Diwali brings us all together: Reem Shaikh

The actress says that she celebrates both Diwali and Eid with equal fervour

The best part about celebrating Diwali for Reem Shaikh is decorating her house with diyas, lanterns and flowers. She says, "Diwali has always been special for us. My dadi, mom and I celebrate it together. We have a puja in the house after which I visit the gurdwara. I like how Diwali brings all of us together." She adds, "I love festivals. I enjoy celebrating both Diwali and Eid. During Eid, I fast and my mother wakes up early to prepare sehri for me. So every festival is special in our house." Reem, who has been part of Tere Ishq Mein Ghayal and Laughter Chefs, loves to cook on festive occasions. She says, "I always make something special on Diwali and Eid. I like preparing sweets; I think my gajar ka halwa turns out really well."

'I have stopped bursting crackers'

The actress, who loved bursting crackers as a kid, now stays away from them. She shares, "When we were kids, we didn't realise the harmful effect of firecrackers on the environment. Once I chanced upon two kittens who were terrified due to the sounds of crackers. It made me realise that we could celebrate Diwali in other ways. After that, I stopped bursting crackers."

MAKE CELEBRATIONS SAFE FOR YOUR PETS THIS FESTIVE SEASON

AI-generated pics for representational purposes only

Shourya Jha

With Diwali celebrations in full swing, it is also important to keep your playful pooch safe and comfy. Here's what you can do to ensure that.

Watch out for toxic food

AVOID COMMON FESTIVE FOODS: Traditional festive foods can be harmful to pets as they can contain sugar, chocolate, raisins, grapes, and even certain nuts. Make sure to keep these out of reach of your pet. Also avoid feeding table scraps.

LIMIT FATTY FOODS: While your pet might be tempted, rich foods like fatty meats and gravies can upset a pet's stomach, leading to pancreatitis or other digestive issues. Stick to pet-friendly treats to keep them happy and healthy.

CAFFEINE IS A NO-GO: Ensure that pets don't have access to caffeinated drinks or beverages kept around during your house party. Even small amounts can be dangerous.

Secure the decorations

KEEP DECORATIONS OUT OF REACH: Diwali decor items like lights etc may look attractive to pets but can be choking hazards or can cause intestinal blockages if ingested. Keep them out of reach of pets.

AVOID USING REAL CANDLES: Is your pet a curious and playful one? In that case, avoid wax candles as they can easily knock over, leading to burns, or digestive issues if ingested. Consider flameless candles instead.

Beware of toxic plants: Festive plants like poinsettias, mistletoe, and holly can be toxic if ingested by pets.

Pets are highly attuned to their environment. The bustling activity of the festive season — new decorations, increased noise, and more people in the house — can be overwhelming. Recognising signs of anxiety, such as pacing, excessive barking, or hiding, can help owners manage their pet's stress better. Providing puzzle toys, engaging chew toys, or interactive play can help redirect their energy. Regular mental stimulation is essential to prevent destructive behaviour, especially when routines change

— Dr Deesha, a Pune-based veterinarian

How to: Authenticate your gold purchase

LOOK FOR HALLMARKING

Hallmarking is the most reliable way to verify gold's authenticity. Look for the BIS (Bureau of Indian Standards) hallmark, which confirms purity and authenticity

CHECK PURITY MARKS

Ensure the karat is stamped on the gold. Higher karats indicate purer gold

ASK FOR A CERTIFICATE

Reputable sellers provide a certificate that specifies purity, weight, and karat details. Always keep this document for future reference or resale.

USE A MAGNET

Gold is non-magnetic, so if the piece reacts to a magnet, it may not be genuine

Mumbai streets turn into Zombieland

Participants flaunt their zombie avatars

To celebrate the spirit of Halloween in Mumbai, the Wench Film Festival brought the Zombicon India Walk Pub Crawl on Wednesday to Bandra. The event saw 60 participants flaunt their gory avatars as they descended the streets to spook the people.

Celebrity hairstylist Sapna Bhavnani who organised the event said, "The idea of organising something like this came to me when I was in Spain for a horror fest. I wanted to bring that here." Talking about her outfit she said, "I am the dead mother of this dead child (pointing at the doll around her neck)."

The walk that began at 8pm had participants pub-hopping till the wee hours. Overwhelmed by the response, Sapna added, "Walking on the streets like a dead person was the most alive I've ever felt. It concluded just like it should have with people wanting more."

KIARA AND I FOLLOW SIMPLE BUT MEANINGFUL DIWALI RITUALS: SIDHARTH MALHOTRA

Pics: @sidmalhotra

Sidharth says, "Kiara and I keep it close-knit, celebrate the festival with pujas, great food and enjoy each other's company. There's something deeply fulfilling about being surrounded by loved ones and honouring traditions together. This is what Diwali means to me - family, togetherness and creating memories that stay with us forever."

'I pick unique and personal designs each year for my festive wear'

Talking about how men are embracing ethnic styles and experimenting with their festive wardrobe, Sidharth says, "I keep my Diwali style rooted in traditions. I pick unique and personal designs each year. Men's fashion has come a long way, especially where ethnic wear is concerned, and Diwali is the perfect time to embrace that. Today, there are so many designers creating exceptional options in men's festive wear. Each one brings something unique to the table, and they're doing incredible work with colours, patterns and textures."

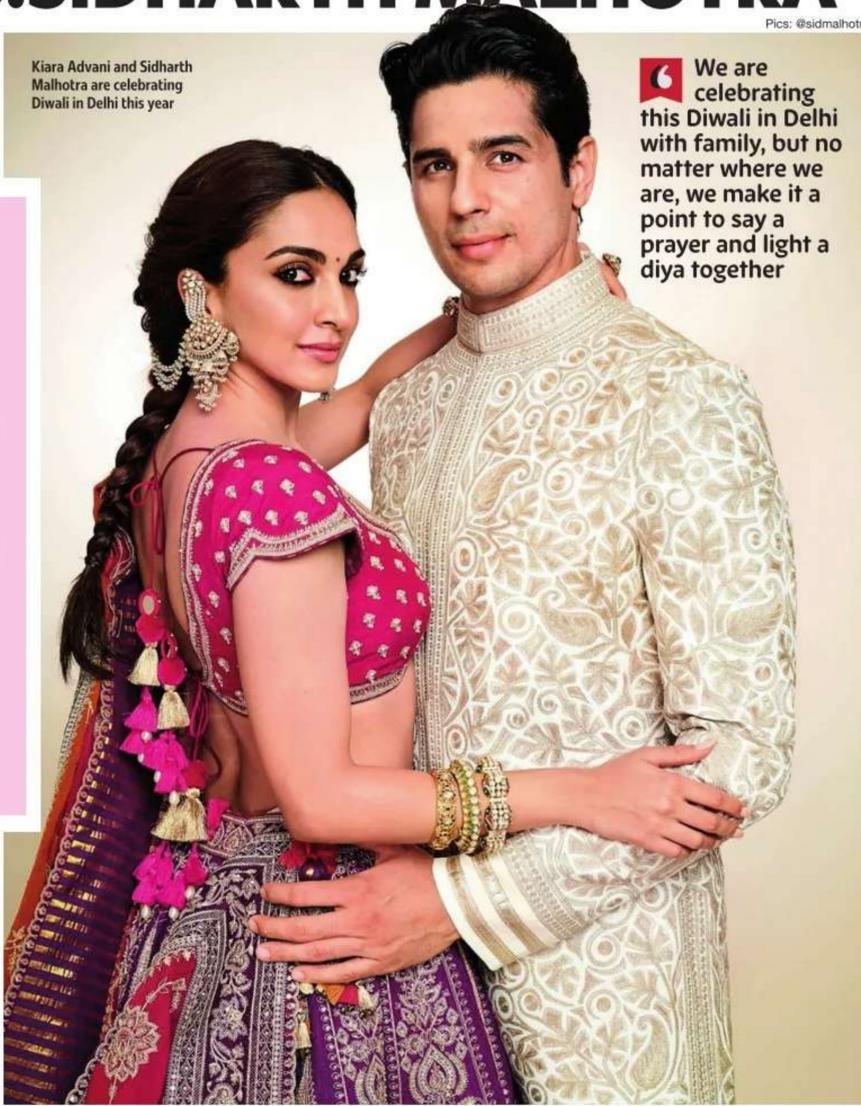

'I STILL ASSOCIATE DIWALI WITH MY DAADI'S BESAN LADDOOS'

Sidharth's favourite Diwali memories date back to his childhood. "Diwali has always been a special time for me. While growing up, it was my grandma who would bring everyone together for the Diwali puja. My daadi would make sure the whole house was ready and that we were all dressed in our best festive clothes. My favourite part of the puja was always the prasad - especially the besan laddoos, which I associate with Diwali to this day. That tradition of dressing up and celebrating as a family is something I carry with me. My traditional festive wardrobe is special to me as it reminds me of all the amazing celebrations," Sidharth reminisces.

KIARA AND SIDHARTH'S DIWALI RITUALS

This is Sidharth and Kiara's second Diwali as a married couple. He says, "Kiara and I have started simple, but meaningful Diwali rituals of doing a small puja together and lighting a diya at home. We are celebrating this Diwali in Delhi with family, but no matter where we are, we make it a point to say a prayer and light a diya together."

'Excited to step back into the romantic genre'

This Diwali also marks the beginning of his new project, Param Sundari, with director Tushar Jalota. Sidharth says, "It's exciting to step back into the romantic genre after a few years. I look forward to creating something fun and memorable with Janhvi (Kapoor). It's a new chapter that feels just right for the season of new beginnings."

A pet-friendly Diwali for Prateik and Priya

Priya Banerjee and Prateik Patil Babbar with their pets

Actors Prateik Patil Babbar and Priya Banerjee are celebrating Diwali, away from Mumbai in Aamby Valley with their pets, Chico and Rocco. Prateik tells us, "Diwali can be challenging for pets because of loud firecrackers, which can cause them a lot of anxiety. To avoid that, Priya and I decided to choose a serene getaway. After all, Diwali is about light, peace and love and we wanted our pets to experience it that way."

Priya adds, "I'm hoping we all can celebrate Diwali a little more mindfully this year. Firecrackers may be a moment of fun for us, but they can be overwhelming and scary for animals." — Debarati S Sen
