will air a retrospective from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Aug. 22.

At the FDNY Fire Academy on Randall's Island on Monday, Mayor Adams swears in Robert Tucker (right) as FDNY commissioner. His father, Barry Tucker, holds the Bible.

Boss to 'mend fences'

Adams hails new FDNY Commish Tucker, who is security CEO

BY CHRIS SOMMERFELDT
AND LEONARD GREENE
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Robert Tucker, a committed philanthropist with deep roots in civic service and strong ties to public safety, was appointed as the city's 35th FDNY commissioner on Monday.

Like the commissioner he replaces, Robert Tucker, 51, has never been a uniformed firefighter. But he can trace his FDNY roots back to the early 1980s, when, during his first-ever job as a summer intern in the department, he fetched coffee and mapped fires across the five boroughs.

"From that summer job and paper map I became captivated with the business of public safety," Tucker said during an appointment ceremony at the FDNY Fire Academy on Randall's Island. "These people are real superheroes, and I couldn't respect them more."

Tucker replaces Laura Kavanagh, the department's first woman commissioner, whose embattled tenure featured clashes with several department chiefs who resigned or were demoted over various disagreements.

Kavanagh's last day was last Wednesday.

Tucker, who is white, takes over the department amid ongoing friction between the FDNY and some of its Black firefighters, who say they have struggled for decades to diversify the department.

But Mayor Adams insisted Tucker's appointment came with the blessing of Regina Wilson, president of the Vulcan Society, an organization that advocates for Black firefighters.

"I knew what he was inheriting," Adams said at Monday's ceremony.

"He was inheriting more than just a department that had to put out flames inside burning buildings. We have to put out flames that are actually burning inside the agency. It is going to take a level of honesty and the ability to communicate to accomplish that task."

He said the new deputy has to "mend some of the fences that have been broken for decades."

"I knew Robert was the one to do it," he added.

Adams spoke of Tucker's legacy. His mother worked for 12 years in the administration of former Mayor Ed Koch.

Tucker is currently the chairman and CEO of T&M Protection Resources and a longstanding member of the board of directors of the FDNY Foundation.

As commissioner, Tucker takes the reins of a department with 17,000 employees, including firefighters and emergency medical workers.

"I can think of no higher calling than serving as fire commissioner of the City of New York," Tucker said. "This is truly a dream come true."

Tucker became involved in fundraising for the FDNY after the terror attacks on the World Trade Center on Sept. 11, 2001.

In 2014, he was named an honorary fire commissioner for his work at the FDNY Foundation, which previously named him an honorary assistant chief in 2010 and an honorary deputy chief. He formerly served on Adams' public safety and justice transition committee.

His appointment was lauded by unions representing city firefighters.

"It is great to see that the new commissioner has long and deep ties with the FDNY and a great appreciation for the rank and file of New York City's Bravest," Andrew Ansbro, president of the FDNY Uniformed Firefighters Association, said in a statement.

"His experience makes him uniquely qualified to understand the changes that could be made to improve efficiency in the department by increasing unit availability, which would lead to a decrease in response times."

James Brosi, president of the FDNY Uniformed Fire Officers Association, highlighted Tucker's "executive experience."

"His longstanding relationship with public services, specifically his work on the board of the FDNY Foundation, gives him an insight into the complexity and culture of the FDNY," Brosi said.

Not everyone was thrilled with Tucker's introduction Monday. Oren Barzilay, president of the EMS Local 2057 union that represents EMTs and paramedics as well as fire inspectors, was upset that Tucker barely mentioned EMS workers at his appointment ceremony.

"Someone needs to inform the new FDNY commissioner that he represents the largest EMS system in the entire nation," Barzilay said in a statement. "Our members were completely relegated to a postscript mention in the new commissioner's remarks, which is an insult to thousands who wear the uniform as FDNY EMTs, paramedics and fire protection inspectors."

Tucker has a long record of being politically involved in the city, giving more than $15,000 to various local elected officials over the past two decades, city Campaign Finance Board records show.

None of Tucker's donations have been directed to Adams. In fact, Tucker gave to Adams' Democratic opponents in the 2021 mayoral race — including $2,000 to former city Comptroller Scott Stringer and $1,000 to businessman Ray McGuire — as well as $2,000 to Fernando Mateo, a restaurant owner who mounted a failed Republican mayoral bid that year, records show.

Homeless man kills 1, hurts another with cleavers in Bx.: cops

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

A homeless parolee sprung from prison a month ago has been nabbed in the unprovoked meat cleaver murder in a Bronx laundromat, police said Monday.

Clarence Woodward, 39, was arrested hours after the Thursday attack and charged with murder, manslaughter and assault. The NYPD announced the arrest Monday.

Woodward allegedly fatally stabbed Jose Miranda, 45, and wounded a 47-year-old man shortly after walking into the 303 Laundromat at 2:40 a.m.

In video obtained by the Daily News, the attacker was carrying shirts when he walked into the 24-hour laundromat, on E. 170th St. near College Ave. in Claremont.

He knifed Miranda in the legs and upper body and the other man in the back before running off south on College Ave., police said. Woodward's defense attorney, Mrnacaj Michael Anthony, declined comment Monday.

Both men were rushed to Lincoln Hospital, but Miranda could not be saved. The other victim is recovering.

The grieving mother of Jose Miranda, Marisol Miranda, took to Facebook with a heartfelt video message in Spanish, saying, "God has given me the strength but it is not easy."

She said that while any loss is heartbreaking the anguish of having a child taken by violence is indescribable. "I ask for your prayers to help me endure this bitter experience," she said.

According to a GoFundMe page created to help the family "say a proper goodbye," Jose had been out of touch with his loved ones for nearly a year. The page highlights that Jose was a talented artist, known for his skill in drawing, tattooing and even working as a barber. He leaves behind two sons.

"Unfortunately, about a year ago we lost communication with Jose," reads the GoFundMe post. "We recently shared his pictures on social media, hoping to find him or at least know that he was okay."

But last week, Marisol Miranda received the call every parent fears. New York detectives reached out with urgent news. When they arrived at her home, they delivered the crushing truth: Her son had been murdered, stabbed multiple times.

Cops recovered two meat cleavers from the scene.

According to records, Woodward, who had been staying at a Brooklyn homeless shelter, served three stints in state prison, all for Bronx convictions. He has a history of 27 prior arrests.

He was paroled July 3 after serving more than four years for attempted robbery and felony assault, records show. Before that, he served two years for attempted robbery and was freed in July 2012.

He was conditionally released in July 2008 after spending three years in prison, again for attempted robbery.

Robber no Robin Hood

Gunman in Bling Bishop stickup gets 7 yrs., less than crooked cleric

BY JOHN ANNESE
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

A stickup man who held up Brooklyn Bling Bishop Lamor Whitehead during a sermon is no Robin Hood — he's just a "robbing hood," said a federal judge who sentenced the crook to more than seven years behind bars.

Say-Quan Pollack tried to argue in court filings that he should get leniency for the fact that his victim was convicted in a string of frauds, including stealing a parishioner's life savings.

But on Monday, Brooklyn Federal Court Judge William Kuntz hit him with a 7½-year sentence, agreeing with prosecutors on how long Pollack should be locked away for the infamous, caught-on-video 2022 heist.

"The record reveals that the defendant was not some modern-day Robin Hood taking from the rich equivalent of the Sheriff of Nottingham to help the poor," Kuntz said. "No, the record reveals that the defendant was simply a modern-day robbing hood."

Kuntz offered up more than one reference to the legendary English outlaw, stating that Pollack's accomplices were not his "merry men," and stating, "The crimes of the bishop do not justify the crimes of the defendant. With all respect, robbing a hood does not make you a Robin Hood. Not in this court, not in this case, and not on my watch."

Nevertheless, Pollack's sentence is shorter than the nine years Whitehead got in June for his crimes.

Whitehead, who Mayor Adams took under his wing as a mentor, was delivering his live-streamed sermon inside the Leaders of Tomorrow International church in Canarsie, Brooklyn, on July 24, 2022, when three masked bandits stormed in. They forced the bishop to the ground and took jewelry from him and his wife — who was holding their young daughter on her lap.

"His first action was to point a firearm in the direction of the pulpit, with parishioners positioned between him and the pulpit," Assistant U.S. Attorney Rebecca Schuman said of Pollack. "This is not a typical armed robbery."

Though police had described their haul as $1 million worth of bling, so far the victims have only documented some of the stolen items to be worth more than $400,000.

One of Pollack's cohorts, Juwan Anderson, is still awaiting sentence, while the third, Shamar Leggette, was cut down in a gunfight with police and U.S. Marshals at a New Jersey motel in January.

Pollack, who was also convicted in a 2015 string of armed robberies, told the judge he was in the process of turning his life around. He pleaded guilty to a federal robbery charge in November.

"I understand what you see on record is hard to overlook," he said. "What you see on record is not who I am. It's not who I want to be ... I'm better than that. I know I am."

Whitehead, who's known for his flashy designer clothing and his "prosperity gospel" preaching, caught the public's attention in May 2022, after he unsuccessfully tried to broker an accused subway shooter's surrender, interfering with police and defense lawyers' attempts to bring the suspect in peacefully.

The robbery happened two months later, and Whitehead's legal troubles started multiplying, culminating with his conviction in Manhattan Federal Court of a $6 million string of loan frauds, of fleecing a parishioner out of her $90,000 life savings, and of lying about his ties to Adams to extort and try to defraud a Bronx body shop owner.

ROAD TO THE

Judge kicks RFK Jr. off state ballot

BY THERESA BRAINE
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Robert Kennedy Jr. lost his bid Monday to appear as an independent presidential candidate on the New State ballot after a judge's ruling found his residency claims "preposterous."

The ruling stemmed from a suit filed by a super PAC helmed by supporters of President Biden, Clear Choice PAC, on behalf of several voters who contended RFK Jr. did not fit the residency requirements he was claiming. State election law dictates the case be decided by a judge, without a jury.

In her ruling, Albany Supreme Court Justice Christina Ryba cited the lack of evidence Kennedy lived at the address he claimed — a spare bedroom of a Westchester friend — as well as RFK Jr.'s lack of knowledge that the property was in foreclosure, something a bona fide resident would have known. Also, his claim that he'd relocate there when his wife, actress and comedian Cheryl Hines, retired from acting didn't wash, Ryba said.

"Given the size and appearance of the spare bedroom as shown in the photographs admitted into evidence, the court finds Kennedy's testimony that he may return to that bedroom to reside with his wife, family members, multiple pets, and all of his personal belongings to be highly improbable, if not preposterous," Ryba said.

"Based upon the clear and convincing credible evidence presented in this case, the court finds that the ... address listed on the nominating petition was not Kennedy's bona fide and legitimate residence, but merely a 'sham' address that he assumed for the purpose of maintaining his voter registration and furthering his own political aspirations in this state."

Kennedy (photo) was not available to comment, but he has won battles in other states, including New Jersey, to get on the ballot based on other criteria, including numbers of petition signatures, and the viability of his party, We the People. With News Wire Services

Don and Musk get palsy-walsy as

It's like old times for former President Donald Trump, with campaign signs harking back to his days as host of "The Apprentice," and a renewed tie with Elon Musk (inset). AP

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Donald Trump recounted his assassination attempt in vivid detail and promised the largest deportation in U.S. history during a high-profile return to the social media platform formerly known as Twitter — a conversation that was plagued by technical glitches.

"If I had not turned my head, I would not be talking to you right now — as much as I like you," Trump told X's owner Elon Musk.

Musk, a former Trump critic, said the GOP nominee's toughness, as demonstrated by his reaction to last month's shooting, was critical for national security.

"There's some real tough characters out there," Musk said. "And if they don't think the American president is tough, they will do what they want to do."

The rare public conversation between Trump and Musk, which spanned more than two hours and was overwhelmingly friendly, revealed little new about Trump's plans for a second term. The former president spent much of the discussion focused on his recent assassination attempt, illegal immigration and his plans to cut government regulations.

Still, the online meeting underscored just how much the U.S. political landscape has changed less than four years after Trump was permanently banned by the social media platform's former leadership for spreading disinformation that sparked the Jan. 6, 2021, attack on Congress and undermined the very foundation of the American democracy.

Such disinformation has thrived at X under Musk's leadership, although it was largely ignored during his conversation with Trump save for a passing Trump reference to a "rigged election."

The session was intended to serve as a way for the former president to reach potentially millions of voters directly. It was also an opportunity for X, a platform that relies heavily on politics, to redeem itself after some struggles.

It did not begin as planned.

With more than 878,000 users connected to the meeting more than 40 minutes after the scheduled start time, the interview had not yet begun. Many users received a message reading, "Details not available."

Trump's team posted that the "interview on X is being overwhelmed with listeners logging in." And once the meeting began, Musk apologized for the late start and blamed a "massive attack" that overwhelmed the company's system. Trump's voice sounded muffled at times.

Trump supporters were openly frustrated.

"Not available????? I planned my whole day around this," wrote conservative commentator Glenn Beck.

"Please let Elon know we can't join," billionaire hedge fund manager Bill Ackman posted.

Ahead of the event, Musk posted on the platform that X was conducting "some system scaling tests" to handle what was anticipated to be a high volume of participants.

The rocky start was reminiscent of a May 2023 social media conversation between Musk and Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis. The Republican governor was using the social media platform as a way to officially announce his presidential bid, a disastrous rollout marred by technical

WHITE HOUSE 2024

ex-prez returns to X

glitches, overloaded by the more than 400,000 people who tried to dial in.

Trump's Democratic rival, Vice President Kamala Harris, noted that Trump mocked DeSantis at the time.

"Wow! The DeSanctus TWITTER launch is a DISASTER! His whole campaign will be a disaster. WATCH!" Trump wrote in a message reposted by Harris' campaign Monday.

Monday's meeting also highlighted the evolving personal relationship between Trump and Musk, two of the world's most powerful men, who have shifted from being bitter rivals to unlikely allies over the span of one election season.

Musk, who described himself as a "moderate Democrat" until recently, suggested in 2022 that Trump was too old to be president again. Still, Musk formally endorsed Trump two days after the assassination attempt.

During their talk, Trump welcomed the idea of Musk joining his next administration to help cut government waste. Musk volunteered to join a prospective "government efficiency commission."

"You're the greatest cutter," Trump told Musk. "I need an Elon Musk – I need somebody that has a lot of strength and courage and smarts. I want to close up the Department of Education, move education back to the states."

Even before his endorsement, the tech CEO had already been working privately to support a pro-Trump super PAC. The group, known as America PAC, is now under investigation by election officials for alleged misleading attempts to collect data from voters.

Meanwhile, Trump has softened his criticism of electric vehicles, citing Musk's leadership of Tesla. And on Monday, at least, Trump returned to Musk's social media platform in force. The former president made at least eight individual posts in the hours leading up to the Musk interview.

Long before he endorsed Trump, Musk turned increasingly toward the right in his posts and actions on the platform, also using X to try to sway political discourse around the world.

'Politically persecuted' Trump plans to sue feds

BY DAVE GOLDINER
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Former President Donald Trump is planning to sue the federal government for $115 million over the 2022 search of his Mar-a-Lago estate, accusing the Justice Department of unconstitutional "political persecution."

Even though the search turned up hundreds of classified documents and led to his indictment on federal charges, Trump says prosecutors improperly targeted him in hopes of damaging his campaign to win back the White House.

"The subsequent malicious prosecution [is] particularly egregious, showing willful, wanton, oppressive, and malicious intent by the Department of Justice and FBI," Daniel Epstein, a lawyer for Trump, wrote in a notice of claim filed with the government.

Trump is demanding $15 million in compensation for his legal costs, plus $100 million in punitive damages.

Trump accuses Attorney General Merrick Garland and FBI Director Christopher Wray of failing to implement normal procedures for getting back the documents in order to carry out the search and humiliate the Republican ex-president.

"Garland and Wray decided to stray from established protocol to injure President Trump," Epstein wrote.

The filing sets the clock ticking on a 180-day period during which Trump and the government can seek to work out a settlement. If no deal is reached, a federal judge will hear the case in South Florida.

Trump admits taking the documents with him to his Florida estate after leaving the White House in January 2021, but claims he had the legal right to do so.

He returned some of the documents when hit with a subpoena to give them back.

Suspecting Trump was hiding more documents, the feds asked a judge to approve a search warrant for Mar-a-Lago, which was carried out on Aug. 22, 2022.

Garland appointed special counsel Jack Smith to investigate the case after Trump announced he would run for president again in 2024.

Trump was indicted on a string of charges accusing him of improperly retaining the documents and obstructing justice. Two Mar-a-Lago workers were also charged with moving boxes of sensitive documents to hide them from investigators and even from Trump's own defense attorney.

Florida Federal Judge Aileen Cannon recently dismissed the case on the ground Smith's appointment was unconstitutional. The prosecution is appealing that decision to a higher court, but it will likely wind up being decided by the Supreme Court.

All-star Democratic lineup set for next week's convention in the Windy City

BY DAVE GOLDINER
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

President Biden is reportedly expected to speak next Monday on the first day of the Democratic National Convention and former President Barack Obama will address delegates Tuesday as Kamala Harris hopes to ride a wave of momentum that has upended the campaign.

Vice presidential nominee Tim Walz will be featured Wednesday, while Harris will close out the convention by accepting the presidential nomination Thursday in Chicago, NBC News reported Monday.

Former President Bill Clinton will speak before Walz on Wednesday, while former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton will speak Monday.

It's shaping up as a "gang's all here" lineup of political headliners for Team Blue. The schedule presents a dramatic contrast to the Republican National Convention, where former President Donald Trump's disputes with past party leaders kept most of them away from the GOP shindig.

Democratic convention planners have had to completely rip up their old plans for a coronation of Biden after the sitting president pulled out of the race and endorsed Harris just three weeks ago.

That stunning switch catapulted Harris into a remarkable rise in the polls, where she is now narrowly leading Trump in most surveys.

Harris' pick of Minnesota Gov. Walz, a former high school teacher and football coach, has also energized the Democratic base, with huge crowds serenading the duo in a blitz of battleground states last week.

Now planners need to use convention stagecraft to showcase the new ticket as a younger, forward-looking alternative to the 78-year-old Trump.

So far, there is no word on celebrities who may show up to lend their voices to Harris' trailblazing bid to become the first Black woman president.

It also isn't clear whether popular former First Lady Michelle Obama will speak, although it would be surprising if she is not featured in some way, especially since Chicago is her hometown.

A pro-Trump super PAC said it plans to launch a $100 million ad campaign in battleground states during the convention to blunt the Harris wave.

Frank Carone (main) served as Mayor Adams' first chief of staff until late 2022. There's no indication gifts from Carone's wife, Diana Carone, to Tracey Collins (inset with mayor), Adams' partner, violate any laws, but government ethics watchdogs say their timing highlights why they believe laws around gifts to public officials should be stricter.

CITY POWER QUARTET'S

Wife of longtime Adams pal Carone gave thousands of dollars in

BY CHRIS SOMMERFELDT
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Frank Carone has been a near-constant presence in Mayor Adams' political and personal life since 2013.

That year, Carone, an attorney and veteran political powerbroker in the city, helped clear the field for Adams to be elected Brooklyn borough president, a post that became a perch for him to launch his successful 2021 mayoral run.

Ever since, Carone has remained a close friend and confidant to Adams, serving as his first chief of staff until late 2022, when he left City Hall to chair his reelection campaign and launch a lobbying firm representing private interests, some of which have business before the mayor's administration.

Their respective partners, Diana Carone and Tracey Collins, have also been friends for a decade, with Carone's wife giving the mayor's girlfriend, who's a senior Education Department official, gifts worth thousands of dollars last year, according to documents obtained by the Daily News and people familiar with their relationship.

Diana Carone's gifts to Collins, Adams' longtime partner, totaled between $5,000 and $55,000 in 2023, per Collins' annual financial disclosure, which offers only ranges as opposed to exact dollar figures. The disclosure, which Collins is required to file as a senior city government official, describes the gifts from Diana Carone as being for "leisure activities." It doesn't specify when or where the outings took place.

There's no indication the gifts violate any laws. But government ethics watchdogs say their timing — coming as Frank Carone's firm was already representing private entities with city government business interests — creates a situation that highlights why they believe laws around gifts to public officials should be stricter.

There are laws on the books barring spouses of lobbyists from treating city officials with gifts. However, Carone and his Oaktree Solutions firm's employees did not become registered lobbyists until this year. Once Carone and his employees registered as lobbyists, his wife became barred from giving any gifts to Collins.

Collins, who works as a senior adviser to the Education Department's deputy chancellor of school leadership, didn't return calls or texts last week. Diana Carone declined to discuss the matter.

Fabien Levy, Adams' spokesman, emailed a statement saying Collins and Diana Carone are "longtime friends" and that the gifts are "associated with activities they shared as friends" throughout 2023. Levy didn't elaborate on the activities or specify the exact monetary value of the gifts.

Frank Carone referred comment to his spokesman Stu Loeser, who wouldn't specify the exact value of the gifts, but said they covered expenses Diana Carone picked up for Collins when they went "places together," including fundraisers for Citymeals on Wheels, a nonprofit Diana Carone serves on the board of that provides food for senior citizens. Loeser wouldn't say whether Diana Carone has continued to give Collins gifts in 2024, but confirmed the pair have been friends for at least a decade.

The gifts to Collins came after Carone left City Hall in late 2022. Within days of exiting the administration, Carone confirmed Oaktree had picked up multiple clients with business interests before the city, including real estate powerhouses SL Green, Related Cos. and the Durst Organization, as well as Northwell, New York's largest health care provider.

City ethics law prohibits the spouse of a lobbyist from giving "any gift which has any value whatsoever" to "any public servant."

Carone, though, wasn't a registered lobbyist in 2023. He told Politico shortly after leaving City Hall he was only providing advice to his clients with city business and would potentially register as a lobbyist later. On Jan. 1, 2024, Carone and several Oaktree employees formally registered to lobby both city and state officials on behalf of private interests, including ones vying for Education Department funding, city gifts in '23 to mayor's girlfriend filings show.

Rachel Fauss, senior policy adviser at the Reinvent Albany watchdog group, said the situation underscores why she believes the law needs to be tightened so the spouse gift ban also covers consultants who advise and represent private firms with city business dealings.

"When you have people who are trying to influence the city, even if they aren't registered lobbyists, and they or their spouses are giving gifts of a big size like this to city officials, it doesn't look good," Fauss said.

Conflicts of Interest Board Executive Director Carolyn Miller, whose agency enforces city ethics law, declined to comment, citing confidentiality protocols barring her from opining on specific activities outside of enforcement actions.

Among the dozens of clients that Oaktree has registered to lobby Adams administration officials in 2024 is NOLA, a company seeking funding for a "STEM education program" in the city, public filings say. As part of that contract, Oaktree is being paid $10,000 monthly to lobby Sheena Wright, Adams' first deputy mayor, who is city Schools Chancellor David Banks' longtime partner.

Oaktree has also this year lobbied for Big Dreams Child Care Center, a Brooklyn day care. Oaktree's public disclosures don't yet list any specific city officials it has lobbied on behalf of Big Dreams, but the contract relates to "education" and "budget" matters, paperwork says.

Collins has worked at the Education Department for decades, mostly as a principal, per payroll records. After Adams became mayor, Collins was promoted to her senior adviser post in July 2022.

The school leadership division where Collins serves as a senior adviser oversees all of the city's school district superintendents as well as the Education Department's literacy efforts. Department spokesman Nathaniel Styer said Collins doesn't have any direct authority over agency contracts with private vendors, though.

Term-limited East Side Councilman Keith Powers (main) intends to run for Manhattan borough president next year, becoming the first candidate to mount a 2025 campaign for the post. He would replace incumbent Mark Levine (inset), who has filed paperwork in the race for city comptroller.

I want to be borough prez

Councilman who 'loves' Manhattan throws his hat in ring

BY CHRIS SOMMERFELDT
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Councilman Keith Powers has registered to run for Manhattan borough president next year, becoming the first candidate to mount a 2025 campaign for the post.

Mark Levine, the incumbent Manhattan borough president, filed paperwork last week to run for city comptroller in 2025, leaving the BP spot up for picking in next June's Democratic primary elections. Levine's announcement, in turn, came after incumbent city Comptroller Brad Lander declared he's running against Mayor Adams next year, an announcement that's causing ripple effects up and down the 2025 ballot.

Powers, who spoke to the Daily News exclusively about his bid to succeed Levine, said he opened up a Manhattan borough president account with the city Campaign Finance Board over the weekend, allowing him to start raising money for the 2025 run.

"I love Manhattan unequivocally and want to make sure that we're building a better future for everyone from Battery Park to Washington Heights," Powers said. "Whether it's preserving affordable housing, helping small businesses, investing in local parks or tackling quality-of-life issues, I am proud of what we've achieved in the City Council and want to continue that work across Manhattan."

Powers said he has already lined up contracts to have Red Horse Strategies, Global Strategy Group, Dynamic SRG and political consultant Alex Navarro-McKay work on his borough president campaign. The three firms and Navarro-McKay all have experience working on BP races.

Powers is likely to need to hit the fundraising trail, as he has less than $60,000 in his Council campaign coffers. He'll probably be able to roll most of that over into his borough president account.

It remains to be seen whether any other politicians will mount bids for Manhattan borough president. Sources have said state Sen. Brad Hoylman-Sigal, Assemblyman Alex Bores, Assemblywoman Grace Lee and Assemblywoman Linda Rosenthal are also considering runs.

Powers, who has represented a slice of Manhattan's East Side in the City Council since 2018, can't run for another four years in the legislative chamber when his term is up at the end of 2025 due to term limits.

His borough president aspirations received an immediate boost from Council Deputy Speaker Diana Ayala, who represents a section of uptown Manhattan and is influential in city politics.

"He's a measured, thoughtful leader with knowledge about not just Manhattan, but legislation and land use matters," Ayala said, noting that land use in particular is an issue borough presidents have significant sway over. "Keith loves the borough and knows the borough."

Powers served as the Council's majority leader between January 2022 and this past January, when Speaker Adrienne Adams (D-Queens) tapped Bronx Councilwoman Amanda Farias to take over that role.

Since then, Powers has served as chairman of the Council's Rules Committee, which is in charge of confirming certain mayoral nominations. He's expected to play a prominent role in the confirmation hearings this month on the mayor's controversial nomination of Giuliani administration alum Randy Mastro to become the city's next top attorney.

Powers' legislative record in the Council includes crafting a bill passed in late 2023 that prohibits landlords from running criminal background checks on prospective tenants. Powers and other supporters of the bill have argued such background checks result in housing discrimination against renters with criminal histories.

Beyond the borough president race, Powers' announcement carries consequences for other races on the 2025 ballot.

In announcing he's running to succeed Levine, Powers puts pressure on the incumbent BP to stick with his comptroller aspirations rather than run for reelection. A source close to Levine told The News last week he's not yet all in on the comptroller bid and could still shift gears and run for reelection.

The ripple effect from Powers' announcement could also impact the 2025 mayoral race, as Levine staying in the comptroller race would make it tougher for Lander to drop his campaign to challenge Adams. Last month, Lander declined to absolutely rule out the prospect of running for reelection instead should things not pan out with his mayoral bid.

SANTOS: HEY, WHAT DO YOU THINK OF ME?

Suggesting the jury pool in his fraud trial is irrevocably tainted, the disgraced ex-congressman (above) wants them all to say what they think of him in writing. BARRY WILLIAMS FOR NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Ex-pol wants all prospective jurors to fill out questionnaire

BY JOHN ANNESE
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

As George Santos' fraud trial fast approaches, the former Republican congressman wants prospective jurors to fill out a questionnaire to determine what they already think of him — but prosecutors argue that the request comes too late and that Santos thirsts for the very spotlight he complains about.

In court filings last week, Santos' defense team pointed to the more than 1,500 articles they found in several newspapers and to a flurry of media references — including comedian Bowen Yang's impression of the former politician on "Saturday Night Live."

"For all intents and purposes, Santos has already been found guilty in the court of public opinion. Since December 2022, Santos has been relentlessly criticized by the media, often being branded as deceitful, fraudulent, a 'liar,' 'fraud,' and 'con artist,'" his lawyers wrote.

They also pointed out that the court required jury questionnaires in the criminal trials of Donald Trump, former Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort and Derek Chauvin, the former Minnesota police officer convicted of killing George Floyd.

"Specifically, the media often portrays [Santos] in a negative light as a liar, fraud, and manipulator," his lawyers wrote. "Outlets have gone so far as to say 'Santos lies like people breathe' while alleging a multitude of 'cons and deceptions.'"

Prosecutors pushed back hard against the request, arguing that 850 prospective jurors have already been told to report to the federal courthouse in Long Island for the start of Santos' trial on Sept. 9.

"The government is aware of no mechanism to require those jurors to appear at an earlier time for the purpose of completing a questionnaire; Santos' request, therefore, is effectively to adjourn the trial," federal prosecutors wrote on Friday, adding that Santos could have made the request months ago.

Prosecutors also called the publicity surrounding Santos "largely a product of his own making" and said he should not be rewarded for "deliberate and self-serving attempts to gain notoriety."

"The impropriety of granting Santos' request is especially clear in light of what Santos has spent the past nine months doing, namely, courting the press and ginning up the very media attention he now laments may unfairly influence jurors," prosecutors wrote.

They mention a Dec. 18 interview with late-night talk show host Zanele Fumudoh where Santos "boasted that he would continue making public appearances because 'people want the content.'"

Prosecutors listed a number of other high-profile defendants whose cases didn't need written jury questionnaires, including New Jersey Sen. Robert Menendez and "Pharma Bro" Martin Shkreli.

Santos, who lied about nearly every aspect of his life during his successful run for office in 2022, was booted from Congress in December.

He faces multiple fraud and identity-theft charges, including allegations he stole people's identities to make unauthorized charges on campaign donors' credit cards to buy designer clothes and pay personal debts.

Prosecutors are asking to use those lies against him in trial, arguing in a motion earlier this month that "his curated (and false) public persona was central to his congressional campaign and related political activities."

Santos is slated to next appear Tuesday for a pretrial conference before Long Island Federal Judge Joanna Seybert.

2 cops charged in loan fraud

Mom & cousin of one of officers also face pandemic-era raps

BY JOHN ANNESE
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Two NYPD detectives and two others orchestrated a COVID-19 fraud scheme that helped more than 65 people illegally apply for small-business pandemic relief funds, federal prosecutors allege.

Detectives John Bolden, 46, of Valley Stream, L.I., and Anthony Carreira, 42, of Staten Island, were charged alongside Bolden's mother and cousin with running the scheme, federal prosecutors in Brooklyn announced Monday.

Bolden, a 19-year NYPD veteran, is suspended without pay, according to an NYPD spokesman. Carreira is now retired from the department, the spokesman said.

Bolden and Carreira owned partnership interests in a tax preparation franchise, and their scheme started in May 2020 at the height of the COVID pandemic, when the federal government started offering the Paycheck Protection Program and other loans to small businesses that had to close their doors. PPP loans would be forgiven if they were spent on job retention efforts and payroll costs.

Bolden happened to hear an audio recording by a fraudster who was giving other tax preparers advice on how to prepare fraudulent Paycheck Protection Program loan applications, the feds allege.

"We all want the bread, but we also want the loan forgiveness. That's the big win," the fraudster said on the 30-minute recording, according to a criminal complaint unsealed Tuesday.

Bolden apparently took that advice to heart, preparing fake applications for himself; Carreira; his mother, Jacqueline Johnson, 78, and his cousin Christian McKenzie, 46, according to the complaint.

Johnson and McKenzie also acted as intermediaries to find more people to apply for bogus loans, and court documents show one instance where Johnson was given a $4,000 cut for her efforts, and another where she demanded a cut from one of their clients.

Bolden and Carreira each got more than $40,000 for inventing "Security Services" and "Armed Security" businesses, while Johnson created a company called "Hair by Jacqueline" and McKenzie concocted a sneaker business called "Chris Kicks," the complaint alleges.

"As alleged, the defendants, including members of law enforcement responsible for upholding the law, defrauded the United States government out of relief funds meant for businesses struggling to survive the pandemic," Brooklyn U.S. Attorney Breon Peace said Monday.

"These arrests are a powerful reminder of this office's resolve to prosecute anyone who violated the public trust and took advantage of the COVID crisis by stealing from relief programs."

Bolden, Johnson and McKenzie were all arraigned Monday in Brooklyn Federal Court and ordered released on $25,000 bail.

Carreira has agreed to surrender at a later date, the feds said. He made headlines in 2019 when he and five other cops were transferred out of the 66th Precinct after the department received federal civil rights complaints accusing them of creating a "frat house" culture of persistent racist bullying in their unit.

Retired Detective Anthony Carreira is one of cops who allegedly orchestrated COVID fraud scheme. NYDN EXCLUSIVE

BROADWAY

Sutton Foster hoisted to the hilt in "Once Upon a Mattress" at the Hudson Theatre. JOAN MARCUS

SUTTON SURE SHAKES IT

Tour de force of physical comedy in 'Once Upon a Mattress'

Summer stock and seasonal shtick abound in the Broadway transfer of the 1959 musical "Once Upon a Mattress," a production from City Center that will make Broadway fans wonder when and how Sutton Foster, the all-singing, all-dancing musical theater star, morphed into Carol Burnett at the Renaissance Faire.

Foster's take on Princess Winnifred the Woebegone, whose kingdom is the swamp, certainly embraces the kind of physical comedy Americans used to watch on their tiny living room TVs. Oldsters might think of Johnny Carson's The Mighty Carson Art Players as they watch the ever-game Foster wriggle and jiggle, squeeze and shape-shift and generally transfer all of the energy that used to be distributed throughout her body into her haunches. She keeps her chin down and her signature aw-shucks grin in place, and if you're into that kind of funster thing, you'll have a blast. Not sure I ever saw a show that featured so much of the star's rear end. Even Burnett, who originated the role, demurred.

I can't say I've ever fallen in love like some with "Once Upon a Mattress," an adaptation of the 1835 Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale "The Princess and the Pea" and as collectively penned (for another era) by Mary Rodgers (music), Marshall Barer (lyrics and book) and Jay Thompson and Dean Fuller (book). But the (formerly) squeaky-clean show set in the 1400s has legions of fans, a consequence of being so often presented by high schools over the last 65 years. So many people have sung the one-joke signature number, "Shy," you could argue this show has been far better than therapy for several generations of introverts.

Even as revised and mildly rehabilitated by Amy Sherman-Palladino (a creator of "Gilmore Girls"), "Once Upon a Mattress" remains a family attraction, PG for some. A 10ish-year-old girl near me giggled delightedly every time Foster either wiggled her butt or raised so much as an eyebrow. Another five years and she'd likely feel differently about princesses and peas and thank heavens for that.

But then a certain retro innocence long has been the charm of a piece now aimed at that sweetest of Broadway profitability: moms and daughters. And I suspect this new, not-that-different version is also a gambit to get more licenses in the educational market.

On Broadway, this whole Lear deBessonnet production from City Center (now with some cast changes) really is a pretty slight and seems to be saying, "Hey, it's August and we're all just having fun with our pals here on this low-budget set doing a show you loved when you were a happy little theater kid. We got air conditioning and it's hot outside! Don't be so judgy, people!"

Michael Urie, having just played Sir Robin in the now-closed "Spamalot," largely gets to do it again as the spindly Prince Dauntless, as daunted by a search for both a princess and emancipation from his mom, the overbearing Queen Aggravain, jovially if unwaveringly played by Ana Gasteyer as a blend of Meryl Streep as Anna Wintour and a pantomime dame, assuming that's not the same thing. The narrator is the sandpaper-dry Daniel Breaker, who skillfully plays the normative character this kind of broad comedy needs. He's essential.

Brooks Ashmanskas does some magic tricks as the Wizard and barely needs to break a sweat. Will Chase strolls out and leading-mans it as a zesty Sir Harry, Nikki Renée Daniels gets through the night as Lady Larken and David Patrick Kelly does his level best with King Sextimus, a mute character past his sell-by date.

The Hudson Theatre certainly isn't filled to the brim with spectacle. As is typical with Encores transfers, the orchestra is onstage where sets used to be, but you do get a few fun puppets and sight gags for your ticket.

Frankly, the best design element is the props: Foster pulls live, furry creatures and all manner of other stuff from her gnarly head of hair. But this is really her chance to show Broadway her physical comedic chops. I've known they were there ever since I first saw her jump to fame in the try-out of "Thoroughly Modern Millie," but she always has kept them in the background.

Not in "Once Upon a Mattress." Not as the above-the-title star climbs all over the signature bedding in search of a pea, or whatever. It takes guts, skill and talent, and Foster always has had all three of those happening at once. She's clearly having a good time and you either jump on the Good Ship Sutton, or you'll keep falling overboard all night long.

Bouncing Bobby off the ballot

We are not fans of restrictive ballot access, believing that candidates with even a modicum of legitimate support should be able to compete for votes. Throwing people off the ballot based on obscure technicalities that New York used to specialize in, like using the wrong color of paper, is dirty pool deployed by party machines to squash insurgents.

That is not the situation with independent presidential contender Robert F. Kennedy, a former New Yorker who moved to Los Angeles years ago and now is falsely claiming his actual residence is in a friend's home in Katonah, in northern Westchester.

Sorry, Bobby, no dice on that one and yesterday Albany state Supreme Court Justice Christina Ryba was wise to agree, rejecting his false assertions and removing him from the ballot.

When RFK Jr. filed his candidacy forms with the Federal Election Commission, as Kamala Harris and Donald Trump also did, he gave his real L.A. address on his documents.

But when he submitted his signatures to put his slate of electors on the New York ballot this fall, he used Katonah. And he doesn't live in Katonah.

According to testimony from the trial held last week before Ryba, Kennedy has slept in the Katonah home once in the last decade. Some home.

Ryba was right to bounce him and his electors from the ballot.

Under the standard most recently set down by the state Court of Appeals, New York's highest court, in the 2001 case of John O'Hara, state Election Law defines residence as "that place where a person maintains a fixed, permanent and principal home and to which he, wherever temporarily located, always

Power of the carrot

Faced with an election loss, an autocrat can generally take one of two paths: moderate his approach and policies in a bid to continue appealing to the electorate, or crack down to show that he won't tolerate this dissent.

The government of Venezuelan President Nicolás Maduro has decidedly gone in the latter direction, intensifying a campaign against political opposition after even friendly governments have raised concerns about Maduro's phony claim of victory in the presidential election late last month. The despot faced off against Edmundo González, largely because opposition leader María Corina Machado had been barred from running. Even without the opposition's most popular politician, all reliable observers had González winning a decisive victory.

Now, The Wall Street Journal reports that the U.S. government is attempting to broker a deal to offer amnesty to Maduro and top allies — who are under investigation on various drug-related and trafficking charges — in exchange for his ceding power. Would this be a satisfying resolution? Not particularly; Maduro deserves some accountability for his actions. Yet sometimes diplomacy is about picking the least bad out of a slate of bad options. Washington should work to finalize this deal, and Maduro should take it. He should learn from history that attempting to suppress public will for long enough rarely turns out well for the oppressor.

The lack of stability in Venezuela impacts New York, as Venezuelans have been the largest number of migrants coming here. A new legitimate government could only bring improvements.

Instead, Maduro is using "Operation Knock intends to return."

An unslept-on couch in a spare room in Katonah is not fixed, it is not permanent, it is not principal and Kennedy has no intention to live out his life on that couch.

The pro-Democratic ticket lawyers who brought the lawsuit got it wrong in saying in their complaint that, "the Constitution provides that when a Presidential Candidate and Vice Presidential Candidate on the same ticket are residents of the same State, the ticket is not eligible for any of that State's Electoral College votes. Here, both Respondent-Candidate Kennedy and his Vice Presidential pick are residents of California, placing California's 54 Electoral College votes — the largest number of any State — out of their reach."

That is incorrect. The 12th Amendment, ratified in 1804 says that "The Electors shall meet in their respective states and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves."

So if RFK Jr. wins the California popular vote, an impossibility over both Harris and Trump, his slate of 54 California's electors can vote for him, but not his running mate, Nicole Shanahan. If no VP candidate gets an Electoral College majority, the Senate picks the winner.

But that assumes that RFK Jr. and Shanahan are on the California ballot. If RFK Jr. used the Katonah address when seeking a ballot spot in other states, he filed a false instrument, as a New York judge has ruled Katonah is not his address. So should Ryba's ruling be upheld, as we expect it will be, officials in 49 other states and D.C. should boot RFK from their ballots as well. Which would be a very good outcome.

Knock" — the regime's name for the effort to round up suspected opposition supporters in late-night raids — taunting both the Venezuelan public and the international community. The intelligence services have gone so far as to make propaganda videos of these raids, set to soundtracks like a rhyme from slasher film "A Nightmare on Elm Street." They know that the objective is to create a generalized climate of fear to keep the population at bay.

Some of the people who have already self-exiled to get away from Maduro's regime will undoubtedly be less than thrilled about the prospect of the former president having the red carpet rolled out to do the same, where he'll likely get to enjoy a leisurely retirement among some of the very people his government persecuted and antagonized. Some people still in Venezuela will likewise find it infuriating to see the man go without repercussions in the country he and his predecessor Hugo Chávez helped sink into economic despondency despite extraordinary domestic riches, while the top-level cronies made off with the bags.

Nonetheless, if that's what gets Maduro to accept the election results, step aside and allow the Venezuelan public to rebuild some of its civic and political life, so be it. This is all much more straightforward if he can be convinced to voluntarily relinquish power; otherwise, it's not clear how exactly the true results of the election could be vindicated. After all, elections matter only inasmuch as those with the power to make them matter agree to do so. Only once this sordid chapter is closed can the country hope to embark on a brighter and more democratic path.

Building out to fix NYC's problems

BE OUR GUEST
BY MARIA TORRES-SPRINGER

In a city as big and influential as New York, a mayoral administration's legacy is often judged by the boldness of the projects it advanced. What big ideas did they think up to solve the problems of their day? And how did they benefit the next generation of New Yorkers? Using these criteria, just two and a half years into the first term of Mayor Adams, I am confident that history will judge us well.

Every administration faces monumental challenges. The Bloomberg administration, for example, was handed a city with shattered confidence and an uncertain future in the wake of the Sept. 11 attack. They responded by building the city back up and their boldness buoyed the economy and gave the world a reason to believe in New York again.

Our administration has faced a different challenge: a city still reeling from the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic, which exacerbated an affordability crisis, changed the trajectory of our economy, and made it even harder for low- and middle-income New Yorkers to stay in the city they called home.

Too often, approaches to development have been neighborhood or site-specific. Headline-grabbing projects were often synonymous with progress. But there's another way: one that is foundational, citywide, and comes with an unwavering commitment — above all else — to creating opportunity across every neighborhood. This doesn't mean running away from bold projects, but it does mean ensuring that every project leads to the deeper and more lasting affordability that our times demand.

Our strategy starts with rewiring the foundation of our city to ensure opportunity can finally spread across the five boroughs. Our historic "City of Yes" initiatives will upend outdated zoning for the first time in decades to protect our environment, grow small and modern businesses, and build badly needed housing that has been blocked by restrictive and discriminatory rules.

These efforts will be bolstered by ambitious neighborhood plans, our back-to-back record-breaking years in creating new affordable homes, historic investments in NYCHA, and projects like Willets Points, the city's largest affordable housing project in nearly 40 years.

We're also building new economic engines in every corner of our city. Just look along our waterways, and you'll see our efforts to build climate innovation centers on Governors Island and the Brooklyn Army Terminal, create a new life sciences hub in Kips Bay, transform more than 100 acres at the Brooklyn Marine Terminal in Red Hook, finally redevelop the Kingsbridge Armory, electrify the markets at Hunts Point, and deliver thousands of jobs to the North Shore of Staten Island. We've designed these projects with tangible onramps for underserved New Yorkers to learn and train in emerging fields.

What makes our approach most fitting for our time, however, is our efforts to deliver opportunities to New Yorkers right now. That's why we've brought hiring halls directly to underserved neighborhoods. We've also launched a community hiring effort that will leverage city contracts to create new jobs for economically-disadvantaged New Yorkers. And we've awarded billions of dollars to nearly 2,000 minority- and women-owned business enterprise-certified firms — the most in the city's history.

Why am I so confident in the success of our approach? Because it's already working; we've driven down unemployment for Black and Latino New Yorkers by approximately 30%, created more small businesses than any time in our city's history, and have continued to break our own jobs records.

Equally as telling, our approach is on pace to outbuild — by magnitudes — strategies of the past. The number of homes projected to be built by our citywide and neighborhood zoning efforts is more than double the projection during the Bloomberg administration's 12 years in office, and more than quadruple the projection of the de Blasio administration's eight. This monumental achievement will serve generations of New Yorkers long after we leave office.

Our strategy isn't about building up, it's about building out. Building out to embed opportunity into the foundation of our city, create brand new ways to participate in our economy, and meet every New Yorker where they are so they can prosper in the promise of New York City. If that isn't bold, I don't know what is.

Torres-Springer is New York City's deputy mayor for housing, economic development, and workforce.

BRAMHALL'S WORLD

Bramhall'24
NYDN

A 400th birthday for the world's greatest city

One day in early 1975, New York City aged nearly 50 years.

Then-mayor Abe Beame signed a City Council bill backdating the founding year on the city flag to 1625, when the first Dutch colonial settlers erected a fort in a fledgling company trading post called New Amsterdam at the southern end of Manhattan.

The bill stripped from the British the distinction of having established America's largest and most important city, as it expunged the flag's previous date of 1664, the year English forces took over the settlement at the muzzle of a cannon.

So, with the stroke of the London-born Beame's pen, New York became the oldest city in America, surpassing Boston, founded in 1630, and Philadelphia, founded in 1682.

More to the point, the change to the historical record signaled that New York's cosmopolitan character derives not from the British imperial crown, but from socially liberal Dutch Holland. New Netherlands' transactional business-minded culture, multi-ethnic population, religious tolerance, linguistic twists, geography and architecture are all baked in.

Because New York City's 400th anniversary in 2025 is approaching, the city has an opportunity to celebrate its history with a huge outdoor party, along with educational events like the recent New-York Historical Society exhibit on New Amsterdam.

Dangled before New Yorkers by Mayor Adams early this year in his State of the City address, such a commemoration would hold particular relevance since polls suggest many Americans (predominantly supporters of Donald Trump) believe the U.S. is a Christian nation — forgetting perhaps that it consisted, from the beginning, of immigrants from around the globe.

In ol' New Amsterdam, 18 different languages could be heard, and an array of religious practices were freely exercised, although only members of the Dutch Reformed Church were permitted to worship outside their homes in the initial years.

In addition to Hollanders were Belgium Walloons, Germans, Scandinavians and Africans — both free and enslaved — working, and drinking, themselves to exhaustion or trading for lucrative beaver pelts or bear skins with the area's indigenous tribes. Given the trading port's focus on profits and growth, people of different stripes found ways to get along with one another, and the colonial directors were lenient with lawbreakers.

Far to the north of tiny New Amsterdam, by contrast, the English Puritans or Pilgrims were burning Quakers at the stake, as Council President Paul O'Dwyer said during the debate over the bill, of which he was the main sponsor.

While we remember the seventh and final director-general of the Dutch holding, Peter Stuyvesant, as stubborn and punitive, he yielded to a statement from Quakers seeking the right to openly practice their religion. This, the Flushing Remonstrance of 1657, helped infuse religious freedom throughout the colonies, creating a path toward the codification of individual rights in the Declaration of Independence at the start of the War of Independence.

O'Dwyer grew up in the rural west of Ireland when his countrymen waged their own war of independence after WWI against British colonial misrule. He was known around New York as both a champion of underdogs and an Anglophobe. But in this unusual legislative debate, he stressed the importance of giving weight to democratic liberties in the tradition of New York's original forebears from the Netherlands.

Though he'd go on to write, in the 1980s, that the Dutch, French, British and Spanish all carried to the Americas "their national rivalries, perpetuating their racial and religious hatreds," and he scorned New Amsterdam's third director Peter Minuit for laying claim to the wilds of Manhattan for a supposed $24 in goods or guilders, he did not highlight the famous swindling of the native tribes or their subsequent decimation in the legislative debate.

When, in the end, it was O'Dwyer's turn to speak at the Jan. 8 bill-signing ceremony at City Hall, he understood that Beame had more pressing matters on his mind, most notably the city's mounting debts and the worries of the banking community. But the mayor had already determined that approving the bill would be no more expensive than the cost of printing a new series of city flags for parades and inaugurals.

He left it to the white-maned O'Dwyer to explain the reason for the date change.

"There is more to New York than large buildings, and there is more to New York than financial institutions," the council president said in his Irish brogue. "...[T] here is a history — and there is a soul."

Polner and Tubridy are the authors of "An Irish Passion for Justice: The Life of Rebel New York Attorney Paul O'Dwyer," published by Cornell University Press/Three Hills.

RFK Jr. offers an escape from our binary system

Scranton, Pa.: Re “A guaranteed loser” (editorial, Aug. 6): Contrary to its dismissive portrayal, Robert F. Kennedy Jr. represents a refreshing and much-needed departure from the political status quo. Labeling him an opportunist misses the broader appeal and significance of his candidacy.

Kennedy’s campaign resonates with a diverse coalition of voters disillusioned by the current two-party system. His independence from both major parties allows him to address issues without the typical partisan constraints. This unrestricted approach is evident in his environmental advocacy, his commitment to restoring civil liberties and his call for transparency in government — all issues that have been sidelined by the establishment. Kennedy’s stance on health freedom and vaccine safety has been unfairly characterized as fringe. These positions reflect a growing public concern over corporate influence in public health, especially post-pandemic. He isn’t indulging in conspiracy theories, he is raising legitimate questions about the unchecked power of pharmaceutical companies and advocating for informed consent — a principle at the center of ethical medical practice.

Kennedy’s foreign policy positions offer a compelling alternative to the entrenched militarism that has dominated U.S. politics for decades. His calls for diplomacy over intervention and his critiques of endless wars resonate with a wide array of Americans who are tired of seeing their country embroiled in conflicts that drain resources and cost lives. Kennedy is not beholden to the defense industry or aggressive foreign policy advisors, giving him the freedom to pursue a more peaceful and sustainable international agenda.

The suggestion that Kennedy is simply a “sideshow” represents dismissive propaganda and ignores the depth of his platform, as well as the substantive issues he brings to the table.

How 'bout now?

White Plains, N.Y.: I have to laugh every time I hear Kamala Harris talking about how she is going to stop high inflation and crime when she gets elected president. Doesn't she realize she is still in office as vice president and hasn't done anything to stop inflation or crime? When she was a prosecutor, she helped bail out criminals. If she hasn't done her job for about three years on these problems, why should anyone believe her now? I think they would be crazy to believe anything she claims she is going to do.

Joan Cocurullo

More migrants

Bronx: We all know NYC is going to overwhelmingly vote for Harris. A question for the people of the city: What are you going to say when the next wave of 100,000 migrants arrives? Understand that this will mean, once again, the poorest parts of this city will get more shelters. The poorest people will be the first to suffer as city services will have to be cut. It will cost more than $5 billion when the next round of migrants comes. We shouldn't hear anyone complain, as you already know what you're voting for. How are you preparing for your community becoming more dangerous?

Stephen Hill

Plan in place

Bronx: Vice President Kamala Harris attacked Donald Trump on immigration, reminding an Arizona audience that the former president pressured Senate Republicans from scrapping a bill supported by a bipartisan coalition and the ultra-conservative speaker. She must take the next move. She should promise to sign the bill if it is sent back to her desk as president, as President Biden was poised, however reluctantly, to do. Despite not having the upper hand in immigration polls versus Trump, Democrats and Harris have substantially closed the gap since becoming the Democratic nominee. A commitment to sign this bill if elected will put pressure directly on Trump to speak beyond mass deportation.

Donnell B. Russell

Blue buzz

San Francisco: Not since Barack Obama ran in 2008 have we seen a candidate capture the imagination, hopes and dreams of a large portion of the country. While Grandpa Trump keeps singing the same old song, Harris and Tim Walz are projecting a positive vision for the future. The 18-34 demographic has been activated and energized like we haven't seen in a long time. Hopefully, Democrats will not only hold the presidency, but will also hold the Senate and regain the House of Representatives. Godspeed.

Territorial greed

Providence, R.I.: Re “80 die in Israel strike” (Aug. 11): Where do prospects flourish least? / Clearly,

Felicia Nimue Ackerman

Ally or albatross?

Highland Falls, N.Y.: Israel will just use smaller, though still American-made, bombs to hit schools and mosques sheltering Gazans already chased from their homes. And it will make sure the world knows the carnage, though too graphic for American cable TV news, was caused by American bombs, while claiming a search for “ Hamas commanders” of which Hamas seems to have an infinite supply. It's an all-win situation for Israel. They get to continue their campaign to depopulate Gaza with American help, they ensure the Arab world largely continues to hate America, and they force America to continue the supply of weapons so as not to lose its “only friend” in the Middle East. With friends like these...

Joe Cyr

Dome disparity

Bronx: To Voicer Robert Kitay: Thank you for your letter regarding roofs and domes on baseball stadiums to avoid rainouts; totally spot-on and I'm glad I'm not the only one speaking on this. Along with the issue of double headers (which are not always planned and scheduled) comes the stats and standings of MLB teams, which affects them all. Two teams within a division, Team A and Team B, are tied for first place, each having scheduled games against different opponents in different locations. Team A plays its scheduled game in either clear outdoor weather or in a rooftop dome and wins their game. Meanwhile, Team B's game is postponed due to rain and the location has no rooftop. This gives Team A sole possession of first place by default. And if that's not serious enough, what if this was the last day of the regular season? Michael S. Wilbekin

Merit-based

Ridgewood, N.J.: We will achieve equality in America when individuals are hired or placed in positions of responsibility based on skills, ability and past performance and terminated when they fail in their positions. This is true equality — not an application based on ethnicity, gender, race, etc. Ed Houlihan

One true flag

Bronx: There is only one official flag of the U.S.A.: Old Glory, also known as the Grand Union Flag, since 1776 is the only flag that should be displayed in any government building. Take down those others, like gay stuff, LGBTQ, whatever they want to be called now, thin blue lines and “lives matter” — whatever color — and even the POW/MIA flags. Don't weaponize the continental colors. I'm just saying as a vet!

Kevin Riese

Cruel cuffing

Bronx: Tresean Gilchrist was wounded by a stray shot at a shooting in Harlem on July 13. He suffered a gunshot wound to the stomach, suffered a traumatic brain injury when he fell while trying to flee the shooting, flatlined during emergency surgery and later had a leg amputated due to an infection. After his initial surgery, it was discovered that there was an outstanding arrest warrant on him for jumping a subway turnstile. He was handcuffed and shackled to his bed, and a cop was stationed outside his room. The restraints were removed on July 16 after the arrest warrant was vacated. He remained in a coma and died recently. I get how procedure works, but was all that really necessary? Instead of doing something sensible and humane, the NYPD always manages to do something to make things worse. Small wonder why people say “defund the police.” Jonathan Solomon

Grave injustice

Newton, N.J.: I am absolutely sickened by the actions of attorney Alan Stutman and Judge Vincent Del Giudice in their handling of the Arvel Marshall murder case (“Innocent man is freed in slaying,” Aug. 10). They, along with the prosecution at the time, conspired to railroad this man into a conviction when they knew the evidence proved his innocence. Del Giudice, in particular, is guilty of criminal incompetence. He, not the city, should pay Marshall restitution. His arrogance is disgusting.

Blink discount gyms file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy

BY JOSEPH WILKINSON
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Blink Fitness, the discount gym chain owned by Equinox, filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy Monday.

Blink is the latest low-cost gym to file for bankruptcy in the wake of the pandemic, following in the distressed footsteps of 24 Hour Fitness, Gold's Gym and Town Sports International.

The company listed between $100 million and $500 million worth of assets and between $100 million and $500 million in debt in its bankruptcy filing in Delaware, according to Bloomberg.

Blink, which has 60 of its 101 nationwide gyms in New York, plans to continue operating its various locations during the bankruptcy process, according to a press release.

"We are excited to see our members in the gym day in and day out as we reinvigorate our most popular locations and elevate the member experience," the company said on its bankruptcy website.

Blink recently received $21 million in additional funding and plans to explore a sale during the bankruptcy process, according to the press release.

"A sale of the business is the best path forward for Blink and will help ensure Blink remains the destination for all people seeking an inclusive, community-focused gym," President and CEO Guy Harkless said in the press release.

Equinox created Blink in 2011 as a cheaper alternative to its famously high-priced gyms.

While Equinox memberships could cost as much as $40,000 a year, Blink memberships were as cheap as $15 a month. The gym rapidly expanded throughout New York, opening locations in various boroughs, in upstate counties and on Long Island.

But revenue cratered at many gyms during the COVID-19 pandemic, and not all customers returned after things reopened. Blink claimed its own revenues had increased 40% in the past two fiscal years, but that wasn't enough to save the company from bankruptcy.

Equinox was not immune to the crunch. Back in March, the company obtained $1.8 billion in financing to restructure various loans.

Chapter 11 bankruptcy allows companies to continue operating while restructuring their business and paying off debts. It is less disastrous than Chapter 7 bankruptcy, in which a company fails completely and sells off its assets to creditors.

Hit-run driver leaves Manhattan man in critical condition

A hit-and-run driver ran a red light in Manhattan early Monday, striking and badly injuring a 30-year-old man crossing the street, police said.

The victim was taken by medics to Bellevue Hospital in critical condition.

The suspect, driving a dark-colored sedan, is being sought.

The collision happened at 2:45 a.m. as the victim was crossing Eighth Ave. at W. 49th St.

Police said the suspect was heading north on the avenue when the victim was struck.

Woman raped, boyfriend attacked near Boardwalk in Coney Island

BY ROCCO PARASCANDOLA
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

A woman was raped at knifepoint by a stranger next to Brooklyn's Coney Island Boardwalk, cops said Monday.

The 46-year-old victim, who is not from the city, had been staying temporarily under the Boardwalk though she had previously been living in a shelter, police sources said.

She was forced to the ground at knifepoint by two homeless men near Surf Ave. and W. 10th St. at about 9 p.m. Sunday, cops said.

As one of the men raped her the other fought off her 34-year-old boyfriend, who tried to intervene, striking him with an object, cops said.

Cops arrested David Davon-Bonilla, 24, for rape, assault, sex abuse and weapon possession. Police also arrested Leovando Marino, 37, who was charged with felony assault and weapon possession for allegedly attacking the victim's boyfriend.

Medics took the woman to Coney Island Hospital in stable condition. Her boyfriend declined medical attention.

Davon-Bonilla was previously convicted of sexual assault in April 2023 and had only been on the streets for about two months before Monday's rape. He was set free as part of a plea deal this past June when the victim, a recent migrant, was hesitant to testify against him, according to law enforcement sources.

The earlier assault occurred at a La Quinta Inn in Gowanus, Brooklyn, that was being used as a migrant shelter, according to police records. It's not clear if either Davon-Bonilla or his previous victim resided at the shelter at the time.

Man jumps on car at Dominican Day Parade, stabs driver

A reveler at the Dominican Day Parade in Midtown was busted for stabbing a 65-year-old man who objected to the suspect jumping on his car, police said Monday.

Joshua Canero, 20, is charged with felony assault, criminal mischief and resisting arrest.

Police say Canero, who was at the parade on Sixth Ave., jumped on the victim's vehicle in celebration near W. 45th St. and Eighth Ave. about 2:35 p.m. on Sunday, sparking an argument.

As the quarrel escalated, Canero allegedly swung a knife at the angry driver, cutting him on the face, left ear and right hand.

The victim was taken to Mount Sinai West hospital in stable condition.

Your HOROSCOPE

BY TAROT.COM

For Tuesday, August 13

New information has the potential to disrupt our comfort. As the probing Scorpio Moon opposes unpredictable Uranus, we should be careful about asking questions we don't really want answered. If we're up for the challenge, we might enjoy the opportunity to dream big. After the Moon shifts into Sagittarius, we can flesh out any spontaneous brainstorming. Figuring out the details may be the hard part when Luna then squares practical Mercury.

ARIES

MARCH 21-APRIL 19
You might finally be ready to break away from someone who has been too needy. Cutting your losses and ending the arrangement ASAP is likely the ideal move. However, the experience doesn't have to be a total wash. Try to distill any lessons you've learned from this upsetting situation.

LIBRA

SEPT. 23-OCT. 22
Which resources have you come to rely upon lately? Perhaps you're utilizing something that was never entirely yours to begin with, but someone else found it convenient enough to share. Although it's understandable you'd be disappointed, you probably aren't totally powerless.

TAURUS

APRIL 20-MAY 20
Shaking up a too-close relationship dynamic could seem inevitable now. You may not relish the emotional upheaval even if you're the one seemingly causing it. Finding a modern equilibrium with the other person might eventually be possible, but it'll ask something from you.

SCORPIO

OCT. 23-NOV. 21
The thought of a loved one leaving you might be too difficult to bear. You may be tempted to use an emotional display, genuine or not, to tug on their heartstrings. The situation has the potential to become more public than you prefer, so be careful to live in line with your values.

GEMINI

MAY 21-JUNE 20
Paying attention to the mundane side of your life can open your eyes. Unfortunately, your attempt to relay certain stories to a loved one may not go over well. This type of reaction probably doesn't mean that they have negative intentions. Some people are not on your wavelength — and that's their loss.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV. 22-DEC. 21
Taking a break from your regular routine would be a sensible move right now. It's okay to decide that preparing for an upcoming event is your top priority for the time being. Although untangling yourself from your normal responsibilities can be inconvenient, you'll find that most things can wait.

CANCER

JUNE 21-JULY 22
Your social life could be especially zany. At some point, all things considered, you will have to return to your regular routine. It probably won't be fun to call a halt when you're having a good time. Just get to your point, and go when you must.

CAPRICORN

DEC. 22-JAN. 19
Showing your peers an idiosyncratic side of yourself is possible. Still, even if this is a good choice for valid reasons, you might wind up exhausted. The reactions you receive may not match your expectations, so you'll potentially want to know what you found surprising and why.

LEO

JULY 23-AUG. 22
Someone else could be using unpredictable behavior to maintain control over you. Should you call them out? That depends on what you value most. Pure candor can jeopardize your access to resources. Think carefully about what you're getting out of the arrangement.

AQUARIUS

JAN. 20-FEB. 18
Looking to the outside world for emotional security might be appealing today. Perhaps your private sphere feels uncomfortably unsettled. Focusing your energy outward could indeed be fertile ground for potential connections. That said, you'll have to be realistic about the limits.

VIRGO

AUG. 23-SEPT. 22
You're likely curious and eager to feed your intellect today. It's exciting to disrupt prior assumptions. On the other hand, if you dig long enough, you may discover something that challenges a belief you cherish. Your discomfort is worth hearing out, but it shouldn't be the final word on the subject. Focus on the facts.

PISCES

FEB. 19-MARCH 20
Saying something disruptive is more risky than normal. Maybe the idea you'll spout off about is just a passing fancy. Unfortunately, the topic might be quite personal to someone else involved in the conversation. You could wind up learning from the ensuing exchange, but the fallout may harm your reputation. Contemplate whether it's worth it.

CITATION
CASE NUMBER
 FDI-23-797858
NOTICE TO RESPONDENT (Name): Mingzhi Cai
 You have been sued. Read the information below and on the next page. Petitioner's name is: Diego Miranda. You have 30 calendar days after this Summons and Petition are served on you to file a Response (form FL-120) at the court and have a copy served on the petitioner. A letter, phone call, or court appearance will not protect you. If you do not file your Response on time, the court may make orders affecting your marriage or domestic partnership, your property, and custody of your children. You may be ordered to pay support and attorney fees and costs. For legal advice, contact a lawyer immediately. Get help finding a lawyer at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp), at the California Legal Services website (www.lawhelpca.org), or by contacting your local county bar association.

NOTICE—RESTRAINING ORDERS ARE ON PAGE 2: These restraining orders are effective against both spouses or domestic partners until the petition is dismissed, a judgment is entered, or the court makes further orders. They are enforceable anywhere in California by any law enforcement officer who has received or seen a copy of them. FEE WAIVER: If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the clerk for a fee waiver form. The court may order you to pay back all or part of the fees and costs that the court waived for you or the other party.

STANDARD FAMILY LAW RESTRAINING ORDERS
 Starting immediately, you and your spouse or domestic partner are restrained from:
 removing the minor children of the parties from the state or applying for a new or replacement passport for those minor children without the prior written consent of the other party or an order of the court;
 cosigning, borrowing against, canceling, transferring, disposing of, or changing the beneficiaries of any insurance or other coverage, including life, health, automobile, and disability, held for the benefit of the parties and their minor children;

Bombers suffer 10-run loss

BY GARY PHILLIPS
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

CHICAGO — Shortly before the Yankees began a three-game series against the White Sox, Aaron Boone was asked what it's like to play a 28-91 team that's on pace to finish with the worst record in the history of baseball.

"Is it tough coming into a series where if you win, you're supposed to win against a team that's historically bad, and if you lose, it's catastrophic?" a reporter wondered.

"You know, when we don't win, it's usually catastrophic," Boone said, a quip that referenced how some can overreact any time the Yankees lose. "When we do win, it is what it is. We're on a mission to try and be a great team, to be a championship team, and most of us have been around long enough to know that every night you set foot on a big league diamond, you're capable of losing and you're capable of winning. Ultimately, it comes down to you gotta play well.

"If we play well, we should put ourselves in a good position."

The Yankees did not play well on Monday, nor did they put themselves in a good position. Instead, the owner's of one of baseball's better records humiliated themselves against the bottom-feeding White Sox, losing 12-2.

The White Sox had gone 3-27 in their previous 30 games, a stretch that saw them fire manager Pedro Grifol after tying an American League record with 21 straight losses.

There was injury to go along with the insult. Jazz Chisolm Jr. appeared to hurt his elbow while on the basepaths and left the game early before being seen by a doctor. He'll have tests done today, the Yankees announced.

The evening actually started on a positive note for the Bombers, as an Aaron Judge double gave them a quick run in the opening frame. But Luis Gil allowed two in his first inning of work, as ex-Yankee Andrew Benintendi and Gavin Sheets hit their own RBI doubles.

Korey Lee then smoked a 407-foot solo shot in the fourth before Nicky Lopez singled a run home.

In addition to four earned runs, Gil totaled seven hits, two walks, three strikeouts and 98 pitches over four innings. With the Yankees'

Boone excited to manage against ex-mate Sizemore

CHICAGO — With the Yankees playing the White Sox this week, Aaron Boone is managing against a former teammate.

The South Siders are just a few days into Grady Sizemore's managerial career, as the team gave the former center fielder the interim job after firing Pedro Grifol on August 8. The decision came after the White Sox snapped a 21-game losing streak, tying an American League record.

Sizemore joined Chicago's big league staff earlier this season. Only 42, he's now running a team that entered Monday's series-opener with a historically bad 28-91 record.

"I know he got back into the game a couple years ago," Boone said before the game. "So I was excited when he did that and wanted to get back in. And I'm excited he's getting this opportunity. Love the person."

Boone got to know Sizemore well when the two were teammates in Cleveland. The Yankees skipper signed with the club midway through the 2004 season while recovering from the pickup basketball injury that paved the way for Alex Rodriguez's arrival in the Bronx.

Sizemore debuted that season as a 21-year-old, and he and Boone played together in 2005 and 2006.

A highly-touted youngster, Sizemore looked like a superstar in the making in his 20s, as he earned three straight All-Star selections from 2006-2008 and totaled 25.7 Wins Above Replacement from 2004-2008, according to Baseball Reference. He also won two Gold Gloves and a Silver Slugger during that span while hitting .279/.370/.491 with 34 triples, 111 home runs, 349 RBI, 117 stolen bases and a 127 OPS+.

"He was basically a star right from the get-go," Boone said. "I hope people realize how good of a player Grady Sizemore was."

As good as Sizemore was, injuries turned him into a story of what could have been. He never played a full season after 2008, didn't play at all in 2012 and 2013, and ultimately finished his career in 2015 after bouncing around between the Red Sox, Phillies and Rays.

While a lot of baseball fans remember a talent that struggled to stay healthy, Sizemore made a different impression on

Aaron Boone (far l.) and interim White Sox manager Grady Sizemore (far r.) were teammates when they played in Cleveland in 2006. GETTY Boone during their time together.

"He was a great teammate," Boone said. "I loved him. Played the game hard. Was just a really skilled, great athlete, but a really good teammate."

It remains to be seen how long Sizemore will be Chicago's manager, as the club has said it will look at external candidates for the permanent position.

However, Boone may share some advice for the job when the two connect during this series.

"We'll talk, I'm sure, at some point over these few days," he said. "It'll be good to catch up with him."

WEDNESDAY'S PITCHING PLANS TBD

With "TBD" listed as the Yankees' probable pitcher for Wednesday's series finale, Boone said that he still doesn't know who will start. He didn't rule out the possibility of a bullpen game.

The Jets & Joe Douglas should do nothing. Reddick has no choice but to eventually show up or he'll forfeit his entire salary, which he'll never make up on a new deal. The overreaction from everyone is comical. @TheBobStew to historically bad White Sox bullpen spent after a busy Sunday, the righty offered his shortest start since July 2.

Following Gil's departure, ex-White Sox reliever Tim Hill surrendered another RBI double to Sheets. The first baseman added yet another run-scoring two-bagger in the seventh before Dominic Fletcher produced a run with a single.

Chicago didn't stop there, though, as Corey Julks lined an RBI single before Brooks Baldwin smoked a three-run homer. The White Sox totaled six runs in the seventh; all were charged to Enyel De Los Santos.

They added one more in the eighth on a Sheets single that Ben Rice should have fielded at first.

Meanwhile, the Yankees scored a second run in the fifth on an Anthony Volpe single.

Chisholm showed off his speed on that knock, scoring from second despite the ball never getting past Lopez, Chicago's shortstop, in shallow left field. However, Chisholm got roughed up sliding into home, and Ben Rice hit for him in the seventh.

A press box announcement later disclosed that Chisholm suffered a left elbow injury. He saw a White Sox team doctor and is scheduled for imaging on Tuesday.

The Bombers' first two runs came off rookie Ky Bush, but they should have had more considering the southpaw walked seven batters over 4.2 innings.

The Yankees, who have struggled against lefties all year, had a chance to do more damage against Bush in the fourth inning. But with runners on first and second and nobody out, Alex Verdugo popped a bunt up on an 0-1 count. Juan Soto proceeded to groundout, so the Sox intentionally walked Judge to load the bases for Giancarlo Stanton. The move worked, as Stanton struck out on a check swing to end the inning.

Wasted runners doomed the Yankees all evening, as they left 16 on base and went 2-for-18 with men in scoring position against a pitching staff that ranked second to last in ERA, WHIP and FIP before the game began.

Now 70-50, Monday's game represents just one loss for the Yankees in the grand scheme of things. But with the dog days of summer underway, a team with World Series aspirations can't afford to waste too many easy opportunities.

With the Yankees in a tight divisional race with the Orioles, every win matters.

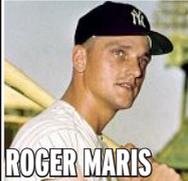

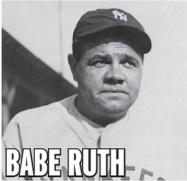

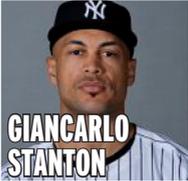

The Yankees will get another chance to look better than baseball's lowliest team on Tuesday when Nestor Cortes takes the mound at Guaranteed Rate Field. Jonathan Cannon, another rookie, will start for Chicago.

Dodgers welcome back Mookie after 2 months

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE — Mookie Betts is back with the Dodgers after missing nearly two months with a broken left hand.

The eight-time All-Star came off the injured list Monday at Milwaukee, playing right field and batting second for the Dodgers. The former leadoff hitter felt right at home in the No. 2 spot, belting a two-run homer to left field off Freddy Peralta with two outs in the third inning.

The Dodgers made room for him by designating utilityman Amed Rosario for assignment.

Betts, who turns 32 on Oct. 7, was batting .304 with a .405 on-base percentage, 10 homers, 40 RBI and nine steals in 72 games when he went on the injured list June 17. Betts suffered the injury when he was hit by a 97.9 mph fastball from Royals reliever Dan Altavilla on June 16.

Although Betts was primarily playing shortstop and batting leadoff before his injury, Dodgers manager Dave Roberts said last week that the team would move him to right field and have him bat second upon his return.

That move would enable two-time AL MVP Shohei Ohtani to remain in the leadoff spot, where he has hit extremely well since Betts' injury.

Rosario, 28, had batted .273 with a .333 on-base percentage, no homers, two RBI and one steal in five games since the Dodgers acquired him from Tampa Bay.

Rays' Pepiot ready to return from spider bite

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PETERSBURG — Rays pitcher Ryan Pepiot could return to the rotation late this week after being hospitalized last month for a knee infection that is believed to be the result of a spider bite during the All-Star break.

Pepiot was admitted to Columbia University Medical Center in New York and received antibiotics in his right knee after he was placed on the 15-day injured list on July 19.

Pepiot picked up some bug bites while playing golf during the break, but made the trip for a series at Yankee Stadium.

The swelling in his knee reached a point where he needed help to walk into the hospital.

"The first couple days, like, when I went into the hospital, it was real bad," Pepiot said before Monday night's game with Houston. "I couldn't put any weight on my right leg. The first few days it was pretty swollen, a lot of fluid, and it was kind of slushy."

Pepiot said the swelling is down, which allowed him to get back on the mound.

A 26-year-old right-hander, Pepiot is 6-5 with a 3.92 ERA in 17 starts. He was acquired from the Dodgers in December as part of the trade that sent right-hander Tyler Glasnow to Los Angeles.

Pepiot last pitched for the Rays on July 14, throwing six innings of two-hit ball in a 2-0 win over Cleveland. He started for Double-A Montgomery on Saturday, and rejoined the team Sunday to continue working out.

He will be adjusting his golfing attire, forgoing shorts.

"I'll be wearing pants whenever I, like, do something outside," Pepiot said. "When I play golf, I get the scenic view of the golf course."

2-GAME BAN FOR SLUR

Duran apologizes for homophobic outburst directed at fan in Boston

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — The Red Sox suspended Jarren Duran for two games on Monday without pay after he shouted a homophobic slur to a fan behind home plate who heckled him in a loss to the Astros a day earlier.

The exchange that was caught on a live mic during the broadcast of the game occurred when Duran — who was 0 for 2 with two strikeouts at that point in the game — was at the plate in the sixth inning. A fan at Fenway Park can be heard shouting "Tennis racket! Tennis racket! You need a tennis racket!"

Duran turned his head toward the fan and replied: "Shut up," followed by a curse word and the slur.

Duran issued an apology through the team Sunday night, saying he "used a truly horrific word" and felt "awful."

Standing in the middle of the clubhouse before he answered questions Monday, Duran started by apologizing to fans that he said reached out to him and said: "they were disappointed in me."

"I'm sorry for my actions and I'm going to work on being better," the 27-year-old outfielder said.

President and chief executive officer Sam Kennedy said the club was in touch with major-league baseball after the game.

"It's a really difficult day, disappointing," Kennedy said, speaking to the media directly outside the clubhouse. "I'm proud of the way the organization addressed the situation and I'm proud of Jarren for acknowledging his horrific mistake."

Standing next to Kennedy, chief baseball officer Craig Breslow said the team still had work to do.

"I think it is striking evidence that while we have made strides and done great work, we haven't done nearly enough," he said. "I think that an incident like this is an important reminder that there's ton of progress that still needs to be made."

Duran said the fan had been "heckling me the entire game and I said something I shouldn't have said."

Duran said he immediately turned and apologized to home plate umpire Jordan Baker and Houston catcher Yainer Diaz "for my actions. They were right there, they heard me say it. I'm assuming they cut the mic because of my inappropriate word."

Red Sox manager Alex Cora said: "there's a lot of work to be done and I'm here to help him out."

Cora said he had spoken to Duran during the day.

"He made a big mistake, he's living with it, right," Cora said. "As a manager, I've got to do my job. As a person, there's more from my end. ... It's what I can do as a person to support him and help him to be better."

Duran had played in all of the team's games so far this season, hitting mostly leadoff and is one of the club's top players, batting .291 with 14 homers and 58 RBI. He was the MVP of the All-Star game in Texas, the fifth Red Sox player to win the award.

He said there was no intent behind the word, and it was just "the heat of the moment."

"I think what's more important is what happens going forward," Kennedy said. "We've worked really hard the past two and half decades to make sure that Fenway Park is a place where everyone is welcome."

The Red Sox said in a statement that Duran's salary during the suspension would be donated to PFLAG (Federation of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays).

The exchange with the fan came after Duran was honored during a pregame ceremony as the team's recipient of the Heart and Hustle Award, which recognizes one player per team who "demonstrates a passion for the game and best embodies its values, spirit, and traditions."

"I think the suspension is just discipline and we need to hold people accountable," Kennedy said. "What I would like to see is more education, more understanding, more dialogue around the negative impact of hate speech."

Because the team suspended him, the Red Sox were allowed to fill his roster spot.

Jarren Duran's pay will be donated to the Federation of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays as he sits out two-game suspension for homophobic slur. GETTY

REDDICK DOESN'T WANT TO BE A JET

Pass rusher who Gang got in deal with Eagles has already requested a trade

BY ANTWAN STALEY
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

The Haason Reddick saga continues to take an ugly turn for the Jets.

On Monday, Reddick informed the Jets that he wants to be traded, according to multiple sources.

“We have informed Haason that we will not trade him, that he is expected to be here with his teammates, and that he will continue to be fined per the CBA [Collective Bargaining Agreement] if he does not report,” Jets general manager Joe Douglas said in a statement. “Since the trade discussions back in March, we have been clear, direct, and consistent with our position.

“Our focus will remain on the guys we have here as we prepare for the regular season.”

In March, the Jets acquired Reddick in a trade with the Eagles for a conditional 2026 third-round pick that could be a second if Reddick plays at least 67.5% of the upcoming season. Reddick is in the final year of a three-year, $45 million contract he signed with the Eagles in 2022.

After the trade, Reddick said it was a “new beginning” for him and was just worried about getting to know his new coaching staff and his teammates.

“Contractual stuff, I’m leaving to my agent and [Jets general manager] Joe [Douglas] to figure out,” Reddick said. “Whatever happens, I’m going to be happy and I’m going to give it my all and that’s who I am as a person.

“No matter how it goes, how many years, I’m going to be here however long I’m here for and I’m going to give the team, the fans, everything that I have.”

Things have taken a turn for the worse since Reddick’s introductory press conference.

Reddick missed both OTAs [organized team activities] and mandatory minicamp in the spring. He was fined over $50,000 for missing mandatory minicamp in June and missed out on receiving a $250,000 workout bonus he was scheduled to receive after missing the Jets spring offseason program.

Reddick’s fines continue to increase since he didn’t report for Jets training camp on July 23. He is being fined $50,000 every day he misses and is subject to a 15% forfeiture of his prorated bonus, according to the NFL Collective Bargaining Agreement. That forfeiture increases by 1% each day Reddick is absent for training camp up to 25%.

Because he has missed three weeks of training camp and forfeited his bonuses, Reddick has been fined more than $1.05 million. Something else to keep in mind is that for every preseason Reddick misses, he is fined an entire week’s salary, which is around $800,000.

“I still have nothing,” Saleh said when asked about Reddick’s status last week.

Both the Jets and Reddick have mismanaged this situation. The Jets offered Reddick a contract extension, according to sources, which would have been a raise from the $14.25 million he is scheduled to receive in 2024. But the 29-year-old declined the offer. However, the Jets decided to trade for the 29-year-old anyway after losing sack leader Bryce Huff to the Eagles.

Before he was traded to the Jets, Reddick sought a new contract with the Eagles. After Philadelphia signed Huff in March, Reddick then requested a trade from the team. The Jets will not negotiate a new contract with any player unless they show up to training camp, according to sources.

At this point, the Jets would’ve been better off keeping Huff, who was an undrafted free agent in which the team developed. In 2023, Huff led all Jets players with 10 sacks.

Reddick is also to blame for this situation because instead of holding out, he could have just reported for camp on time and had a hold in much like Tua Tagovailoa did when he was seeking a new contract from the Dolphins. Eventually, Tagovailoa signed a four-year, $212.4 million contract extension with Miami on July 26.

The Jets certainly could use Reddick’s production after losing Huff, Quinton Jefferson, and John Franklin-Myers during the offseason. Jefferson signed a one-year deal with the Browns, and the Jets traded Franklin-Myers to the Broncos after they couldn’t financially afford to keep him and Reddick.

During the last four seasons, Reddick recorded 50.5 sacks, which is the fourth most in the NFL during that span.

With Huff, Jefferson, and Franklin-Myers leaving, the Jets lost 19.5 sacks worth of production. If the Jets were to trade Reddick, they would need to find ways to replace those sacks on their defensive line.

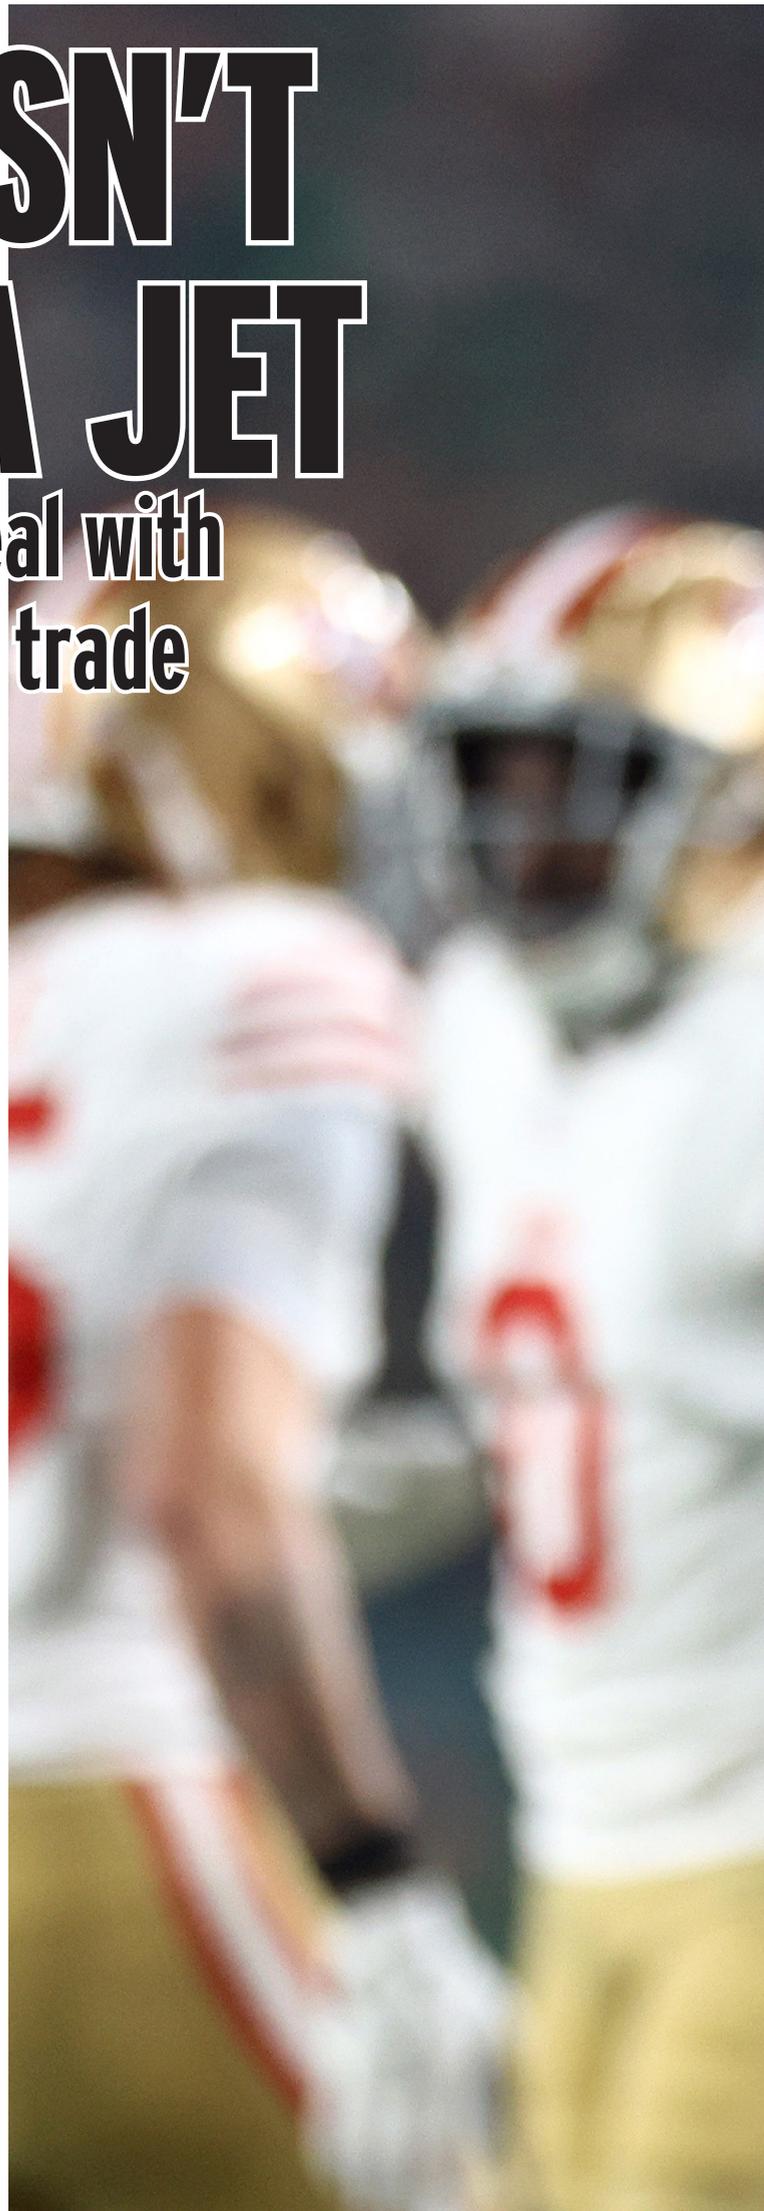

On the unofficial depth chart released last week, the Jets had third-year player Micheal Clemons as one of the starting edge rushers opposite Jermaine Johnson, who registered 7.5 sacks last season. More pressure could also be on 2023 first-round pick Will McDonald.

As a rotational player, McDonald finished with 14 tackles and three sacks during his rookie campaign. Entering training camp, Jets’ coaches and teammates feel like McDonald is stronger than he was a season ago although he is still listed at 236 pounds. During the offseason, there was an emphasis on McDonald becoming a better run defender and an every-down player.

“Incredible growth,” Jets defensive line coach Aaron Whitecotton said about McDonald. “He has gotten so much stronger, credit to our weight room staff.

“Better edge setter, all of his game has improved in that way. Mentally, I see a more mature player, not that he was a problem or anything like that, but just understanding the game, understanding the situations. He has come a long way, he still has a long way to go like all of us but I’m so excited about his progress and the steps that he takes every day.

Haason Reddick has not taken part in a single practice with the Jets and now wants to be traded. GETTY

NFL's new kickoff leads to a lot more action, some chaos

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first full weekend of exhibition games featuring the new dynamic kickoff included two long returns, a significant drop in touchbacks and mass confusion on an odd play that ended up as a rare safety.

The NFL's goals of increasing the rate of returns and bringing back the threat of big plays were mostly accomplished last weekend. The NFL reported 81% of kicks have been returned so far this preseason, even if teams have been guarded in what wrinkles they were willing to show before the start of the regular season.

"You've seen everybody pretty much be vanilla in the preseason with the kickoff and how they're attacking on kickoff return," Raiders coach Antonio Pierce said. "I think the key part for us is seeing our guys run down and cover and who can make the space tackles."

It also was important for everyone to understand the new rules, as evidenced by what happened to the Kansas City Chiefs when they tried to down a ball for a touchback only to have it be ruled as a safety.

The play in question came late in the first half of Kansas City's game at Jacksonville on Saturday when Cam Little's kick for Jacksonville landed in the front of the end zone before bouncing back into the field of play.

Mecole Hardman raced back and kneeled in the end zone before picking up the ball around the 1 and bringing it back over the goal line. Under the old rules, a kickoff that landed in the end zone led to a automatic touchback.

The officials on the field initially ruled the play a touchback but because it was in the final 2 minutes of the first half, it was automatically reviewed. The call was then changed to a safety because Hardman brought the ball from the field of play into his end zone.

"I think it's a good coaching point for all teams, to really coach our returners in that situation," Jaguars coach Doug Pederson said. "It's definitely going to be on the coach's video that's going to come out this week. It's really a good teaching moment for everybody, us included, for our returners. It's just a great way to learn that rule and to learn the game of football."

The last time there was a safety on a kick return without a lateral came in the 2012 season opener when Darius Reynaud fielded the opening kick for Tennessee against Pittsburgh while standing in the end zone. He brought the ball from the field of play into the end zone and kneeled down, hoping for a touchback. But the play was ruled a safety.

The misplay by the Chiefs was the only score on a kickoff but there were two long returns with Jacksonville's Parker Washington returning a kick 73 yards against Kansas City and Tennessee's Kearis Jackson having a 63-yarder against San Francisco.

"I'm not going to lie; it looked crazy at first," Washington said. "I thought I was supposed to be tackled a long time ago in mine, but it was exciting to be able to make a play like that. It was cool. It gave us confidence to be like, 'OK, these kick returns are real and it's going to be an exciting year'"

There were only 10 kickoff returns of at least 60 yards in the entire 2023 regular season, down from an average of more than 34 per season from 2001-10 before rule changes to increase player safety started making the kickoff obsolete.

That led to the dramatic change this offseason, with the NFL hoping for a significant increase in the rate of returns from the record-low level of 21.8% last season.

For a standard kickoff, the ball is kicked from the 35-yard line with the 10 kick coverage players lined up at the opposing 40. The return team will have at least nine blockers lined up in the "set up zone" between the 30- and 35-yard line, cutting down on high-speed collisions.

Only the kicker and two returners are allowed to move until the ball hits the ground or is touched by a returner inside the 20.

There have been only 24 touchbacks so far this preseason and an average starting field position at the 29 yard line — compared to the 23.8 at this point last preseason, when 65% of kicks had been returned. The rate of returns typically falls once the season starts and teams aren't testing out players and schemes in live action, but the 81% rate so far this preseason bodes well for the NFL's hope that at least half of all kicks will be returned.

There was even some confusion about where to line up with the Raiders and Vikings initially setting up 5 yards too far from the end zone on the opening kickoff of their game before the officials corrected them.

San Francisco coach Kyle Shanahan was even caught off guard on the long return by the Titans. Used to there being little action on kicks, Shanahan was looking at video on a tablet during the return and got in the way of an official, leading to a 15-yard penalty.

"I was expecting a break and when I looked up the ref was behind me and he did a good job avoiding me," Shanahan said.

STEP RIGHT UP

Nabers' injury opens door for Hyatt to show Giants 'I can do everything'

BY PAT LEONARD
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Giants rookie safety Tyler Nubin pointed out one noticeable difference between NFL and college football on Monday: in the pros, offensive stars create plenty of exceptions to the rule.

"It's definitely more of a match-up-based league than college," Nubin said. "Formations will tell you a lot, but if you've got (Vikings receiver) Justin Jefferson over there at the 'X,' the formation's not telling you sh-t. The ball is going over there."

Malik Nabers was drafted to be the Giants' version of Jefferson, the weapon that creates exceptions to the rule. And so far he has been as advertised during training camp, versatile and explosive, including in joint practices against the Detroit Lions.

But with Nabers now sidelined by a practice injury initially believed to be a left ankle sprain, his absence suddenly begs the question of how the Giants might function without him.

Backup quarterback Drew Lock admitted on Monday, for example, that while the Giants have the skill players to pick each other up, it can be tricky at times for a QB to retrain his brain to read the field differently if a top weapon like Nabers is out.

"It can be like that depending on the play that's called," Lock said. "When you're working progression reads or two-high (safety), one-high reads — yeah, I know No. 9 is over there. But if it's two-high and I'm supposed to go this (other) way, (it's not). (With) certain man-to-man concepts or alerting them in man-to-man, yeah, that could be a difference. But it just depends on the play."

Second-year speedster Jalin Hyatt provided a reminder on Monday, though, that behind the Giants' new star lurks a Biletnikoff Award winner as the top receiver in college football in 2022.

Hyatt caught a deep touchdown over top of the defense on a bomb from Daniel Jones, which is on every scouting report for the former Tennessee standout. But later Hyatt powered inside for a red zone touchdown on a slant route against a confused Giants defense, demonstrating that if he gets that opportunity, he is just as willing and capable of punching it in.

"I'm just trying to show the coaches I can do everything," Hyatt told the Daily News in a quiet moment after practice. "I'm confident in myself, confident in my abilities. I feel like I can run anything I need to run. When that happens, you gotta take advantage of your opportunities and make the most of it. And that's what I'm trying to do."

Understand: although Nabers was not even on the sideline Monday, the Giants are acting as if his ankle injury is not going to sideline him for too long.

Head coach Brian Daboll said "I don't think it's fractured" of Nabers' ankle or foot, even though he said the Giants' "medical people" were "still doing (their) evaluation on him" and did not acknowledge an MRI or X-ray had occurred yet.

And Hyatt echoed that Nabers' injury is "nothing major."

"That's something you don't want to see," Hyatt said of Nabers' Sunday injury. "He's gonna be fine. He's gonna be alright. It wasn't nothing major or anything. So he'll be good. But you don't wanna see that"

He admitted the Giants' players held their breath a little bit when they saw Nabers limp off the field, but their prevailing sentiment now appears to be relief.

"It's practice, young guy, and he's gonna be a key factor for us," Hyatt continued. "Seeing him go down, yeah, we were all kinda like, 'Ohh.' But he's gonna be alright, though. He'll be good!"

That said, "when one of your key guys goes down, the other receivers gotta step up," Hyatt said. And that's what happened Monday when Jones had time to throw: slot receiver Wan'Dale Robinson was Jones' favorite target, while Darius Slayton, Hyatt and tight end Theo Johnson all made plays, too.

Daboll actually worked a lot on the running game in a long, physical padded practice that also emphasized two-minute drills and red zone work. Eric Gray and Tyrone Tracy Jr. factored in, and Devin Singletary saw a ton of touches with both the starting and backup offenses.

Hyatt's deep touchdown, though — which only happened after a Brian Burns sack, to be clear — is the kind of play that Daboll needs from his other receivers to truly replace the every-down explosive threat element that Nabers provides when he's on the field.

"It's a big, big emphasis," Hyatt said of Daboll, Jones and the receivers prioritizing pushing the ball downfield. "It opens up the whole playbook when we can start doing play action, start running the ball, doing inside zone, outside zone, get the running backs running. (When) the safeties come down, that's when we have our shots. It causes stress for the corners. It causes stress with their eyes.

"There's a lot of things you need in the offense," Hyatt added. "You need explosive plays to do what you want to do on offense so the playbook is opened for anything. I feel like last year we were limited with that, we didn't really have that many explosive plays last year and that's the reason why. This year's a new year for us."

Hyatt did unlock his explosive ability at times last season, including his season-best five catches for 109 yards in a Week 12 home win over the New England Patriots. But then he fell off and only managed a total of six catches for 43 yards in the final five games of the season.

As someone used to being the best offensive weapon on every field, Hyatt admitted that stretch was "hard" for him.

"It was hard," Hyatt told the Humbled Neal will fill 'whatever' role Blue needs him to

BY PAT LEONARD
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Evan Neal towered over everyone — even the other Giants offensive linemen — when he took the practice field for the first time in training camp on Sunday.

Neal's sheer size at 6-7, 340 pounds is hard to believe every time he walks by. He moves with steady purpose, striding almost in rhythm, appearing confident despite the rocky road he has navigated through his first two NFL seasons in New York.

Maybe that's because Neal, 23, has found a healthy mental balance in handling the expectations that come with being a No. 7 overall draft pick in 2022.

Maybe that's because Neal is coming off the physically unable to perform list with a newfound perspective on his role with the team.

"I'm not owed anything, and I can't feel like I deserve anything," Neal said Sunday in his first interview since December. "All I want is what I work for."

A large part of this predicament has been out of Neal's control.

A misdiagnosed injury last fall, an ankle surgery in early January and a spring setback in his rehab have removed Neal from the Giants' Week 1 starting five plans on the offensive line.

Free agent signing Jermaine Eluemunor now appears firmly entrenched in the right tackle spot that Neal was drafted to play for the Giants and which he occupied when healthy in his first two seasons.

Neal said he accepts whatever role awaits him now, though, striking a different tone than he did late last season, when he resisted the suggestion of possibly needing to make a position change to guard.

"Whatever role that the team has for me, I'm going to embrace it," Neal said. "So whether that's starting or not starting, I'm here to contribute to the team, and I'm going to do everything in my power to do so."

What if they asked him to move to guard?

"Like I said, whatever role that I'm asked to do on the team, I'm going to embrace it to the best of my abilities," Neal said.

He also did not dispute GM Joe Schoen's statement last November that "Evan needs to play better," even though he said he didn't need to hear it to know it himself.

"That's his opinion," Neal said. "That's his job to evaluate the players. And if he thinks I need to play better, then hell, I'd be the first person to tell myself that I need to play better, so it really doesn't matter whether it comes out of Joe's mouth or anybody's mouth. I'm always going to be the harshest critic on myself, so I need to play better. Yeah, I need to play better."

There are plenty of league sources familiar with Neal's game who believe he might benefit from a shift to the left side of the offensive line if the opportunity presents itself. He played two of his three college seasons at Alabama on the left: at guard as a freshman in 2019 and at tackle as a junior in 2021.

The Giants' 2024 starting left side is set, however, with Andrew Thomas at left tackle and priority free agent signing Jon Runyan Jr. at left guard. So this is trending obviously towards Neal beginning the season as a backup and trying to prove he can be a capable replacement at guard or as a swing tackle.

A demotion like that could break some highly-drafted players who are used to being counted upon as premier talents.

Neal buckled under the weight of fan trolling on social media last season, ripping the critical commenters as "sheep" who "flip hot dogs and hamburgers" in an interview with NJ Advance Media before apologizing later.

Then he unknowingly had his ankle fracture initially misdiagnosed as a sprain, which meant he was rehabbing the incorrect injury for weeks.

Neal needed his left ankle re-taped during individuals on his first day back at practice Sunday, so it's possible the ankle still needs a good amount of support. Still, he is embracing reality and not focused on outside opinions. He knows all that matters is how he performs.

"It's a big year for me. I'm not going to sit here and act like it's not," he said. "But I can only control the present and how I approach every single day, and that will be a big indication of my future."

LOCK: I'LL BE READY FOR WEEK 1

Backup QB Drew Lock (left hip) said he's "100 percent confident" he will be healthy and available when the regular season starts even though he is not practicing.

"There's no worry in that," he said Monday. "How I felt yesterday, even how I felt today, there's no worry about that."

He said he and head coach Brian Daboll are "not ruling out the possibility of playing" in Saturday's second preseason game, but it's hard to take that sentiment seriously. Lock admitted it hurts when he throws. "If it didn't, I'd probably be out there," he said.

Jalin Hyatt has a chance to take on a larger role in the Giants' offense while first-round pick Malik Nabers (inset) recovers from ankle issue he suffered in practice last week. AP

News. "I came off the Patriots game, it was my first 100-yard game, and then the next week it was kinda hard for me to get a target. It plays with you mentally, especially for me coming from Tennessee, getting the ball almost every play, having 1,000 yards, scoring touchdowns. It was difficult for me mentally.

"But I think it helped me," he continued. "It helped me this offseason, prepared me, showed me what you gotta do to win. It's hard to win in this league. And that's the first taste I got of it."

Hyatt remains in an outside rotation with Slayton entering his second NFL training camp and said the path to more regular playing time is "simple."

"Being consistent. If you're consistent, you stay on the field," Hyatt said. "Getting open, catching the ball when it comes to you. When it's not coming to you, are you still winning on your routes? Are you blocking downfield? There's a lot of things the coaches wanna see."

Once the Giants drafted Nabers, though, Hyatt said the receivers knew he could help elevate everyone.

"I love that we got Malik," he said. "He can do everything. And for us, it just opens up that playbook. Defenses, their eyes, they'll be looking different ways now. At the end of the day it makes it easier for me. Malik's gonna get his. I'm proud of him. He's young and we're gonna make sure he's ready to do what he has to do. But it helps us as well. And I'm glad we got him."

And if Nabers is out, Hyatt said that just means it's time for everyone to do more.

"That's our mindset going into this year: It's not gonna be a perfect year for us. Injuries happen. It's football," Hyatt said. "That's why you have those other receivers. That's what we do. We're supposed to make plays when the ball comes to us."

Jalen Brunson and Knicks take on Jayson Tatum and champion Celtics to open NBA season on Oct. 22.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

As expected, the Knicks are prime-time basketball, and the proof is in the schedule.

The new-look Knicks, featuring Mikal Bridges after the trade with the Nets, will headline NBA opening night with the Celtics at TD Garden on Oct. 22.

The Celtics will be hosting their ring ceremony after winning the title. It will be an experience for a Knicks team hoping to one day receive its own rings, and if the Knicks are to do so, their biggest challenge resides in Boston.

The game will mark the 495th time the Knicks and Celtics have met for a regular-season game. The Celtics lead in head-to-head play by an overwhelming 304-190 margin, though Boston only holds a 36-31 advantage in playoff games.

The teams played five regular-season games last year with the Celtics taking the series via gentleman's sweep, 4-1, and the Knicks came one game shy of meeting Boston in the Eastern Conference Finals. They ran out of gas amid a rash of injuries and lost to the Pacers in Game 7 of the second round.

Madison Square Garden will also play host on Christmas Day, as the Knicks will welcome the Spurs for Victor Wembanyama's second game at The World's Most Famous Arena.

The matchup will mark the Knicks' league-leading 57th game on Christmas. They own a 24-32 record on the holiday.

The game will undoubtedly be a spectacle: Reigning NBA Rookie of the Year Wembanyama is coming off of a breakout performance in the Olympics, where he won FIBA Rising Star and led France to a silver medal, scoring 26 points in his country's loss to Team USA.

On Christmas, the 7-foot-4 Wembanyama will play his second career game at the Garden. He played a poor game by his own standards (14 points, 4-of-14 FG, 0-4 3PT) in his first trip, but the Knicks' home court is widely recognized as the breakout birthplace for a number of stars in NBA history.

The Knicks had 29 nationally televised games in the 2023-24 season. The number will likely increase as the Knicks are expected to compete for a championship after forming a team around a unique group of players who won a championship together at Villanova, then re-united at the professional level.

Bridges, Jalen Brunson, Josh Hart and Donte DiVincenzo were each members of the Villanova team that won the 2016 NCAA Tournament. Brunson, Bridges and DiVincenzo went on to win a second title at Villanova in 2018 after Hart left for the NBA.

Brunson left the Mavericks and signed a contract with the Knicks in the summer of 2022. The Knicks traded for Hart from the Trail Blazers shortly after, then signed DiVincenzo as a free agent in the summer of 2023. They then traded five draft picks plus a first-round pick swap to the Nets to acquire Bridges and complete the Nova Knicks circle this summer.

The Knicks are coming off of an injury-riddled season doubling as one of the most successful in franchise history. Despite a season-ending shoulder injury to Julius Randle, two left ankle injuries to Mitchell Robinson, plus a rash of injuries elsewhere on the roster leaving the team barren in the playoffs, the Knicks still finished with 50 wins, the Eastern Conference's No. 2 seed and fell one game shy of a trip to the conference finals.

With Brunson — who signed a team-friendly contract extension and was subsequently named captain — at the helm, the Knicks are hoping to improve on last season and make a run at an NBA title.

Georgia is No. 1 in The Associated Press Top 25 preseason college football poll for the second straight year as the superconference era begins with the SEC and Big Ten dominating the top 10 of the rankings.

The Bulldogs received 46 first-place votes and 1,532 points in the Top 25 released Monday and the SEC powerhouse finished comfortably ahead of No. 2 Ohio State (15 first-place votes and 1,490 points) of the Big Ten.

New Big Ten member Oregon is No. 3, receiving one first-place vote from the panel of 62 media members who cover college football. Texas, which joins Georgia in the Southeastern Conference this season, is fourth.

The Big Ten and SEC each landed four teams in the top 10.

Conference realignment has reduced the Power Five to the Power Four, with the Pac-12 whittled to just two schools. The Big Ten now has 18 schools. The Atlantic Coast Conference has 17 football teams, and the SEC and Big 12 each have 16.

All the movement created an unprecedented preseason poll with just four conferences represented: The SEC leads with nine ranked teams. The Big Ten has six, the Big 12 has five and the ACC has four.

Alabama, in its first season without coach Nick Saban since 2006, starts No. 5. Sixth-ranked Mississippi gives the SEC half the top six.

Independent Notre Dame is the highest-ranked team from outside the SEC and Big Ten at No. 7.

Eighth-ranked Penn State and No. 9 Michigan give the Big Ten four top 10 teams. Florida State from the ACC is No. 10.

The defending national champion Wolverines said goodbye to coach Jim Harbaugh, quarterback J.J. McCarthy and 12 other players who were selected in April's draft. All that attrition led to Michigan receiving the lowest preseason ranking for a defending national champion since 2011, when Auburn came in at No. 23 after the departure of Cam Newton.

Before that, the last time a defending national champion was

Loss to Alabama in SEC championship game kept Kirby Smart and Georgia out of national title picture a year ago, but they look tough again. GETTY ranked worse than No. 7 in the following preseason poll was Colorado at No. 13 in 1991.

Washington, which lost to Michigan in the College Football Playoff championship game, took an even bigger fall after losing its coach (Kalen DeBoer replaced Saban at Alabama), star quarterback and a mountain of talent to the draft and transfer portal. The Huskies are the first team to reach the CFP and be unranked the following season, and the first team to be unranked after finishing the previous season No. 2 in the AP poll since Army in 1951. The rankings were a Top 20 then.

The only team to finish No.

1 and start the next season unranked was Minnesota in 1961, but the AP poll was only a Top 10 then.

Georgia started last season at No. 1 in pursuit of a record third straight national championship. Coach Kirby Smart's Bulldogs stayed there the whole regular season, and then missed the four-team playoff by losing the SEC title game to Alabama.

"We're dealing with new challenges this year," Smart said at SEC media days. "We don't have a chip on our shoulder in terms of people trying to use that as motivation. I've never used a failure from the previous year as motivation and never used the success of a previous year as motivation; we won't do that this year. That's not who we are. We want to recreate ourselves to stay in the best light we can."

There will be more room for error this season with the playoff expanding from four to 12 teams.

The Bulldogs are 42-2 over the last three seasons and loaded again. Quarterback Carson Beck leads the offense and edge rusher Mykel Williams is in line to be the next defensive star at Georgia.

Beck is a rarity in college football these days, a star quarterback in his fifth season with the same school who waited three years to become the starter. Beck completed 72% of his passes last year, with 24 touchdowns and six interceptions.

"He is a great elder for us and great example of resiliency in college football," Smart said.

Repeating as preseason No. 1 is a recent trend. Going back eight seasons, Alabama had separate streaks of three (2016-18) and two (2021-22) years as preseason No. 1. Clemson was top-ranked in the 2019 and '20 preseason rankings.

Georgia will try to become the 12th team since the AP preseason poll started in 1950 to start No. 1 and finish No. 1. The last was Alabama in 2017.

Tie for golds, but U.S. grabs most total medals

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — The contest for most gold medals at the Paris Olympics ended in a 40-40 tie between China and the United States.

But the U.S. topped the medals table with a whopping 126 overall, compared to 91 for China. At the Tokyo Games, the U.S. also edged China in the medal count, finishing with 113 overall and 39 golds, compared to 89 medals with 38 gold for China.

Who was supposed to lead the medal count at the Paris Games?

According to Nielsen's Gracenote virtual medal-table forecast, which collected results data from big competitions since the Tokyo Games, the top five for overall medals in Paris was going to be as follows: The U.S. (112 overall medals); China (86); Britain (63); France (60) and Australia (54).

The U.S. did top the medals table. However, the U.S. and China both upped their gold and overall medal counts.

Japan proved the virtual predictors wrong by sneaking into third place with 20 golds among its 45 medals.

France and Australia were in the top five as predicted, but the other way around.

Skateboard star Keegan Palmer helped Australia go fourth with 18 golds among 53 medals, while fifth-place France tallied 16 golds among its 64 medals.

Britain got more medals than in Tokyo — 65 to 64 — but had fewer golds and was seventh overall behind the Netherlands.

Here's a closer look at the some of the nations:

When Cao Yuan defended his title in the men's 10-meter platform on Saturday, it gave his nation an unprecedented sweep of the diving gold medals.

China won all eight golds handed out at the Olympic Aquatics Centre.

Algerian boxer returns to warm reception

ALGIERS, Algeria — Olympic boxing champion Imane Khelif returned home to a warm welcome Monday as Algerians rallied around her in the face of international scrutiny and misconceptions about her sex.

The Algerian gold medalist in women's welterweight boxing flew back to the gas-rich North African nation's capital Monday afternoon along with other Olympic medalists, including gymnast Kaylia Nemour and runner Djamel Sedjati.

They were greeted in Algiers by Minister of Youth and Sports Abderrahmane Hammad and were scheduled to meet President Abdelmadjid Tebboune later this week, according to APS, the nation's public press service.

"It's a dream I had for eight years," Khelif said of her gold medal performance. "We did our best to represent China won five golds in each of shooting, table tennis and weightlifting, with China's victory in the team event in table tennis giving the country its 300th gold in Olympic history.

Sydney McLaughlin-Levrone broke her own world record in the 400-meter hurdles as the U.S. won 14 golds in track and field.

Noah Lyles won a historically close men's 100-meter race, and Gabrielle Thomas took the women's 200. Quincy Hall won the men's 400 at a Stade de France, which grew accustomed to hearing the American national anthem.

Gymnastics star Simone Biles added to her growing fame with four more medals, and the swimmers, led by another Olympic great in Katie Ledecky, grabbed eight golds.

The men's and women's basketball teams won their tournaments, both beating France in the finals. The U.S. women survived the biggest challenge of their unprecedented run to eight straight Olympic gold medals with a 67-66 win to close out competition at the Paris Games.

But the U.S. women's water polo team went home empty handed after high expectations.

Led by the brilliant performances of Léon Marchand, who finished with five medals overall, France won one more gold than it did in Atlanta in 1996 and nearly doubled its 33 medals overall from the Tokyo Games three years ago.

Rugby star Antoine Dupont got the ball bouncing by leading France to gold in the rugby sevens, then Marchand took over.

Heavyweight judo star Teddy Riner added another gold as the French judo team walked away with a whopping 10 medals.

The men's handball team disappointed, though, failing to get a medal when defending its title, although the women did get silver.

Algeria."

Khelif became a top storyline of the 2024 Paris Olympic Games after Italian boxer Angela Carini withdrew 46 seconds into their matchup, wept and refused to shake Khelif's hand, saying she had never been hit so hard by a punch. Afterward, scrutiny toward Khelif exploded as people — including world leaders and celebrities — questioned her eligibility or falsely claimed she was a man.

Algerians vigorously defended Khelif amid uninformed speculation about her sex, which they interpreted as a byproduct of racism. They loudly made their presence known both in Paris and Algeria, where the gold medal fight was broadcast in public squares throughout the country.

Sedjati, the bronze medalist in the men's 800 meters, said Nemour and Khelif's success would "give a boost to women's sports in our country."

GAMES OVER, BUT FIGHT RAGES

Arbitration court rejects appeal and wants Chile's bronze back, but USA Gymnastics won't give up

Status of floor exercise bronze medal remains up in air as USA's Jordan Chiles and Team Romania anxiously await verdict. AP

BY JOSEPH WILKINSON
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Video from Jordan Chiles' floor routine proves the American gymnast should keep her bronze medal, according to USA Gymnastics.

The agency appealed a decision Sunday that would strip Chiles of her bronze medal in the women's floor exercise final at Paris 2024 and instead award it to Romanian gymnast Ana Barbosu.

USA Gymnastics said it had "time-stamped video evidence" that coach Cecile Landi appealed Chiles' score in time.

Chiles initially finished her floor routine with a score of 13.666, good for fifth place behind Barbosu's third-place score of 13.700. However, Landi appealed Chiles' difficulty value. Upon review, the judges upgraded it one tenth, making her cumulative score 13.766 and leapfrogging her past Barbosu and another gymnast into bronze-medal position.

Then, the Court of Arbitration for Sport ruled the appeal came too late. International gymnastics rules require any appeals to be made within one minute after a score is posted. The court decided Landi's appeal came one minute and four seconds after Chiles' score was revealed.

But USA Gymnastics claimed Sunday that Landi appealed after 47 seconds and again after 55 seconds, well within the one-minute requirement.

"The video footage provided was not available to USA Gymnastics prior to the tribunal's decision and thus USAG did not have the opportunity to previously submit it," the governing body said in Sunday's appeal statement.

However, it's unclear where the appeal will go, as the CAS is the highest worldwide court for sporting issues, and on Monday it said it would not reconsider its decision to ask for the medal to be returned.

The U.S. Olympic and Paralympic Committee could take the case to Switzerland's highest court, the Swiss Tribunal, or the European Court of Human Rights. USA Gymnastics said it will continue efforts to let Chiles keep the medal.

"I only want for everybody to be fair. We don't want to start picking on other athletes of any nationality," Barbosu said upon her return home to Romania. "We as athletes don't deserve something like that, we only want to perform as best as we can and to be rewarded based on our performance. The problems lie with the judges, with their calculations and decisions."

Brazilian Rebeca Andrade won gold in the floor exercise, while Simon Biles took silver.

Digging for Gold: Unclaimed Treasure in New York State

You know that feeling when you find money in the pocket of your old jeans? It's like stumbling upon buried treasure.

Now, imagine that treasure chest multiplied by billions, scattered across New York State, waiting to be claimed by its rightful owners. Welcome to the world of unclaimed funds!

What Are Unclaimed Funds?

In the hustle and bustle of life, it's easy to lose track of things—keys, the TV remote, and, apparently, money. Bank accounts—your savings, checking, or those long-forgotten CDs—are just the tip of the iceberg. Court funds, dividends, insurance benefits, stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and even telephone or utility deposits can lay forgotten, just waiting to be found.

Banks, insurance companies, corporations, and even the courts are required by law to report dormant accounts to the State Comptroller. They send out notifications by mail and publish them in newspapers. Yet, despite these efforts, many funds end up in the hands of the Office of the State Comptroller.

Published in the Paper

Every year, the Daily News publishes hundreds of pages of names of people with unclaimed property being held by insurance companies in April and May and unclaimed funds that banking organizations are trying to reunite with their owners starting in July through August and early September.

You can search your name in hundreds of pages of unclaimed property listings at nydailynews.com/special-sections to see if you currently have any funds being held for you. Noted at the beginning and end of each company's list are instructions for how you can start the process of claiming funds from that institution and the deadline for you to respond.

The following 18 pages list people whom Synchrony Bank is currently seeking to return their money.

Relinquished to the State

If you miss the deadline to claim your money from the company holding your money, they will hand it over to the State Comptroller, Thomas P. DiNapoli. But don't worry—it's in good hands, and he wants to give it back. Whether you think you may have some funds out there or not, you should take ten seconds to search your name at the Office of the Comptroller at ouf.osc.state.ny.us. From there, it's easy to start your claim online.

Beware of Scammers

Before you start dreaming of a lavish spending spree, beware. There are scammers out there pretending to be the government, offering to retrieve your unclaimed money—for a fee or in exchange for sensitive personal information. It's called phishing, and it's a crafty way to dupe unsuspecting people into handing over their hard-earned cash or identity. Only work directly with the institution or state holding your money and never pay to retrieve your funds.

Unclaimed By the Numbers

New York State is sitting on a trove of unclaimed funds and property, totaling a whopping $19 billion. And more than 51 million account records are gathering dust, just waiting for their rightful owners to come forward. Every single day, the State Comptroller returns over $1.5 million to individuals, companies, nonprofits, and municipalities.

If your account was accruing interest, you're entitled to it. The State Comptroller pays interest for up to five years on interest-bearing accounts. Currently, it's a cool 6%.

In 2024 alone, heirs to a New York estate received a jaw-dropping $12.4 million from stock proceeds. And the largest unclaimed amount is a mind-boggling $9.2 million, just waiting for someone to come knocking on the State Comptroller's door. Could it be yours?

Start Your Search Today

It's time to roll up your sleeves and start digging for gold. Who knows, you might just stumble upon a fortune waiting to change your life. And remember, the only thing better than finding lost treasure is sharing the joy of discovery with others. Spread the word, because buried beneath the surface of New York State lies a treasure trove of unclaimed riches waiting to be claimed by their rightful owners.

Happy hunting!

A report of unclaimed amounts of money or other property held or owing will be made to the Comptroller of the State of New York pursuant to Section 302 of the Abandoned Property Law of the State of New York and that a listing of names of persons appearing to be entitled is on file and open to public inspection at 170 Election Road, Draper, UT 84020-6425. Such unclaimed funds will be paid by us on or before October 31, 2024 to persons establishing to our satisfaction their right to receive the same. On or before November 10, 2024, such funds still remaining unclaimed will be paid to the Comptroller of the State of New York. Upon such payment, this Company shall no longer be liable for the property.

COULD YOU HAVE MONEY WAITING FOR YOU?

SEARCH FOR YOUR NAME IN HUNDREDS OF PAGES OF UNCLAIMED FUNDS LISTINGS AT

NYDAILYNEWS.COM/SPECIAL-SECTIONS

1. Scan the QR code to visit nydailynews.com/special-section Search for your name in hundreds of pages of unclaimed funds currently being held by insurance companies and financial institutions.

2. Follow the instructions at the beginning or end of each company's listing to get started on your claim. Pay attention to the deadline to file your claim with the company holding your money. After that date, your funds will be transferred to the NY State Comptroller's Office and you will have to file a claim with the State to get the cash that's coming to you.

3. If you miss the deadline to file with the company holding your money or think you may have unclaimed property that has already been handed over to the State, search the State Comptroller's database at <https://ouf.osc.state.ny.us/> and get started on your claim.

FOR SOME, FEELING

LASTS MORE THAN A MOMENT.

WE CAN CHANGE THAT.

We've all had moments where we've felt we didn't belong. But for people who moved to this country, that feeling lasts more than a moment. Together, we can build a better community. Learn how at BelongingBeginsWithUs.org
