It's a 4-yr. cycle now: New record in getting around the city by bike

These cyclists on the Queensboro Bridge are part of a wheely big trend, according to the city's Department of Transportation. AP

> BY EVAN SIMKO-BEDNARSKI NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

A record number of New Yorkers took to the town on two wheels this year, according to the city Department of Transportation data – the fourth straight year of cycling highs.

The DOT's annual cycling survey – which uses bicycle traffic over East River bridges as an indication of citywide trends – counted an average of 28,108 riders a day over the four river crossings.

That's up 8.4% over the 25,943 cyclists counted in 2023.

"More and more New Yorkers are opting to get around by bike because it's a fast, convenient, and safe way to travel around the city," Transportation Commissioner Ydanis Rodriguez said in a statement. "Another year of record-breaking ridership over our four iconic East River bridges illustrates how NYC DOT's efforts to build safe cycling spaces has spurred tremendous growth."

The largest single increase was seen on the Brooklyn Bridge, where ridership jumped more than 15%, from 4,769 average daily riders in 2023 to 5,504 in 2024. The Williamsburg Bridge is still the preferred two-wheel route, with 8,645 average daily riders this year – up 11% from 2023.

Ridership also climbed this year, according to another metric – the average number of riders crossing 50th St. in Manhattan during a 12-hour period.

An average of 43,887 bike riders crossed 50th St. during that time this year, up from 39,001 last year, making 2024 the third straight record high for ridership across the Midtown thoroughfare.

Since 2013, the DOT surveys have been conducted by automated bike counting machines, and are therefore unable to distinguish between traditional bicycles and e-bikes.

Powerball $256M ticket, first NYC jackpot win since 2020, sold in Qns.

BY THERESA BRAINE NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

For the first time since 2020, a winning Powerball jackpot has been sold in New York City.

The lucky winner of a ticket bought in Flushing, Queens, has snagged a $256 million prize, or $123.5 million pretax if they want a one-time cash payout, said the Multi-State Lottery Association (MSLA), which administers Powerball drawings, in a statement Sunday.

The winning numbers in Saturday's drawing were 57, 43 31, 55, 01 with Powerball 22. The ticket was sold at Hua Lian Supermarket on Parsons Blvd., according to the New York Lottery.

It was the first Powerball jackpot won in New York since 2020, the MSLA said. It was just one of 568,978 winning tickets sold across the U.S.

that included a dozen tickets worth $50,000, with six of them doubling to $100,000 via the ticket's Power Play feature for another dollar.

One of those $50,000 tickets was sold in New Jersey, according to NJ.com. It was a third prize, matching four numbers plus the Powerball.

In the Mega Millions camp, the top prize has soared to $619 million in the winless streak that has been in play since Sept. 10, the last time someone bought the big winner. No one matched Friday's drawing of white balls 16, 21, 33, 39 and 45, plus gold Mega Ball 24, according to Mega Millions.

The next Powerball drawing is Monday, and the next Mega Millions is Tuesday.

Jay-Z is added to suit accusing Diddy of raping 13-year-old girl

BY THERESA BRAINE NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

An October lawsuit filed against Sean "Diddy" Combs alleging he raped a 13-yearold girl in 2000 was reportedly refiled Sunday to include rapper Jay-Z.

Combs was arrested in September on numerous federal charges for racketeering, sex trafficking and other offenses and remains jailed without bail at Brooklyn's Metropolitan Detention Center. He has denied all accusations.

The accuser, who remained anonymous as a "Jane Doe," said she was assaulted after being driven to an MTV Video Music Awards after-party, NBC News reported Sunday. The suit is one of dozens filed by Texas attorney Tony Buzbee but the only one that includes another high-profile defendant.

Neither Buzbee or Combs' reps immediately commented Sunday evening. Combs has denied all charges.

The suit alleges the young fan had been trying to get into the VMAs at Radio City Music Hall without a ticket. Approaching several limos, she was told by one driver that she "fit what Diddy was looking for," NBC News reported. He picked her up after the show and brought her to a celebrity-filled house of people partying with pot and cocaine.

There she was given a drink and soon felt "woozy, lightheaded and" like she "needed to lie down," according to the suit, and went into another room to rest.

Combs and Shawn Carter, Jay-Z's given name, came in, told her she was "ready to party" and forced themselves on her, NBC News reported, citing the lawsuit.

The girl's attorney had reached out earlier to Carter with a letter asking for "a mediation to resolve this matter," CNN and NBC reported, citing the lawsuit.

Jay-Z replied with a lawsuit of his own and disputed the allegations Sunday evening, calling the initial letter a "blackmail attempt" sent to intimidate him into settling to avoid public scrutiny.

"These allegations are so heinous in nature that I implore you to file a criminal complaint, not a civil one!!" he wrote on X via Roc Nation.

"Whomever would commit such a crime against a minor should be locked away, would you not agree? These alleged victims would deserve real justice if that were the case."

He added his "only heartbreak" was for his young family, noting he and his wife – pop star Beyoncé – would have to sit their children down and educate them about "the cruelty and greed of people."

Photos show masked killer looking through taxi partition and standing outside a vehicle wearing black hooded puffer jacket

BY JOHN ANNESE NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

The NYPD released new crystal-clear photos early Sunday of the suspect wanted for killing UnitedHealthcare CEO Brian Thompson.

One photo shows the suspect looking out from behind a medical face mask, with just his eyes and thick eyebrows visible, looking through the partition of a taxi he used to flee the murder.

Police officials have said the killer got into a cab at 86th St. and Amsterdam Ave. to the Washington Heights Port Authority bus station about 20 minutes after the shooting, just after riding his getaway bike through Central Park.

The photos are the latest set of surveillance images released by cops as the manhunt for the assassin enters its fourth day.

The killer shot Brian Thompson, 50, early Wednesday as the victim walked to a Hilton hotel on W. 54th St. near Sixth Ave., where he was about to address colleagues and investors at a conference, police said.

Video footage shows the man shoot Thompson in the back, then fire three more times, at one point calmly pausing to clear a jam in his pistol. Police believe he may have been using a B&T Station Six bolt-action pistol, which is a common means for veterinarians to quietly put down farm animals.

Cops found the words "Deny," "Delay" and "Depose" written using a Sharpie pen on the bullets – reminiscent of the health insurance industry mantra "Deny, Delay, Defend" for delaying claims and maximizing profits.

Thompson's killing has sparked waves of public contempt over the health insurance industry, and his killer has become something of a folk hero across social media, with some taking to TikTok to sing murder ballads about him.

On Sunday, cops again searched for the killer's gun in Central Park, as well as at Fort Tryon Park, using dogs with gun-detection training.

Police found the killer's backpack in Central Park and are testing it for DNA, cops said. A high-ranking NYPD official said the bag contained Monopoly game money.

The feds late Friday began distributing a wanted poster after police said the suspect may have jumped on an interstate bus at the uptown bus terminal within 46 minutes of the shooting.

On Saturday, Mayor Adams announced that the "net is tightening," though he wouldn't confirm if police have identified the shooter, who was caught on surveillance footage smiling at a worker at an Upper West Side hostel where he stayed before the killing.

"We don't want to release that now," Adams said when asked if detectives knew the suspect's name. "If you do, you're basically giving a tip to the person we are seeking, and [we] don't want to give him an upper hand at all."

The FBI has offered a $50,000 reward and police are asking anyone with information to call Crime Stoppers at (800) 577-TIPS.

Slay of health care exec spurs outpouring of rage at industry

BY TOM MURPHY AND DEVI SHASTRI THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For years, patients in the U.S. health care system have grown frustrated with a bureaucracy they don't understand.

Doctors are included in an insurer's network one year but not the next. Getting someone on the phone to help can be next to impossible. Coverage of care and prescriptions is often unceremoniously denied.

Last week's fatal shooting of UnitedHealthcare CEO Brian Thompson has unleashed a wave of public feeling – exasperation, anger, resentment, helplessness – from Americans sharing their stories of interactions with insurance companies, often seen as faceless corporate giants. In particular, the words written on ammunition found at the shooting scene – "delay," "deny" and "depose," echoing a phrase used to describe how insurers dodge claim payouts – amplified voices that have long been critical of the industry.

"All of a sudden, I am fired up again," said Tim Anderson, describing how his wife, Mary, had to deal with UnitedHealthcare coverage denials before she died of Lou Gehrig's disease, or amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, in 2022.

Anderson said they couldn't get coverage for machines to help his wife breathe or talk – toward the end, she communicated by blinking when he showed her pictures. The family had to rely on donations from a local ALS group.

"The business model for insurance is don't pay," said Anderson, 67, of Centerville, Ohio. "When Mary could still talk, she said to me to keep fighting this. It needs to be exposed."

For Anderson and others, Thompson's death and the message left at the scene have created an opportunity to vent their frustrations. Conversations at dinner tables, office water coolers, social gatherings and on social media have pivoted to the topic, as police efforts to find the gunman keep the case in the news.

Hans Maristela said he understands why the chatter is bubbling up. The 54-year-old caregiver in California was moved to comment on Facebook about United-Healthcare's reputation of denying coverage. As a Catholic, he said, he grieves Thompson's death and feels for his family, especially with the holidays around the corner.

But he sees frustration with insurers even among his clients, most of them wealthy older people who've not been shielded from high out-ofpocket costs.

"And then you know the CEO of this company you pay a lot of money to gets $10 million a year, you won't have a lot of sympathy for the guy," Maristela said, citing Thompson's compensation package that included base pay and stock options. "Health care is a business, I understand, but the obsession with share price, with profit, has to be reevaluated."

University of Pennsylvania researcher Michael Anne Kyle said she's not surprised by the growth of conversation around insurers.

"People are often struggling with this by themselves, and when you see someone else talk about it, that may prompt you to join the conversation," she said.

Kyle studies how patients access care and said she's seen frustration with the system build for years. Costs are rising, and insurers are using more controls, such as prior authorizations and doctor networks, to manage them. Patients are often stuck in the middle of disputes between doctors and insurers. "Patients are already spending a lot of money on health care, and then they're still facing problems with the service," she said.

Insurers often note that most of the money they bring in goes back out the door to pay claims, and they try to corral soaring costs and the overuse of some care.

Anderson said his initial reaction to the CEO shooting was to question whether it was connected to a coverage denial, like the ones he'd experienced with his wife.

"I definitely do not condone killing people," he said. "But I read it and said, 'I wonder if somebody had a spouse whose coverage was denied."

It's something Will Flanary, a Portland, Ore.-based ophthalmologist and comedian with a large social media following, saw online a lot and found telling. "It's zero sympathy," he said. "And the lesson to take away from that is not, 'Let's shame people for celebrating a murder.' No, it's, 'Look at the amount of anger that people have toward this system that's taken advantage of people and do something to try to fix that'."

Flanary's content, published under the name Dr. Glaucomflecken, started out as niche eye doctor jokes and a way to cope with his own experiences with two cancer diagnoses and a cardiac arrest.

But it has evolved, featuring character skits that call attention to and satirize the decisions of large health insurers, including UnitedHealthcare.

He said he's never seen conversations around health insurance policy take off the way they did last week – and he hopes these new voices can help bring about change. "I'm always talking about how powerful social media can be with advocacy," he said, "because it really is the only way to put a significant amount of pressure on these corporations who are doing bad things for patients." ASSADS IN MOSCON Syrians celebrate ouster of dictator; factions come together

HA

BY ABDULRAHMAN SHAHEEN AND ABBY SEWELL THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAMASCUS, Syria – Ousted Syrian President Bashar Assad fled to Moscow on Sunday, Russian media reported, hours after a stunning rebel advance took over the capital and ended the Assad family's 50 years of iron rule.

Russian agencies Tass and RIA cited an unidentified Kremlin source on Assad and his family being given asylum in Moscow, his longtime ally and protector. The Associated Press was not immediately able to verify the reports but contacted the Kremlin for comment.

RIA said Moscow had received guarantees from insurgents of the security of Russian military bases and diplomatic posts in Syria.

Assad reportedly left Syria early Sunday, and Syrians have been pouring into the streets after a stunning rebel advance reached Damascus, prompting Assad to flee the country.

The swiftly moving events have raised questions about the future of Syria and the wider region. Russia has requested an emergency session of the UN Security Council to discuss the situation, Russia's first deputy permanent representative to the UN, Dmitry Polyansky, posted on Telegram.

Joyful crowds gathered in squares in Damascus, waving the Syrian revolutionary flag in scenes that recalled the early days of the Arab Spring uprising – before a brutal crackdown and the rise of an insurgency plunged the country into a nearly 14-year civil war.

Others gleefully ransacked the presidential palace and residence after Assad and top officials vanished.

Abu Mohammed al-Golani, a former Al Qaeda commander who cut ties with the group years ago and says he embraces pluralism and religious tolerance, leads the biggest rebel faction and is poised to chart the country's future.

In his first public appearance since fighters entered the Damascus suburbs Saturday, al-Golani visited the sprawling Umayyad Mosque. Calling himself by his given name, Ahmad al-Sharaa, he told hundreds of people that Assad had made Syria "a farm for Iran's greed." The rebels face the daunting task of healing divisions in a country ravaged by war and still split among armed factions. Turkey-backed opposition fighters are battling U.S.-allied Kurdish forces in the north, and Islamic State is still active in some remote areas.

Syrian state television broadcast a rebel statement early Sunday that Assad had been overthrown and all prisoners had been released. They called on people to preserve the institutions of "the free Syrian state." The rebels later announced a curfew in Damascus from 4 p.m. to 5 a.m.

The rebels said they freed people held at the notorious Saydnaya prison, where rights groups say thousands were tortured and killed. A video circulating online purported to show rebels breaking open cell doors and freeing dozens of female prisoners, many of whom appeared shocked. At least one small child was seen among them.

"This happiness will not be completed until I can see my son out of prison and know where is he," said one relative, Bassam Masr. "I have been searching for him for two hours. He has been detained for 13 years."

Rebel commander Anas Salkhadi later appeared on state TV and sought to reassure Syria's religious and ethnic minorities, saying: "Syria is for everyone, no exceptions. Syria is for Druze, Sunnis, Alawites and all sects. We will not deal with people the way the Assad family did."

Rebel who toppled Assad, called terrorist by U.S., presents as peacemaker

BY KAREEM CHEHAYEB THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT – Abu Mohammed al-Golani, the militant leader whose stunning insurgency toppled Syrian President Bashar Assad, has spent years working to remake his public image, renouncing longtime ties to Al Qaeda and depicting himself as a champion of pluralism and tolerance. As he (photo) entered Damascus behind his victorious fighters Sunday, he even dropped his nom de guerre and referred to himself with his real name, Ahmad al-Sharaa.

The extent of that transformation from jihadi extremist to would-be state builder is now put to the test.

Insurgents control Damascus, Assad has reportedly fled to Russia and, for the first time after 50 years of his family's iron hand, it is an open question how Syria will be governed.

Syria is home to multiple ethnic and religious communities, often pitted against each other by Assad's state and years of war. Many of them fear the possibility that Sunni Islamist extremists will take over. The country is also fragmented among disparate armed factions, and foreign powers from Russia and Iran to the U.S., Turkey and Israel all have their hands in the mix.

Hours after Damascus' capture, the 42-year-old al-Sharaa made his first appearance in the city's landmark Umayyad Mosque, declaring Assad's fall "a victory for the Islamic nation."

Al-Sharaa, who has been labeled a terrorist by the United States, and his insurgent force, Hayat Tahrir al-Sham, or HTS – many of whose fighters are jihadis – now stand to be major players.

For years, al-Sharaa worked to consolidate power while bottled up in the province of Idlib in Syria's northwest corner as Assad's Iranian- and Russian-backed rule over much of the country appeared solid.

He maneuvered among extremist organizations while eliminating competitors and former allies. He sought to polish the image of his de-facto "salvation government" that has been running Idlib to win over international governments and reassure Syria's religious and ethnic minorities. And he built ties with various tribes and other groups.

"Don't judge by words but by actions," he said.

in mosques and celebrated in squares, calling out "God is great." People chanted anti-Assad slogans and honked car horns. Teenage boys picked up weapons apparently discarded by security forces and fired into the air.

Revelers filled Umayyad Square, where the Defense Ministry is. Some waved the three-star Syrian flag that predates the Assad government and was adopted by the revolutionaries.

Elsewhere, many parts of the capital were empty and shops were closed.

Soldiers and police left their posts and fled, and looters broke into the Defense Ministry. Videos showed families wandering the presidential palace, some carrying stacks of plates and other household items. "It's like a dream. I need someone to wake me up," opposition fighter Abu Laith said, adding that rebels were welcomed in Damascus with "love."

At the Justice Ministry, where rebels stood guard, Judge Khitam Haddad said they were protecting documents from the chaos. Outside, some residents sought information about relatives who disappeared under Assad.

The Alawite sect at the core of Assad's base called on young Syrians to be "calm, rational and prudent and not to be dragged into what tears apart the unity of our country."

The rebels mainly come from the Sunni Muslim majority in Syria, which has sizable Druze, Christian and Kurdish communities. In Qamishli in the northeast, a Kurdish man slapped a statue of the late leader Hafez Assad with his shoe.

Prime Minister Mohammed Ghazi Jalali said the government was ready to "extend its hand" to the opposition and turn its functions over to a transitional government.

The Gulf nation of Qatar, a key regional mediator, hosted an emergency meeting with eight countries with interests in Syria late Saturday, including Iran, Saudi Arabia, Russia and Turkey.

Qatar's Foreign Ministry said they agreed on the need "to engage all parties on the ground," including the [Hayat Tahrir al-Sham rebels], and that the main concern is "stability and safe transition."

Biden: Assad's fall is 'justice' But also 'moment of risk' in Mideast; lauds U.S. forces remaining in Syria

President Biden addresses the sudden collapse of the Syrian government after rebel forces take over the country wracked by civil war for years. At right, a Syrian insurgent in Damascus steps on the head broken off from a statue of late Syrian President Hafez Assad, the father of deposed dictator Bashar Assad.

BY WILL WEISSERT THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON – President Biden said Sunday that the sudden collapse of the Syrian government under Bashar Assad is a "fundamental act of justice" after decades of repression, but it was "a moment of risk and uncertainty" for the Mideast.

Biden spoke at the White House hours after rebel groups completed a takeover of the country after more than a dozen years of violent civil war and decades of rule by Assad and his family. Biden said the United States was monitoring reports that Assad was seeking refuge in Moscow.

The outgoing Biden administration and President-elect Donald Trump were working to make sense of new threats and opportunities across the Middle East.

Biden credited action by the U.S. and its allies for weakening Syria's backers – Russia, Iran and Iran-backed Hezbollah. He said "for the first time" that they could no longer defend Assad's grip on power.

"Our approach has shifted the balance of power in the Middle East," Biden said after a meeting with his national security team at the White House.

Trump said Sunday that Assad had fled his country because close ally Vladimir Putin, the Russian president, "was not interested in protecting him any longer."

Those comments on Trump's social media platform came a day after he used another post to decry the possibility of the U.S. intervening militarily in Syria to aid the rebels, declaring: "THIS IS NOT OUR FIGHT?" The Biden administration had no intention of intervening, according to Biden's national security adviser.

The U.S. has about 900 troops in Syria, including forces working with Kurdish allies in the opposition-held northeast to prevent any resurgence of the Islamic State group. Biden said he intended those troops to remain, adding that U.S. forces conducted "dozens" of what he called "precision airstrikes" Sunday on Islamic State camps and operations in Syria.

U.S. Central Command said the operation hit more than 75 targets.

"We're clear-eyed about the fact that ISIS will try and take advantage of any vacuum to reestablish its credibility and create a safe haven," Biden said. "We will not let that happen."

Biden also said "some of the rebel groups that took down Assad have their own grim record of terrorism and human rights abuses." He added that the groups are "saying the right things now."

"But as they take on greater responsibility, we will assess not just their words, but their actions."

Assad's fall adds to an already tense situation throughout much of region on many fronts, including Israel's war with Iran-backed Hamas in Gaza and its fragile ceasefire with Hezbollah in Lebanon.

Trump, who takes office Jan.

20, made a connection between the upheaval in Syria and Russia's war in Ukraine, noting that Assad's allies in Moscow, as well as in Iran, the main sponsor of Hamas and Hezbollah, "are in a weakened state right now."

Trump has suggested that Assad's ouster can advance the prospects for an end to fighting in Ukraine, which was invaded by Russia in February 2022.

Trump wrote that Putin's government "lost all interest in Syria because of Ukraine," the president-elect calling for an immediate ceasefire a day after meeting in Paris with the French and Ukrainian leaders.

Daniel Shapiro, a deputy assistant secretary of defense for the Middle East, said the American military presence will continue in eastern Syria but was "solely to ensure the enduring defeat of ISIS and has nothing to do with other aspects of this conflict."

"We call on all parties in Syria to protect civilians, particularly those from Syria's minority communities, to respect international military norms and to work to achieve a resolution to include the political settlement," Shapiro said.

"Multiple actors in this conflict have a terrible track record to include Assad's horrific crimes, Russia's indiscriminate aerial bomb bombardment, Iranian-back militia involvement and the atrocities of ISIS."

As they pushed toward Syria's capital, Damascus, the opposition freed political detainees from government prisons. The family of missing U.S. journalist Austin Tice renewed calls to find him. "To everyone in Syria that hears this, please remind people that we're waiting for Austin," said Tice's mother, Debra, in comments that hostage advocacy groups spread on social media.

Tice disappeared in 2012 outside Damascus.

Biden said at the White House: "We believe he's alive, we think we can get him back, but we have no direct evidence to that yet."

MTA NEAR CLEARING A Ancient switches that cause delays at DeKalb Ave.

BY EVAN SIMKO-BEDNARSKI NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Most Brooklyn-bound straphangers who travel over the Manhattan Bridge are familiar with the moment that the sweeping East River view is replaced by the darkness of a tunnel as the train descends back underground and, almost like clockwork, stops and holds in the tunnel before entering the DeKalb Ave. station.

The delay happens so often that it's more noteworthy when it doesn't – and the MTA's planners, signal officers and train crews all know that travel on the B, D, N, Q and R trains slows down through the series of switches and tracks known as the DeKalb interlocking.

But now, armed with new train cars, new signal systems – and, hopefully, billions of dollars with which to buy more of both the MTA says relief is on the horizon for one of the subway system's most stubborn sections.

"Not everyone knows its name, but every Brooklyn rider knows the effects of the DeKalb interlocking," Jamie Torres-Springer, MTA's construction and development boss, said during a recent visit to DeKalb. "You've got 350,000 daily riders on these five lines, and almost every one of them seems to experience a few seconds or more of delay as one train is stuck on the bridge or in the tunnel, waiting for another train to cross in front of it."

Put simply, the array of switches around the DeKalb Ave. station swaps trains between Manhattan's Sixth Ave. Line – the orange B and the D trains on a typical subway map – and the Broadway Line, the yellow-bulleted N, Q and R, and recombines them to put the D train with the N and the R down Fourth Ave. in Brooklyn, and the B with the Q along Brooklyn's Brighton Line.

This practice, called interlining, gives passengers the ability to get to more parts of the city without transferring trains. But it also means transit workers must act like air traffic controllers, governing the switches and signals that make some trains stop so that others can cross in front of them.

At DeKalb, this is done at the DeKalb Signal Tower – a room which, despite its lofty name, is buried behind a locked, nondescript door off the station's mezzanine.

"This is essentially the beating heart of the B division – the lettered lines," said Chris Pangilinan, chief of operations and Planning for NYC Transit. "Almost all the lettered lines are affected somehow, either directly or indirectly, by all the lines running through here."

At the center of the room sits the "model board," a large black metal triptych with white lines showing tracks, switches and stations under the tower's control. Small LED segments light up to show when a train has occupied a given section of track.

Perched atop the model board, amid memos from headquarters, sat a small wooden ship and a sign that read, "be grateful."

The tower operators sitting at the board pressed buttons along the track lines, setting routes through the interlocking for oncoming subways as radio chatter crackled from their crews.

One door down, in a large relay room, rows and rows of 1930s era electromechanical relays clicked and clacked as tower operators set routes and trains moved along the tracks below.

"This is a large tower," said Shanna Parker, a general superintendent with NYC

CLOGGED SUBWAY ARTERY station in Brooklyn making way for whole new regime

Transit. "It has the B, the D, the Q, N [and] R regularly, the W certain times – in the morning and in the evenings you have Ws come through here – and the Franklin Ave. Shuttle."

"You have DeKalb interlocking, you have Gold St. interlocking, Pacific St. interlocking, and you have Prospect Park interlocking, all in this tower," she said.

As she spoke, lights on the board began to move, shadowing a train moving out from DeKalb and toward Atlantic Ave.

But the lights don't track the train as much as they identify occupied blocks of track, explained Sandy Castillo, an assistant chief signals officer for the subway system.

"The position is not accurate," he said. "As you can see here, between DeKalb and Atlantic – which is about half a mile – you only have a set number of indications. The blocks that we detect, it's a large area." That system, known as "block signalling," only tells the tower operators roughly where a train is located. That can lead to traffic jams entering the interlocking.

"They're very large physical blocks – the trains must be very far apart," Castillo said. "And that adds to the time until you can replace a train in the station."

By contrast, modern computerized signaling – known as communication-based train control, or CBTC – involves wireless transponders in a train communicating with transponders along the track, allowing for precise triangulation of a train's location.

"With CBTC we can bring a train much closer," said Castillo. "We know exactly where that train is. Timing is improved."

CBTC – which requires new train cars as well as new signaling equipment – is already in use along the 7 and L trains, a portion of the E train on the Queens Blvd. Line, and was recently put into service on the Culver Line of the F train between W. Eighth St. and Ditmas Ave. in Brooklyn.

CBTC prep work has also been completed along the northern end of the A train, as well as the Crosstown Line of the G train.

The MTA had planned to install CBTC equipment along one of the two lines feeding the DeKalb interlocking – the Sixth Ave. Line of the B, D, F and M trains – in the 2020-24 capital budget, but had been unable to fund the project amid delays to the state's congestion tolling program.

Now that the toll is expected to start in 2025, Torres-Springer said the signal upgrades are back on track for Sixth Ave. Upgrades to the Broadway line – the N, Q, R and W – are expected to be funded in the upcoming 2025-2029 capital budget. In all, the MTA is asking for $5.4 billion to upgrade signals in the next five years, a budget that includes CBTC installation on the J and the Z in Manhattan and the A and Rockaway Shuttle in southeastern Queens.

Not only would new signals speed trains up through the DeKalb interlocking, it would also make the tower obsolete, allowing the interlocking to be controlled from afar at MTA's Rail Control Center in Midtown Manhattan.

But there's no firm timeline yet as to when DeKalb can be fully converted – with new equipment, signals and trains – to a modern CBTC system.

For now, those riders waiting to pass through the interlocking will have to sit tight, and hope the train gets held on the bridge where they can still enjoy the view.

Click heels for $28 mil Slippers from 'Oz' set record for memorabilia sale at auction

BY JOSEPH WILKINSON NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

A pair of ruby slippers worn by Judy Garland in "The Wizard of Oz" and later stolen from a museum were sold at auction for a whopping $28 million.

Bidding for the slippers reached a fever pitch Saturday afternoon and skyrocketed past the auction house estimate of $3 million. The identity of the winning bidder was not revealed.

Heritage Auctions, based in Dallas, handled the sale for collector Michael Shaw, who owned the slippers. After fees, the winning bidder will pay $32.5 million for the 85-year-old shoes.

Garland wore numerous pairs of slippers while starring as Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz" in 1939 but only four pairs are known to still exist.

The pair sold Saturday had been loaned by Shaw to the Judy Garland Museum in Grand Rapids, Minn., until 2005 when they were stolen. Their fate remained a mystery until 2018 when the FBI recovered them in a sting operation. However the theft itself went unsolved until May 2023, when former mobster Terry Jon Martin – who was 76 at the time – was indicted. In October 2023, Martin pleaded guilty in the case and admitted that he used a small hammer to smash the case holding the slippers. He told the court he thought the rubies were real and discarded the slippers when he learned they weren't.

At the time of his plea, Martin was in hospice care and required constant oxygen for treatment of COPD. He was expected to only live six more months, and all parties agreed that he should spend no time in jail. However he has lived through the year.

The auction set a record for a piece of entertainment memorabilia, according to Heritage Auctions. The previous record was $5.52 million for the white dress Marilyn Monroe once wore above a windy subway grate.

The Judy Garland Museum said it bid in an attempt to reacquire the slippers but didn't have the funds to keep up with the unexpectedly high offers.

EX-S. KOREA DEFENSE CHIEF HELD Probers say military big pushed prez to launch martial law bid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL – South Korean prosecutors detained a former defense minister Sunday who allegedly recommended last week's brief but stunning martial law imposition to President Yoon Suk Yeol, making him the first figure detained in the case.

The development came a day after Yoon avoided an opposition-led bid to impeach him in parliament, with most ruling party lawmakers boycotting a floor vote to prevent the two-thirds majority needed to suspend his presidential powers. The main opposition Democratic Party said it will prepare a new impeachment motion against Yoon.

Ex-Defense Minister Kim Yong Hyun was taken into custody at a Seoul detention facility after undergoing an investigation by prosecutors, a law enforcement official said, requesting anonymity in line with privacy rules.

The official gave no further details. But South Korean media reported that Kim voluntarily appeared at a Seoul prosecutors' office, where he had his mobile phone confiscated and was detained. The reports said police searched Kim's former office and residence Sunday.

Repeated calls to Seoul prosecutors' offices and police agency were unanswered.

Senior prosecutor Park Sehyun said in a televised statement Sunday that authorities launched a 62-member special investigation team on the martial law case. Park, who will head the team, said the probe would "leave no suspicions."

Yoon accepted Kim's resignation offer Thursday after opposition parties submitted a separate impeachment motion against him.

Kim is a central figure in Yoon's martial law enforcement, which led to special-forces troops encircling the National Assembly building and army helicopters hovering over it. The military withdrew after the parliament unanimously voted to overturn Yoon's decree, forcing his cabinet to lift it before daybreak Wednesday.

In Kim's impeachment motion document, the Democratic Party and other opposition parties accused him of proposing martial law to Yoon. Vice Defense Minister Kim Seon Ho told parliament that Kim Yong Hyun ordered the deployment of troops to the National Assembly.

The Democratic Party called Yoon's martial law imposition "unconstitutional, illegal rebellion or a coup." It has filed complaints with police against at least nine people, including Yoon and Kim, over the alleged rebellion.

In a statement Wednesday, Kim said "all troops who performed duties related to martial law were acting on my instructions, and all responsibility lies with me."

The Defense Ministry said it has suspended three top military commanders over their alleged involvement in the martial law imposition.

Yoon issued an apology Saturday over the martial law decree, saying he won't shirk legal or political responsibility for the declaration. He said he would leave it to his party to chart a course through the country's political turmoil, "including matters related to my term in office."

Since taking office in 2022 for a single five-year term, Yoon has struggled to push his agenda through an oppositioncontrolled parliament and grappled with low approval ratings amid scandals involving him and his wife.

Ruling People Power Party leader Han Dong-hun said Sunday that the PPP will work with the government to determine Yoon's early and orderly exit from office in a way that minimizes confusion, but he didn't say when that would happen. He also claimed that Yoon will not be involved in state affairs, including foreign policy.

Yoon's presidential office didn't immediately respond.

1st Mass at Notre-Dame since 2019 fire

In a second historic day at Paris' Notre-Dame Cathedral, about 2,500 people attend first Mass at the landmark since the devastating 2019 blaze. Top, clergymen lean at altar. Reservations for the Mass were snapped up in 25 minutes last week. AP

BY JOSEPH WILKINSON NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Notre-Dame Cathedral hosted its first Mass since 2019 on Sunday, more than five years after a fire devastated the historic building.

Archbishop Laurent Ulrich led the proceedings, and French President Emmanuel Macron was in attendance. About 2,500 people heard the liturgy, including many clergy and dignitaries. The ceremony was not open to the general public.

The cathedral was ceremonially reopened Saturday, with Macron and President-elect Donald Trump in attendance.

But Sunday's Mass was the first religious service in the 12th century building since the blaze.

Many people watched from outside in the rain hoping for a glimpse of the proceedings. The security operation was compared with the 2024 Paris Olympics. "There is so much security," retired engineer Claude Lancrenon told The Associated Press while watching on. "Yesterday, that seemed appropriate. But today, I had hoped it would be more open so we could approach the cathedral. I still hope we'll be able to get closer."

Reservations for the evening Mass were snapped up in 25 minutes last week.

Macron attended the ceremonies despite political turbulence in France, where the prime minister was ousted last week in a no-confidence vote. Macron did not take Communion on Sunday, in line with the French separation of church and state.

"I stand before you ... to express the gratitude of the French nation," he said at Saturday's event. "Tonight, the bells of Notre-Dame are ringing again."

Construction on the cathedral started in 1163. A fire on April 15, 2019, toppled the cathedral's iconic spire and threatened the integrity of the entire structure. Workers have spent the past five years meticulously restoring the cathedral.

WASHINGTON -President-elect Donald Trump pushed Russian leader Vladimir Putin on Sunday to act to reach an immediate ceasefire with Ukraine, describing it as part of his efforts as the incoming president to end the war despite being weeks from taking office.

"Zelensky and Ukraine would like to make a deal," Trump wrote on social media, referring to Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy.

In a TV interview aired Sunday, Trump also said he would be open to reducing military aid to Ukraine and pulling the United States out of NATO. Those are two threats that have alarmed Ukraine, NATO allies and many in the U.S. national security community.

Asked on NBC's "Meet the Press" if he were working to end the nearly three-year-old Ukraine war, Trump said: "I am."

He would not say whether he had spoken to Putin since winning the election in November: "I don't want to say anything about that, because I don't want to do anything that could impede the negotiation."

Trump's call for an immediate ceasefire went beyond the public policy stands taken by the Biden administration and Ukraine, and it drew a cautious response from Zelenskyy. It also marked Trump's wading unusually deep into efforts before his inauguration on Jan. 20 to resolve one of the major crises facing the lame-duck Biden administration.

Trump made his proposal after a weekend meeting with French and Ukrainian leaders in Paris, where many world leaders gathered to celebrate the restoration of Notre-Dame Cathedral. Of his advisers who traveled with him, none appeared to have expertise on Ukraine.

Kyiv would like to close a deal and "stop the madness," Trump wrote on Truth Social. "There should be an immediate ceasefire and negotiations should begin.

"I know Vladimir well. This is his time to act. China can help. The World is waiting!" He was referring to mediation efforts by China that many in the West have seen as favoring Russia.

Zelenskyy described his discussions Saturday with Trump, brought together by French President Emmanuel Macron, as "constructive," but gave no further details.

In a post Sunday on the Telegram messaging app, Zelenskyy cautioned that Ukraine needs a "just and robust peace, that Russians will not destroy within a few years."

"When we talk about an effective peace with Russia, we must talk first of all about effective peace guarantees. Ukrainians want peace more than anyone else. Russia brought war to our land," he said.

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov responded to Trump's post by repeating Moscow's longstanding message that it is open to talks with Ukraine. Peskov referenced a decree by Zelenskyy from October 2022 that formally declared the prospect of any talks "impossible" as long as Putin is Russia's leader. That decree came after Putin proclaimed four occupied regions of Ukraine to be part of Russia, in what Kviv and the West said was a violation of Ukrainian sovereignty.

Monday, December 9, 2024 15

Trump's former national security adviser, retired Lt. Gen. H.R. Mc-Master, warned there was no such thing as a quick fix to ending the war. "What I'm worried about is this kind of flawed idea that Putin can be placated, right, that Putin will come to some kind of a deal," he told "Fox News Sunday."

"I think it's really important for President Trump to adhere to his instinct in this connection ... peace through strength. How about give them what they need to defend themselves, and then saying to Putin 'You're going to lose this war?'"

Trump's proposal was framed as a direct appeal to Russia. The quick responses from Ukraine and Russia demonstrated the seriousness with which they regard the idea from the incoming president.

DEIR AL BALAH, Gaza Strip – Israeli airstrikes in central Gaza killed at least 14 people including children Sunday, Palestinian health officials said, while the bombing of a hospital in northern Gaza wounded a half-dozen patients.

Israel's military continues its latest offensive against Hamas militants in northern Gaza, whose remaining Palestinians have been almost completely cut off from the rest of the territory amid a growing humanitarian crisis.

One airstrike flattened a residential building in the urban Bureij refugee camp Sunday afternoon, according to the Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital in the nearby city of Deir al-Balah, where the casualties were taken.

At least nine people were killed including six children and a woman. An Associated Press journalist saw the bodies at the hospital's morgue.

Earlier on Sunday, another Israeli strike hit a tent in the Nuseirat refugee camp, killing at least five people including two parents and their two children, Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital said.

In northern Gaza, the Health Ministry said a bombing targeted the Indonesian Hospital wounding six patients, one of them seriously. It is the largest hospital north of Gaza City.

"We demand international protection for hospitals, patients and medical staff," the ministry said in a statement that also urged safe passage to and from hospitals, more medical supplies and fuel and safe evacuation of the wounded.

The Israeli military Sunday evening said it was unaware of any attack on the Indonesian Hospital "in the last three to four hours?

Meanwhile, the military said it briefly closed the key Kerem Shalom crossing after fighters launched mortar shells several meters (feet) from the nearby humanitarian corridor toward its troops. It said Gaza's main cargo crossing was reopened after those who fired were "eliminated," though it added that the arrival and distribution of humanitarian aid was delayed.

Kerem Shalom is the only crossing between Israel and Gaza that is designed for cargo shipments and has been the main artery for aid since the Rafah crossing with Egypt was shut in May. Last month, nearly two-thirds of aid entering Gaza came through Kerem Shalom.

A second cold, rainy winter is beginning in Gaza, with hundreds of thousands of Palestinians in squalid tent camps and reliant on international aid.

The war in Gaza began when Hamas-led militants attacked southern Israel on Oct. 7, 2023, killing some 1,200 people, mostly civilians, and abducting around 250 people. Some 100 hostages are still inside Gaza, at least a third believed to be dead.

Israel's retaliatory offensive has killed over 45,600 Palestinians in Gaza, more than half of them women and children, according to Gaza's Health Ministry, which does not say how many were combatants. The Israeli military says it has killed more than 17,000 militants, without providing evidence.

ON BROADWAY

guide to current Broadway shows by Daily News theater critic Chris Jones:

& Juliet: A savvy jukebox musical from London offering a feminist reworking of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" with added bits and songs made famous by Pink, Britney and Kesha, et al. This nonstop party-empowerment show is derivative, over-confident and fun. Stephen Sondheim Theatre, 124 W. 43rd St.

Aladdin: Disney's "Aladdin" is a bit too frenetic, gag-heavy and overly anxious to please – but it has settled in as an entertaining family attraction featuring a diverse cast, a fun genie whose antics will always remain a tribute to Robin Williams, and the requisite magic carpet ride against a backdrop of the glittering lights of a utopian Arabian night. New Amsterdam Theatre, 214 W. 42nd St.

Back to the Future: The Musical: Closer to a thrill-park ride than a traditional musical, this frenetic new spectacle from London showcases a flying DeLorean car essentially re-creating the role played, years ago, by the helicopter in "Miss Saigon." The show is attracting a family and tourist audience and Roger Bart at peak eccentricity is fun to watch. But unlike the film, the show makes you feel very little. Winter Garden Theatre, 1634 Broadzway.

The Book of Mormon: A relic of an era when satirists had more guts, Trey Parker and Matt Stone's show lampoons the LDS religion with the same sharp edge familiar from "South Park." Go enjoy a wicked musical from before America lost so much of its sense of humor. Eugene O'Neill Theatre, 230 W. 49th St.

Cabaret at the Kit Kat Club: An epic disappointment and a money-grabbing misfire, this revival of a musical theater masterpiece is overpriced, under-eroticized and, for the most part, poorly sung. It's an example of the immersive theater craze taken too far and with the wrong show to boot. Adam Lambert now stars as the Emcee of this unfortunate shebang. Spend your money elsewhere on Broadway. August Wilson Theatre, 245 W. 52nd St.

Chicago: This long-lived show celebrating real-life killers of prohibition-era Chicago has been pulling in Broadway suckers since 1996. The real stars here are John Kander and Fred Ebb, who penned a score that drips with melodic aspiration and lyrical cynicism, and Bob Fosse, whose erotically muscular choreography is the perfect match. Ambassador Theatre, 219 W. 49th St.

The Great Gatsby: This is what many people think of when they ponder a big Broadway night out: a familiar yet glamorous title from the Jazz Age, a star tenor in the titular role, songs of passion, obsession and resolve set to string-heavy orchestrations, and a massive Art Deco set cascading off the stage, which has the décor to match. The show is dull and emotionally inert but it's the best dressed crowd on Broadway. Broadway Theatre, 1681 Broadway.

Hadestown: A dystopian 2019 musical rooted in the 2010 concept album by Anaïs Mitchell and updates and retells the classic myth of Orpheus and Eurydice via a compellingly theatrical blend of steampunk, "Westworld" and self-aware Bourbon St. sensuality. It's a thrillingly alarmist show, albeit potentially jarring to those who prefer warmer or more traditional musicals. Mitchell's music variously evokes gospel, blues, blue collar work-song and the ravings of a rabid cult. Walter Kerr Theatre, 219 W. 48th St.

Hamilton: Still a tough and expensive ticket, this Lin-Manuel Miranda global cultural phenomenon employs a young, diverse cast to tell the story of Alexander Hamilton, the Founding Father with the long-term berth on the ten-spot, but also a scrappy immigrant who wrote like he was running out of time. The music is eclectic and often gorgeous, the emotional intensity still capable of blowing all else away. Richard Rodgers Theatre, 226 W. 46th St.

Harry Potter and the Cursed Child: An epic commitment requiring two tickets and six hours has now been reduced to a more manageable single show. We purists lament the change, which cut much of the subtlety and fun in the text but left all the spectacular theatrical effects. Even in this version, though, Harry Potter fans leave fully satiated. Lyric Theatre, 214 W. 43rd St.

Hell's Kitchen: The songs of Alicia Keys are well suited to a jukebox musical. The burst of energy that flows from hits like "Girl on Fire" are dynamic blasts in a show drawing from Keys' own origin story as a kid growing up in the federally subsidized artists' haven of Manhattan Plaza in Hell's Kitchen. No surprises here and you have to love Keys' music. But lots of warm sentiment and affection for a creative Gotham childhood. Shubert Theatre, 225 W. 44th St.

The Hills of California: Despite the title, Jez Butterworth's epic drama is set in a Blackpool boarding house in the North West of England in the 1950s, when the town is thriving, and the 1970s, when it is down on its heels. Sam Mendes' production is masterful and the play is a searing drama of a Mama Rose of the Golden Mile and her unfortunate children whom she dreams of making stars. The central, riveting performance is from Laura Donnelly and it's a stunner. Broadhurst Theatre, 235 W. 44th St.

Left on Tenth: Starring Julianna Margulies and Peter Gallagher, Delia Ephron's sweet if unsurprising play-memoir combo is an ode to the possibility of late-in-life love and a chronicle of the awkwardness of its propagation. But it's also a portrait of what it's like to lose a loving partner, in this case a man with whom the writer used to dance around the bedroom, and have to reinvent your life anew. James Earl Jones Theatre, 138 W. 48th St.

The Lion King: Julie Taymor's masterful work is 25 years old but still as fresh as a Serengeti morning. This Disney family attraction features stunning puppets, visual tableaux, Elton John songs, African music. It's deservedly the most successful musical of its era. Minskoff Theatre, 200 W. 45th St.

Maybe Happy Ending: Add some falling snow and you'd have a Hallmark movie, but as written by Will Aronson and Hue Park this sleeper hit comes with a very arresting twist. Darren Criss and Helen J. Shen play highly sophisticated South Korean robots in what turns out to be a very charming, romantic, craftful and slightly unnerving little musical about the growing similarity between robots and humans and how we might all one day seek love and worry about our battery life. Belasco Theatre, 111 W. 44th St.

MJ The Musical: This homage to the King of Pop is set during the creative process for Michael Jackson's "Dangerous" world tour. Although there is little mention of the MJ controversies (the estate prefers it that way), "MJ" offers the chance to hear a slew of iconic MJ hits and experience his choreographic soul through the simpatico-but-original ideas of Christopher Wheeldon. Neil Simon Theatre, 250 W. 52nd St.

Moulin Rouge the Musical!: A decadent live translation of Baz Luhrmann's widely beloved 2001 movie musical and an intense, anachronistic extravaganza that stuffs cuts of pop anthems (70 songs! 161 composers!) inside a letter-box of gorgeous retro-red velour. This is date-night pastiche with a unifying communal playlist, and an omnisexual dip into a sensual ocean with nervous fellow travelers. Al Hirschfeld Theatre, 302 W. 45th St.

The Notebook: This weepy new musical based on the 1996 Nicholas Sparks novel and the hit 2004 movie has a gorgeous suite of songs from Ingrid Michaelson, landing somewhere between Duncan Sheik, Jeanine Tesori and Sara Bareilles. The populist show is not for romantic cynics, as you might expect, but this actually is a strikingly artful and minimalist telling of love across generations. Gerald Schoenfeld Theatre, 236 W. 45th St.

Oh, Mary!: Cole Escola's chaotic version of Mary Todd Lincoln casts the former First lady as a wild-eyed wannabe cabaret star marinated in whiskey, paint thinner and self-delusion – and the star of an uproariously anachronistic summer farce that has arrived on the Main Stem from edgier points downtown. It's a satiric soupcon at just 80 minutes, but the running time packs in more laughs than any place on Broadway. Even Abe Lincoln would laugh at this one. Lyceum Theatre, 149 W. 45th St.

Our Town: Kenny Leon's emotionally charged revival of one of the greatest American dramas has an engaging if stylistically varied cast that includes Jim Parsons, Ephraim Sykes, Katie Holmes, Billy Eugene Jones, Zoey Deutch, Michelle Wilson and Richard Thomas, and a notably swift pacing that boils a three-act play down to an intermissionless 105 minutes. Parsons is especially moving. Ethel Barrymore Theatre, 243 W. 47th St.

The Outsiders: The beloved YA author S.E. Hinton famously penned "The Outsiders" after watching two rival gangs explode at her own Will Rogers School in Tulsa. The resultant musical needed greater expansion of character, a gentler, simpler touch, a better sense of authentic teenage angst and a deeper focus on the heart. But many love this story and will enjoy the talents here and the fresh roots/country score by the Austin-based Jamestown Revival. Jacobs Theatre, 242 W. 45th St.

Romeo + Juliet: While the two much-followed celebrity leads, Kit Connor and Rachel Zegler, are capable and sincere, Sam Gold's uber-contemporary, all-the-feels production of the iconic Shakespearean title is is (a) altogether too much of too much; (b) a bit of an ill-focused mess; and (c) less than engrossing. Circle in the Square Theatre, 235, W. 50th St.

The Roommate: This Jen Silverman play about two unlike roommates living outside Iowa City is not great dramatic literature but Jack O'Brien's show is one heck of a vehicle for Patti LuPone and Mia Farrow, two fantastically accomplished and more importantly present performers who are a total blast from start to finish. Booth Theatre, 222 W. 45th St., New York.

SIX: The Musical: Just 90 minutes, this small-cast original pop musical is centered on the six wives of Henry VIII who bond in a post-death sisterhood and compete for who actually had the worst time with their bearded pig. Audiences generally ignore the relatively thin gruel and have an empowering blast. Lena Horne Theatre, 256 W. 47th St.

Stereophonic: A fabulous, three-hour dissection of ego, insecurity and the messy, messed-up gorgeousness of the creative process, David Adjmi's "Stereophonic" is about an up-and-coming British rock band on the brink of superstardom making a studio album in California between the summers of 1976 and 1977. What a brilliant piece of must-see Broadway. It's Chekhovian, babe. Golden Theatre, 242 W. 45th St.

Suffs: With Hillary Rodham Clinton as a producer, an all-female cast of 23 playing historical figures, and a weighty topic like the history of women's suffrage, Shaina Taub's new Broadway musical "Suffs" is more of a gathering of the politically like-minded than a complex evening suffused with surprise.But "Suffs" also is a moving, stirring show that does what all the best Broadway musicals do: It humanizes, empowers, entertains and moves an audience. Music Box Theatre. 239 W. 45th St.

Sunset Boulevard: There's no more gilded cage for Norma in director Jamie Lloyd's red-hot, straight-from-London revival of Andrew Lloyd Webber's noir 1993 musical, "Sunset Boulevard," not with Nicole Scherzinger sizzling in the lead role. Norma Desmond has morphed from deranged diva to sexy beast, from an object of creepy pity warbling emotional ballads of regret to an eroticized star at her sexual peak, making wide-eyed love to a camera even when dripping with her lover's blood. Wowza! St. James Theatre, 246 W. 44th St.

Water for Elephants: This sentimental new musical based on the 2006 Sara Gruen novel and the 2011 Reese Witherspoon movie has one of the more remarkable ensembles ever seen on Broadway. This hugely talented crew sings, dances and are fully believable as acrobats, aerialists and roustabouts from the tawdry touring circus culture of America in the early 20th century, the setting of a sawdust story wherein an elephant named Rosie busts her trunk through a love triangle. "Water for Elephants" is formulaic in places but buoyed by a terrific ensemble. Imperial Theatre, 249 W. 45th St.

Wicked: Now more than 20 years old, "Wicked" is one of Broadway's best loved attractions. It's a prequel to "The Wizard of Oz" and focused on the intense friendship between two witches, one good, one maybe better. The Winnie Holzman book is a witty tour de force and Steven Schwartz came up with a bevy of emotional numbers, including "Defying Gravity," one of the great Act One closers of all time. Gershwin Theatre 222 W. 51st St.

A Wonderful World: The Louis Armstrong Musical: A musically rich if wordy and information-heavy Broadway dive into the life and times of Satchmo that's a reminder of just how challenging the jukebox biographical genre can be, even when you have a star of the level of craft and talent evidenced by James Monroe Iglehart, a stellar Pops. It's conventional fare but filled with great American song. Studio 54, 254 W. 54th St.

EDIORIAL Syria the day after he ex-dictator of Syria, Bashar Assad, is lucky that, unlike fellow deposed tyrants, he didn't end up dead at the end of a rope like Saddam Hussein of Iraq or dead at the end of a sewer pipe like Muammar Gaddafi of Libya. Instead, Assad has been granted asylum far from the Mediterranean in balmy Moscow on "humanitarian grounds," which has to be the only time the word "humanitarian" can be associated with this butcher, who slaughtered hundreds of thousands of Syrians, including deploying chemical weapons against civilians.

While freedom reigns (at least temporarily) in Damascus, which is a drastic change from the recent history of that ancient city, what is unchanged since Assad's rapid fall is the Pentagon running a bombing campaign against ISIS targets in the country. More than 75 ISIS camps and operatives in central Syria were blasted yesterday by airstrikes from Air Force B-52s, F-15s, and A-10s, in support of the 900 U.S. troops in the country to combat ISIS. That American mission, to prevent the return of bloodthirsty ISIS, must continue.

Assad and his horrible regime are gone, "a fundamental act of justice" as President Biden put it yesterday. We still don't know who will be replacing him, but the leader of one of the larger rebel groups, Abu Mohammed al-Golani (whose real name is Ahmad al-Sharaa) still has a $10 million price on his head from the U.S. government for his days as an Al Qaeda loyalist.

While he's broken with Al Qaeda and fought them in recent years, the imposition of strict Islamic rule is not what splintered Syria – with many minorities and sects, like Kurds, Alawites, Shiites, Druze and Christians – needs.

Syria has been shattered. Since the civil war broke out in 2011, half the population of 24 million has been displaced, about six million internally and six million made refugees in other countries, notably in neighboring Turkey and in Europe. Maybe, hopefully, people can return to their homes, if they still exist.

Turkey sponsored the rebels led by al-Golani/ al-Sharaa, but what really added to the push were the defeats of Assad's backers of Russia, Hezbollah and Iran.

As Donald Trump correctly points out, Russia has been bled dry with its invasion of Ukraine. Hezbollah was destroyed by Israel after the Lebanese terrorists joined Hamas after the Oct. 7 attacks. Iran was militarily embarrassed and humbled by Israel in not defending its proxies Hamas and Hezbollah and in two failed Iranian attacks on Israel which resulted in Israel eliminating Iran's air defense network.

Left naked without his three allies, Assad's forces crumpled when pressed.

The one area where Assad and his dictator father before him, Hafez Assad, maintained peace and security and scrupulously kept international order was along the ceasefire line with Israel following the Yom Kippur War. For 50 years, since the 1974 truce, the buffer zone has been quiet. When the regime collapsed yesterday, the Syrian Army melted away and Israel took over their positions to prevent ISIS or others from filling the vacuum.

As for Assad, he won't face the mob or a tribunal and while in Moscow he can resume his ophthalmology practice that he had in London before he had to return to Damascus when his older brother and planned future dictator died in a car crash 30 years ago.

TikTok ban won't solve the problem federal appeals court Friday upheld a controversial law banning the U.S. operations of TikTok – the massively popular video-based social networking app owned by Chinese company ByteDance – unless it finds a U.S. buyer. That gives the company just six weeks to keep fighting before the ax falls. We have our issues with TikTok, but we won't be cheering that outcome.

This impacts a lot of Americans, as there are 170 million U.S. users, about half the total population of the country and more than the combined numbers who voted for Donald Trump and Kamala Harris.

The most dangerous aspect of TikTok, a potential Chinese state weaponization, is speculative. Lawmakers and the Department of Justice are arguing that the platform could be compelled to share data on users with authorities in Beijing, or used to gather information on potential spies or any number of other schemes running the gamut from plausible to Tom Clancy novel.

Yet there's no public hard evidence that any of this has actually happened or even been attempted; we specific "public" because these officials have insisted that there is secret evidence to suggest that these are real and present threats, and are acting on that secret evidence.

We understand that there are sensitive techniques and information that must be classified for reasons of national security and safety – a principle, by the way, that the incoming president does not himself seem to grasp, and is skirting consequences for violating – but this isn't how we should be doing things in this country. Effectively banning the operation of an entire company based on secret evidence that our political leaders simply assure us exists is not really in keeping with our principles of due process and transparency.

We present no defense of TikTok, which previously has been caught censoring views that Beijing doesn't like, and it is undoubtedly designed to be addictive and appeal in particular to kids and teens, who can get sucked into the endless scroll. It has been used to push harmful content and misinformation around things like eating disorders and vaccines, and its sheer breadth and reach make this information often spread before it can be moderated.

If you're thinking that could just as well be true of Meta and its Facebook and Instagram platforms, or Alphabet with YouTube, then you can see what we're driving at. But what makes TikTok different is that those parents aren't foreign owned, and owned by an unfriendly country.

There are plenty of things to be concerned about with TikTok, just as there are plenty of things to regulate around all of these social media companies. At least these are at least attempting some kind of even-handed moderation, unlike the platform formerly known as Twitter, which has become the cesspool of X under Elon Musk's ownership.

Moving to completely ban TikTok on what seem like thin and largely speculative national security grounds is a red herring drawing attention away from the fact that all these social media platforms have been allowed to run roughshod over our social and political fabric with a very light touch from regulators. We'd all be better served dropping this effort and taking aim at the broader system.

Campus antisemitic flyers a hate crime merican university campuses are now ground zero for a wave of antisemitism unparalleled in the post-World War II era. At least 1,200 antisemitic incidents have been reported at college campuses in the year since Hamas brutally invaded Israel on Oct. 7, 2023, according to the Anti-Defamation League: a sickening 500% increase over the preceding year.

A case in point is the ugly crime that just took place at the University of Rochester, where a cohort of anti-Israel students harassed and slandered primarily Jewish faculty and staff members with a series of demeaning and threatening posters labeled "Wanted," like something out of the Wild West vigilante era. Such cruelty is not OK in the America I know and believe in. The most serious response is needed here: this vile action must be prosecuted as the hate crime it is.

The posters accuse Jewish faculty and staff of such outrageous offenses as genocide, ethnic cleansing, and war crimes. University of Rochester President Sarah Mangelsdorf warned that "several of those depicted appear to have been targeted because they are members of our Jewish community."

She continued by recognizing it explicitly as a form of hate: "We view this as antisemitism, which will not be tolerated at our University." Mangelsdorf herself, according to her "Wanted" poster, is accused of "Genocide, Censorship, [and] Despotism."

As Joy Getnick, Hillel executive director, pointed out: "They disproportionately singled out Jewish faculty and staff, and used language that spreads harmful, antisemitic ideas about Jewish people and Jewish indigeneity." This horrific mistreatment has a profound chilling effect on the freedoms and security of Jewish and pro-Israel students, faculty, and staff, effectively telling them that they may be targeted in such a nasty way at any time merely for their ethnicity, religion, or beliefs.

We do not have a simple instance of campus flyers affixed with Scotch tape here, but a deeply malevolent and destructive act. The University of Rochester Department of Public Safety noted that "return[ing] the spaces to their usual state... is painstaking because of the strong adhesive used to affix the posters, which in some cases caused damage to walls, floors, chalkboards, and other surfaces."

Vandalism and destruction of public property is a serious criminal act in any case; here, the situation is so much worse because of the hateful intent behind it.

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, speaking on the floor of the U.S. Senate, called the posters "antisemitic intimidation," and he rightly continued that "Any attempt – any attempt – to threaten or target someone simply because of their Jewish identity is antisemitism, plain and simple."

In a statement, the Jewish Federation of Greater Rochester rightly agreed, saying: "These horrific flyers... were replete with lies, misinformation, and antisemitic tropes. We are deeply disturbed by these antisemitic posters... These hateful messages are not isolated incidents but part of a troubling pattern that has created an environment where Jewish members of the university community feel both unsafe and that their civil rights have been disregarded."

The University of Rochester's Department of Public Safety has now arrested four individuals as suspected perpetrators of this incident, and the Monroe County district attorney's office has charged them with felony criminal mischief. The miscreants have pleaded not guilty, and other anti-Israel activists are "rallying" to call this act of discrimination an exercise of free speech. They couldn't be more wrong. What this is, in fact, is a hate crime.

Under New York Penal Code Chapter 40, Part 4, Title Y, Section 485.05, part of the Hate Crimes Act of 2000, a person commits a hate crime when they commit an offense and either intentionally selects the victim because of a belief or perception regarding their ancestry, religion, etc., or intentionally commits the offense in because of a belief or perception regarding victim's ancestry, religion, etc. Both factors are clearly at play in this incident.

It is entirely unacceptable for the DA to fail to enforce the Hate Crimes Act, given the circumstances of this upsetting event. Serious crimes merit serious consequences, not for arbitrarily punitive reasons, but to ensure the safety of our Jewish and pro-Israel students, faculty, and staff around the country.

This foul deed was a hate crime, and it should be charged and prosecuted as such to the fullest extent of the law.

Savetsky, a member of the New York City Jewish Advisory Council, works with numerous nonprofit and philanthropic movements as an outspoken advocate for Israel and the Jewish people.

BRAMHALL'S WORLD

We must change the NYC short-term rental rules

Rent may be too damn high, but so are all the costs of trying to keep a house in New York City. My family works hard but struggles to keep and maintain our home and make ends meet. And, a little more than a year ago, NYC made it even harder when it implemented overly strict short-term rental regulations (Local Law 18) taking away a critical income stream for my family and hundreds of other homeowners just trying to survive.

Thankfully, there is now a bill (Intro 1107) introduced by the City Council that would restore this lifeline for one- and two-family homeowners who live in their homes.

This has been my home and my heart for the last 25 years. In this time, I have raised my children into confident, young adults, built community with neighbors, and have watched my neighborhood and the city transform. While I can say that NYC is as vibrant and safe as ever, it's also clear that housing security and affordability remains a major issue.

My husband and I, like many New Yorkers, rented for decades with hopes of buying a home. With the help of an FHA loan, we were finally able to reach the American Dream. However, the dream isn't free. With rising utilities, taxes, insurance and the neverending maintenance costs of a century old home, we turned to short-term rentals to make the extra money we needed to keep our home.

When NYC passed and began enforcing its overly strict short-term rental law, it devastated not only my family, but many hard-working families who relied on short-term rental in our homes. It's what inspired me to co-found RHOAR (Restore HomeOwner Autonomy and Rights), a grassroots advocacy group of one and two family NYC homeowners who live in our homes, advocating for common-sense amendments to the shortterm rental regulations.

While Local Law 18 was needed and created with good intentions, the law goes too far by treating all short-term rentals the same and hurts everyday New Yorkers. As currently written and enforced, the law not only perpetuates existing economic inequities, it also introduces new structural inequities, like those that benefit the wealthy, who can still rent their entire pied-a-terres that sit empty the rest of the year.

Meanwhile, working and middle-income homeowners who live in our homes have been prohibited from renting out our own homes for short stays when we're traveling or need supplemental income.

Reported from a recent survey, RHOAR's Brooklyn members have seen a 60% decrease in their monthly income since the law took effect, which is financially devastating for any family. In the year since this law was passed, I have watched my fellow homeowners make difficult choices, including being forced to abandon their plans to age in place and instead selling the home they love, because they could no longer afford their housing costs and the upkeep without short-term rentals.

Instead of the supposed goal of increasing affordable housing and lowering rents, Local Law 18 has made housing unaffordable for vulnerable homeowners like myself.

But, homeowners aren't the only ones who have suffered because of the law. Our small, neighborhood businesses are losing out on tourism dollars that they sorely need to bounce back from COVID losses. Additionally, Local Law 18 has eliminated much needed local accommodations across Brooklyn, Queens, Staten Island and the Bronx, limiting access for visiting friends, family and caretakers. And, families can no longer afford to visit NYC with skyrocketing hotel prices.

RHOAR's homeowners support common sense regulations that stop bad actors, which is why we are calling on the City Council to support Intro 1107, which keeps the most of the regulations intact but rolls back the damaging effects of Local Law 18 restoring the rights of one- and two-family homeowners to resume shortterm rentals in the homes we live in.

We're thankful that our elected officials are prioritizing housing and affordability. It's a complex issue, and big, bold policies are needed to address these challenges. But, there are also smaller, simple solutions that can make a huge difference, like restoring the right to short-term rentals for one- and two-family homeowners.

The City Council is developing a myriad of housing affordability initiatives, and we urge them to remember that small homeowners need help, too. Passing these small, common-sense changes for NYC working and middle-income homeowners will help increase economic equity and stability, not only for the city's most vulnerable homeowners, but also for our small, neighborhood businesses and communities.

Sharp is a Brooklyn homeowner and co-founder of RHOAR.

Frivolous flights are heliports' biggest issue anhattan: "NYC's heliport closure is a medical emergency" (op-ed, Dec. 2) paints a flawed and inaccurate picture of the impact that the Gateway Tunnel project will have on Manhattan's W. 30th St. heliport. First, notwithstanding the article's headline, the heliport will not be forced to close to accommodate the Gateway project. Only one or two of its six helipads are slated for closure for about 18 months.

Second, the remaining four or five helipads can surely handle emergency organ transplant flights. Third, the vast majority of flights at the heliport are nonessential commuter flights to places like airports and the Hamptons. In the unlikely event that something has to give in order to accommodate medical emergencies, surely it is these unneeded flights. The real problem at all the city's heliports is that nonessential flights have come to dominate them, leading to well-known issues like noise and pollution. Eliminating such flights will guarantee there will never be an issue when it comes to essential flights for medical, military, journalist, police and political usage.

Fourth, two other heliports on the East Side of Manhattan can accommodate medical emergencies, and their operating hours could be adjusted if need be. Indeed, the E. 34th St. heliport already accepts emergency fights 24/7. Importantly, these heliports are closer to most of Manhattan's hospitals and to most of the city's other hospitals. The author is right that transportation for organ transplants must be a priority at our heliports. Fortunately, the Gateway project's minimal impact on the W. 30th St. heliport is not one of the obstacles to access to lifesaving organ transplants that his organization seeks to foster.

Milwaukee: After fierce public backlash, Anthem Blue Cross Blue Shield backtracked on its plan to cap coverage for anesthesia during medical procedures. Given the outrage. consider that the International Criminal Court asserts there is reasonable evidence to conclude that Israeli leaders "intentionally and knowingly" deprived civilians in Gaza of medical supplies, including anesthesia. Lack of anesthesia has forced doctors to perform amputations on adults and children with no safe ways to sedate them. Dr. Mike M. Mallah is a trauma surgeon from Charleston, S.C., who volunteered in Gaza. In an interview, Mallah's voice shook as he described "anesthesiologists who don't have anesthesia, who are holding people down and singing to them so that they can comfort them and do their surgery." Wyckoff, N.J.: Re "Biden's unpardonable clemency" (editorial, Dec. 3): Comparing Donald Trump's promise to pardon those convicted of assaulting police, breaking into and defacing the Capitol and interrupting the peaceful transfer of power with the convictions of Hunter Biden is ridiculous. Hunter was convicted of lying on a gun form to purchase a gun that was never fired or used in a crime. He was convicted of tax evasion for failing to pay taxes he subsequently repaid in full with interest. Many experienced prosecutors have asserted that these crimes are never prosecuted except when your last name is Biden. Fault President Biden for violating norms by pardoning a family member? Fine. Comparing those pardons to Jan. 6 convictions is absurd. Marc Schaeffer

Top candidates rap Romania's canceled elex

BY STEPHEN MCGRATH THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUCHAREST, Romania – On the day that the second round of presidential voting was supposed to be held, Romania's defiant far-right presidential candidate, Calin Georgescu, stood outside a closed polling station to denounce a top court's unprecedented decision to annul the first round of the vote in which he emerged as the frontrunner.

"Today is Constitution Day, and there is nothing constitutional in Romania anymore. I am here in the name of democracy," Georgescu, 62, told media Sunday in Mogosoaia, outside Bucharest. "By canceling democracy, our very freedom is canceled."

The Constitutional Court canceled the election Friday after a trove of declassified intelligence alleged that Russia organized a sprawling campaign across social media to promote Georgescu.

The court cited the illegal use of digital technologies, including artificial intelligence, as well as undeclared sources of funding. Without naming Georgescu, the court said one candidate received "preferential treatment" on social media platforms, distorting voters' expressed will.

Despite being a huge outsider who declared zero campaign spending, Georgescu topped the polls in the first round on Nov. 24, and was due to face reformist Elena Lasconi of the Save Romania Union party in a runoff.

Thirteen candidates ran in the first round of the presidential race in the European Union and NATO member country; the aftermath was gripped by myriad controversies, including a recount of the vote ordered by the same court.

New dates will be set to rerun the presidential vote from scratch.

"We find ourselves in a moment of profound responsibility toward the values that characterize us as a nation," Romanian President Klaus Iohannis said in a statement marking Constitution Day.

"The Romanian Constitution defines the framework within which the state and political life operate, serving as a shield against threats to democracy. In turbulent times, state institutions are called upon to act with calm, wisdom and respect for the law, the Constitution and democracy."

George Simion, the 38-year-old leader of the far-right Alliance for the Unity of Romanians, told reporters outside a closed polling station in Bucharest on Sunday that the annulment amounted to an attack against democracy, saying Iohannis should "take a step back and respect the Constitution, not mock it."

"It is Constitution Day. It is a day of significance for Romanians. It is a day when Romanians should have gone to vote freely," he said, adding that "blood was shed for this 35 years ago," referring to Romania's revolution in December 1989 that overthrew communism.

On Friday, Georgescu's would-be opponent, Lasconi, also strongly condemned the court's decision to annul the elections, saying the second round should have gone forward.

For Monday, December 9

Today speeds up from one minute to the next. Things start out gently when the Moon in dreamy Pisces conjoins foggy Neptune, but we'll be pulled right out of that miasma when the Moon jumps into Aries, boosting our energy levels way up. This shouldn't be hard to handle, thankfully, as a lunar sextile to loving Venus in Aquarius will help things flow smoothly. Plus, one final trine from the Moon to Mars allows us to perform at top capacity!

ARIES

MARCH 21-APRIL 19 Time to hit the reset button.

This is the perfect day to touch base with vourself and ensure everything is on the up-andup. If you've been feeling a bit out of sorts lately, you can uplift your efforts to get everything back on track to where it needs to be. Give yourself permission to step back.

TAURUS

APRIL 20-MAY 20 It's a new day, but that doesn't mean you need to jump out of bed and hit the ground running. Even if you have a long to-do list, take it at a gentle pace and feel your way forward, rather than rolling up your sleeves and putting your nose to the grindstone. There's no need to chase anything.

GEMINI

MAY 21-JUNE 20 Take any excuse to chat today.

This sets the ideal stage for you to connect with people who can guide you through understanding the world in a fresh light. It also encourages altruism, so a little bit of charity couldn't hurt. You can't go wrong with a little bit of charity or volunteer work.

CANCER JUNE 21-JULY 22

Aim as high as you can! There is an emphasis on pursuing your goals. Whether you're aiming for the corner office or just getting your foot on the first rung of the ladder, this energy is terrific for letting your ambitious side out to play. You can even do so without worry.

LEO

JULY 23-AUG. 22 Life is a pool, and you can jump right in! It's time to bound off and explore all the options available to you. Some of you may feel the urge to let the wind take you wherever it may, but exploring an unfamiliar topic with a documentary or online course should also prove very fulfilling.

VIRGO

AUG. 23-SEPT. 22 There is an undeniable intensity to the day, but that doesn't mean you can't handle it. You may need to follow up on a debt or make a big payment, but if you are strategic, you may also receive a tidy windfall. Play your cards with care to find maximum success. Tremendous profits await those who are swift!

LIBRA

SEPT. 23-OCT. 22 Today will be more fun with someone by your side to help you handle it. If there's a specific pal you haven't hung out with in a while, go ahead and hit them up for some fun! Whatever you want to achieve, it should be worlds easier with a partner. There's absolutely no need to play the wallflower now.

SCORPIO

OCT. 23-NOV. 21 A little simplicity can make the world much more approachable. This is the perfect day to remove all the excess and only focus on essentials. Look for any minor habits or built-up issues that are getting in the way of you being your best self, then figure out how to rid yourself of them for good.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV. 22-DEC. 21 Express yourself! Today is al about enjoying yourself to the fullest and letting your passionate side out to play. Do something that will bring a smile to your face, and don't worry about pleasing anyone but yourself. That said, if others want to participate, try to welcome them.

CAPRICORN

DEC. 22-JAN. 19 Life could currently feel like bowling with bumpers. You deserve to have a little padding in life to keep you rolling in your desired direction. Focus your attention on surrounding yourself with people and things that make you feel good, and if possible, put off anything serious or heavy.

AQUARIUS

JAN. 20-FEB. 18 Everywhere you go, there vou are. It wouldn't be one bit surprising if you find yourself bouncing around town. This sector encourages open communication, so be willing to start a conversation. You never know what exciting tidbits of information you'll uncover if you don't try.

PISCES

FEB. 19-MARCH 20 Spending money is easy even easier than usual! You'll face all sorts of temptations to splash out on little treats.

Window shopping could abruptly become a shopping spree. That said, it would be wise to hold off on making any big purchases for the time being. Instead, create a list of the things you want and meditate on it.

Question for Yanks now is how to spend all that Soto money

SPORTS

BY GARY PHILLIPS NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Several days before Juan Soto's first home opener with the Yankees, the superstar discussed the topic of stability.

Only 25 at the time, it's possible Soto's definition of the word had become distorted and distilled. After being dealt by the Nationals and Padres earlier in his career, it had been a few years since the slugger went a full season without trade rumors swirling around his head. The average person wouldn't consider one year in one spot stable, but the situation offered Soto more steadiness than he had become accustomed to.

"I think I'm gonna be here for the full year," Soto said. "So I think that's really good stability."

Now 26, Soto has secured real stability, as well as generational wealth, while choosing to stay in New York City. However, it won't be the Yankees providing that security, as the free agent has agreed to a 15-year, $765 million contract with the crosstown rival Mets after they reached the NLCS last season.

Soto's pact, which is not yet official, is the largest in professional sports history, a fitting distinction after Steve Cohen's deep pockets loomed over the supernova's free agency. It will also pay Soto a record-setting average annual salary of $51 million. And unlike Shohei Ohtani's 10-year, $700 million deal with the Dodgers, Soto's contract does not include deferments, per multiple reports.

Soto's deal does include an opt out after the fifth season and a $75 million signing bonus, per multiple reports. ES-PN's Jorge Castillo added that the Mets can void Soto's optout by escalating his average annual average value from $51 million to $55 million over the last 10 years.

In addition to the Yankees, the Red Sox, Blue Jays and Dodgers were also in on Soto throughout his closely covered sweepstakes. According to Jon Heyman, the Yankees' final bid was 16 years and $760 million – less total money and a lower average annual salary than what the Mets offered Soto.

Soto's decision to bolt the Bronx is nothing short of disappointing for the Bombers, whose ideal offseason plan revolved around re-signing the charismatic right fielder. The Yankees liked their chances going into the offseason, as Soto genuinely seemed to enjoy his 2024 campaign with the team after being acquired from the Padres last December.

"It's been a blast for me," Soto said after the Yankees lost the World Series to the Dodgers.

Meanwhile, Yankees owner Hal Steinbrenner said he understood fans desperately wanted Soto back at MLB's Owners Meetings in mid-November.

"I've got ears," Steinbrenner said. "I know what's expected of me."

With the Yankees unable to retain Soto, there are a number of ways they can now spend the money they wanted to give him.

The team has question marks at first, second/third (depending on how Jazz Chisholm Jr. is used) and in all three outfield spots, though Judge will occupy center or right. Steinbrenner, who generally prefers a payroll below the highest luxury tax threshold, which is $301 million in 2025, also said he wants a "deep dive" on the Yankees' rotation and bullpen.

Some younger players, like Caleb Durbin and Jasson Domínguez, could fill a few of those spots on cost-efficient salaries. However, the Yanks can spread their Soto money around on the top remaining free agents, a group that includes, but is not limited to, Corbin Burnes, Max Fried, Christian Walker, Alex Bregman, Anthony Santander and Tanner Scott.

Soto leaves Yanks, but not Big Apple as he opts for Mets, and their $765 million deal

BY ABBEY MASTRACCO NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

DALLAS – The Mets are the winners of the Juan Soto sweepstakes.

The outfielder chose the Mets out of the many big-moneyed suiters, coming to terms with the Amazin's on a 15-year, $765 million contract on Sunday, one night before the start of baseball's annual winter meetings. The largest contract in professional sports history, it's a monumental signing for the 26-year-old Dominican and for the club.

With the addition of Soto, the Mets are set up to contend for titles for years to come. He'll join a core group of players already on multi-year contracts that include Francisco Lindor, Brandon Nimmo, Kodai Senga and Edwin Diaz. The pitching staff is still being built out for the 2025 season with the Mets recently adding former Yankees pitchers Frankie Montas and Clay Holmes, but Soto lends some cache to the Mets as they continue to add talent for next year and beyond.

A generational hitter often compared to Ted Williams, Soto is the type of free agent the team never would have pursued in the past. Instead, the Yankees of yesteryear would have thrown money at him while the Mets shopped in the bargain bins, always living in the shadows of big brother in the Bronx. But the shadows have shifted and it's the Mets who cast the bigger one now.

Soto spent last season with the Yankees, helping them win their first AL pennant since 2009. He was acquired in a trade with the Padres for exactly that reason a year ago during a winter meetings blockbuster. The Yankees pursued him just as doggedly as the Mets, but Cohen's deep pockets and the Mets' recent success under president of baseball operations David Stearns ultimately won Soto over.

A seven-year veteran who broke into the league at only 19 years old, Soto owns a career slashline of .285/.421/.532. His on-base percentage leads all active players and he's only the fourth player to draw at least 700 walks through their age-26 season. A World Series champ at only 20 and a batting champ at only 21, Soto is an accomplished player who knows how to win.

There are few holes in his offensive game. His at-bats are theatrical with his signature "Soto shuffle" and his ability to frustrate Cy Young-caliber pitchers. Statcast had him in the 98th percentile or higher in most offensive categories last season, which is par for the course for the perennial MVP candidate.

A left-handed hitter, he hit .288 with a .989 OPS and a career-best 41 home runs with the Yankees last season, finishing third in AL MVP voting. He typically bats second, which gives the Mets a dominant 1-2 punch at the top of the order with Francisco Lindor hitting leadoff.

There is, however, one weakness in his game. Despite being named a Gold Glove finalist, Soto's outfield defense rates poorly. Better in right field than in left, last year his minus-5 outs above average ranked 38th out of 44 right fielders and his minus-1 defensive runs saved were tied for 13th among right fielders who played at least 500 innings. It called into question the Gold Glove voting process. The award, which is presented by glove maker Rawling's, is voted on by managers and coaches and not based on statistical metrics. His route-running was exposed during the World Series when a costly miscue cost the Yankees a lead in Game 1. They ultimately lost to the Dodgers and his defense became even more of a hot-button issue than ever.

The Mets are currently carrying veteran right fielder Starling Marte, another Dominican Republic native. The 36-year-old has one more year left on his three-year contract and has struggled to stay healthy over the last two seasons. When healthy he produced at the plate in 2024, but also had declining defensive metrics.

However, both Soto and Marte made plenty of dynamic defensive plays last year. The Mets could look to trade Marte or use him as a DH. Marte dislikes being used as a DH, preferring to play the field, but came around to doing it when the team needed him to.

By joining the Mets, the former National rejoins the NL East. He'll now face his former team and some former teammates in Philadelphia often, adding to some already exciting rivalries.

Cohen put the Yankees on notice when he entered the league. No longer are they considered the evil empire, it's the Mets that had the better playoff showing against the Dodgers, the Mets with the better core and a rising farm system, and the Mets with the owners willing to spend historic money to bring top talent to Queens.

Sorry, Jets, no points for winning offseason

BY ANTWAN STALEY NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

MIAMI GARDENS – Let's flashback to the year 2010.

Toy Story 3 was the most popular movie in America, people were still using Blackberry phones and the Jets actually had a winning football team. Those were good times for Jets fans, unlike the last 14 years. The Jets (3-10) were a long shot to make the playoffs before Sunday's game against the Dolphins. But Miami, for the second consecutive year, eliminated its division rival from playoff contention.

"Extremely shocked," Jets interim coach Jeff Ulbrich said following the 32-26 overtime loss to the Dolphins. "Disappointed, frustrated, and every other adjective you can think of.

"This group works so hard at it. I would venture to say they work harder than most. And because of that, it makes it more frustrating. It makes me feel that much worse for that group because they've done things right."

Many pundits believed this was the season in which the Jets would win their division and the challenge for a Super Bowl championship. Aaron Rodgers' return from a season-ending Achilles injury was supposed to be legendary.

Rodgers was trying to accomplish what Tom Brady and Peyton Manning did and win a Super Bowl with two franchises.

That's precisely why Woody Johnson fired Robert Saleh on Oct. 8 after the team began the season 2-3.

That's also why Johnson fired GM Joe Douglas and acquired Davante Adams in a trade on Oct. 15.

But that single mistake basically fumbled the Jets' season away, much like Brian Baumgartner's character Kevin Malone from "The Office" dropping a large bowl of chili in the middle of the floor.

Since Ulbrich became interim coach, the Jets have been 1-7 and have continued to lose games similarly. Gang Green suffered late losses in back-to-back weeks against Indianapolis and Seattle.

On Sunday, the Jets held an eight-point lead entering the fourth quarter, but again, they squandered it late and eventually lost in overtime.

"The expectations were high," Rodgers said. "Didn't reach them.

"A lot of difficult games and opportunities to win. Just didn't win enough games. Didn't play good enough in some crunch times and that's why we are sitting here with 's the record we got."

IT'S ALL OVER FOR

The Jets' roster was flawed coming into the season. Rodgers never looked close to his former MVP self, and Gang Green's offense has been one of the worst in the league for most of the season.

"I mean, if you would have told me that in training camp, I would have been shocked," Jets wide receiver Garrett Wilson said. "With the way we practiced in training camp and handled business when we had other teams come in, I would have been like, 'you lying.'

"One of my takeaways from this is winning the offseason. Winning in training camp is winning in training camp. Let's win when it matters."

Where the Jets go from here will be the million-dollar question.

Rodgers, 41, is not owed any more guaranteed money. If the Jets release Rodgers, they would have a $49 million salary cap hit in 2025.

Before a decision on Rodgers can be made, the Jets must find a new general manager and coach to help lead them out of the abyss their organization has been in since the year Drake released his first solo album, "Thank Me Later."

Since Rex Ryan led them to the AFC Championship in 2010, the Jets have had four head coaches and four general managers. In a division where the Bills rule the kingdom, winning the last five AFC East crowns, the Jets will continue to stay in the basement if they do not get their next general manager and coaching hire right.

Meanwhile, the Jets still have four games remaining in the season, all of which are meaningless in a nightmarish season beyond Jets standards.

"You just gotta compartmentalize, man, and understand this is how this game goes," Adams said. "It is really difficult to win and we have been really, really close too many times. So it is frustrating. It is almost more frustrating when you are right there.

"All you get to do is control how you play and you don't get to control the score and complain about it. You have 60 minutes to figure it out, and once that 60 minutes is up, the team that has the most is going to be the happiest. We have been on the other side of that a lot. It is has been frustrating, but you just have to stay the course and keep going."

OT loss to Dolphins drops Gang to 3-10 and out of hope for '24

BY ANTWAN STALEY NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

MIAMI GARDENS – The Jets will officially miss the playoffs once again.

The Dolphins (6-7) defeated the Jets, 32-26, in overtime on a beautiful, sunny, 77-degree day at Hard Rock Stadium when Jonnu Smith scored on a 10-yard touchdown pass from Tua Tagovailoa.

The loss officially eliminated the 3-10 Jets from playoff contention for the 14th straight year.

"We gotta find a way to finish and close these things out," interim coach Jeff Ulbrich said. "We gotta be at our best when the best is required.

"We are not getting that accomplished and I got to look at myself first."

since. Jeff Ulbrich, who became the interim coach on Oct. 8, has a 1-7 record. Gang Green also hadn't won a game since defeating the Texans on Halloween. The Jets have also lost nine of their last 10 games overall.

Aaron Rodgers played his best game in a Jets uniform, completing 27of-39 passes for a season-high 339 yards and a touchdown. Rodgers had been bothered by ankle, hamstring, and knee injuries since Week 4, but on Sunday, he looked like the player many expected coming off his Achilles injury a season ago.

It was Rodgers' first 300-yard game since December 2021, but it was not enough to come away with the win.

"We had some good stretches in the first five possessions," Rodgers said. "We gotta be better in the red zone and had a couple of negative plays and false starts that hurt us.

"We moved the ball efficiently. We obviously had the two three-and-outs and we were back tied and put together a nice drive to take the lead. So, disappointing."

Wide receivers Garrett Wilson and Davante Adams both torched the Dolphins secondary. They combined for 16 receptions for 223 yards and a touchdown.

Rodgers and Adams hooked up for a threeyard touchdown pass in the third quarter, which was the pair's 79th career touchdown. The duo passed former Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger and Antonio Brown for the fourth-most touchdowns by a quarterback and receiver pair in NFL history.

In place of Breece Hall, who was out due to a knee injury, Braelon Allen and Isaiah Davis combined to finish with 83 yards rushing.

Tagovailoa finished 33-of-47 for 331 yards and two touchdowns. The Jets defense didn't sack Tagovailoa and didn't even record a quarterback hit.

Anders Carlson gave the Jets a three-point lead with 52 seconds left when he converted a 42-yard field goal. But Malik Washington's 45-yard return put the Dolphins within striking distance of a game-tying field goal at their 46-yard-line.

"He missed it," Ulbrich said. "He was supposed to kick that ball in the back of the end zone. He just missed the kick. At the end of the day, we gotta cover what's kicked and we didn't cover it well enough."

Jason Sanders' 52-yard field goal tied the game, 26-26, and sent it into overtime.

Miami won the overtime toss and got the ball first and Tagovailoa carved up the Jets secondary. He eventually found Smith in the end zone for a game-winning touchdown.

"Losing period sucks," Wilson said. "To be up in the fourth quarter and all of a sudden, it starts to feel like we have a losing problem.

"It's not like we're just going out there and getting our butt beat start to finish. I know we have a chance to go win the game.

We're supposed to win the game." Miami scored a touchdown on its opening drive. After an unnecessary roughness penalty on Javon Kinlaw and a pass interference on D.J. Reed in the end zone, Dolphins running back De'Von Achane scored a one-yard touchdown. Sanders missed the extra point.

The Jets settled for three to make the score 6-3. After the Dolphins failed to convert on third down, Sanders made a 39-yard field goal, putting Miami up, 9-3 in the second quarter.

Early in the second quarter, Gang Green scored its first touchdown at Hard Rock Stadium since 2022. Following a 35-yard pass from Rodgers to Garrett Wilson, rookie Isaiah Davis rushed for a 17-yard touchdown that gave the Jets a 10-9 advantage.

Sanders converted his second field goal of the game with five minutes left in the second quarter as Miami retook the lead, 12-10. The Jets added another field goal to go up, 13-12.

With two seconds before halftime, Sanders nailed a 57-yard field goal, which gave Miami a 15-13 lead in the third.

Rodgers then found Adams for a threeyard touchdown pass that gave the Jets a 20-15 lead.

Late in the third quarter, Carlson added his third field goal, giving the Jets a 23-15 lead.

With 9:04 remaining in regulation, Tagovailoa completed a four-yard touchdown pass to Tyreek Hill. Then Tagovailoa's pass to Jaylen Waddle tied the game, 23-23.

With 4:25 left, the Jets got the ball with a chance to take the lead and win the game late. After completions to Adams and Allen Lazard, Carlson's 42-yard field goal gave the Jets a 26-23 lead with 51 seconds left.

But Sanders' 52-yard field goal sent the game into overtime.

The Jets will play in the Sunshine State again next weekend when they travel to EverBank Stadium to face the Jaguars.

DIZERO

Just like 1978, Giants under fire from ground and air as season continues to spiral out of control with loss to lowly Saints t's 1978 all over again.

A plane flying over MetLife Stadium Sunday morning carried a banner with a scathing message for Giants co-owner John Mara:

"MR MARA ENOUGH – PLZ FIX THIS DUMPSTER FIRE," the black letters read across the sky.

Then the Giants lost their eighth straight, 14-11, to a terrible Saints team that already fired its head coach.

They fell on a last-second field goal block by Saints defensive lineman Bryan Bresee.

"I ain't paid for the plane," rookie receiver Malik Nabers said.

Mara saw fan unrest of this magnitude 46 years ago, on Dec. 10, 1978, when a fan flew a rented plane over the field during a win over the St. Louis Cardinals with a sign that read: "15 yrs of Lousy Football....We've Had Enough."

Fans protested and burned tickets in the Giants Stadium parking lot back then. On Sunday, fan wore paper bags over their heads in the stands that read "2-10 Sell the team" and "One Giant Mistake" and

"Saquon was here?

The defeat dropped Joe Schoen's and Brian Daboll's team to 2-11 this season and 0-7 at home.

The plane could get them fired today.

Not to mention 12 penalties and the Giants' reliable ability to constantly shoot themselves in the foot.

"That's just football," Nabers said of the constant errors. "That's just the New York Giants this year."

Hall of Famer Terry Bradshaw said on FOX's halftime show that it's time for the Giants to tear it all down.

"The Giants, they're just a bad football team," Bradshaw said. "They've just got to reload, unload it and start over."

That's what happened the last time someone flew a plane over MetLife Stadium to shame the Giants for their dysfunction.

The 1978 plane preceded what Mara once called "no question the low point in the history of the franchise."

The Giants fired coach John McVay and ended Andy Robustelli's tenure as director of operations. And then Mara's father, Wellington, and John's cousin, Tim Mara, held an infamous dueling press conference on Feb. 8, 1979, that put their bitter dynamic on display.

The eventual result was NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle's appointment of George Young as the Giants' first true general manager, a step-in that helped turn around the lost franchise. (It actually happened at the behind-thescenes behest of Wellington, who knew that Tim wouldn't accept Young if he knew he was Wellington's preferred candidate).

This comparison obviously puts Schoen and Daboll in regrettable company, but it's where they belong. It's hard to imagine them returning for a fourth season, if they even make it past this morning.

It also begs the question of whether Mara and the Tisch families again need outside help from the NFL or otherwise to turn this around – or whether they will be able to do it themselves.

Schoen put one of the worst rosters in Giants history on the field Sunday. This was a preseason depth chart. Most of the Giants' key players have tapped out or gone down with injuries.

> Daboll, who took over the offensive play-calling this season, is running the lowest-scoring offense in football at 14.9 points per game and 10.1 points per game at home.

> Unbelievably, the Giants offense had starting field position near or across midfield five times in the first half and scored a total of three points before halftime.

And despite a late surge by Drew Lock with plenty of teammates down with injuries throughout the game, Daboll's Giants sure enough committed a false start penalty and let Graham Gano's field-goal attempt get blocked for another loss.

When Daboll was asked about the plane flying overhead, his answer was terse:

"We've won two games," he said. "So I'm not happy either."

Asked what his argument would be for staying the course, Daboll crumpled his stat sheet and reiterated his point.

"I'm disappointed we have two wins," he said. "So we're just going to keep on grinding it out and try to keep developing these young players and get ready to play a great team next week."

Does it embarrass Daboll that the plane flew over the stadium on this gameday?

"I'm just disappointed that we lost this game," he said.

Nabers played through a hip flexor. Tyrone Tracy Jr. scored a fourth quarter rushing touchdown.

Undrafted defensive tackle Casey Rogers blocked a Saints field-goal attempt. Tre Hawkins recorded the first interception by a Giants defensive back this season, their second as a team and their first since rookie linebacker Darius Muasau's in Week 1.

Lock had to get X-rays and has more tests coming today after taking several huge hits.

"If there's no grass stains on this jersey, I'd feel like I didn't do anything," Lock said with a smile.

There are no silver linings here, though. The Giants are paper-bag bad in their 100th season in franchise history.

They're "Sell the team" and "fix this dumpster fire" bad. They've been issued an edict by the fans to clean house and start over.

And this morning, that's exactly what Mara and the Tisch family must do.

Mikal on Knick defense: 'Not good ... Not good! BY KRISTIAN WINFIELD

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

Whose man is Tim Hardaway Ir.?

It's the opening possession of Saturday night's game at the Garden - a prime opportunity for the Knicks to extend their winning streak to five - and Detroit's Jaden Ivey grabs a rebound off Jalen Brunson's pull-up miss.

Ivey pushes the ball and kicks it to Cade Cunningham at the top of the key. Cunningham doesn't hesitate. He spots Hardaway - a sharpshooter who once called MSG home - alone in the corner, unnoticed by the Knicks' defense.

Before the Knicks can even set, Cunningham delivers a pinpoint pass, and Hardaway rattles home the three - a fitting start to a night when Detroit would pick apart the Knicks' defense, possession by possession

It was the first of Cunningham's career-high

15 assists, a harbinger of a night where Detroit dissected the Knick defense, possession by possession.

Cunningham would finish with a 29-point triple double. He would score 16 points on 4-of-4 shooting from deep in the second quarter alone. The game was largely decided in the opening period. The Pistons didn't just expose the Knick defense - they put a spotlight on the lingering flaws this team must address as it strives to peak when it matters most.

Because in their 120-111 loss, the Knicks' first-quarter collapse was a microcosm of a larger issue: While their offense is on pace to break records, defensive inconsistencies - and a fragile center situation - are threatening to undermine championship aspirations.

"(Our defense is) not good. Not basket Saturday. AP good," Mikal Bridges says. "I think we pick and choose when (we want to play defense), and we ain't that good to just pick and choose when we want to play defense. I don't think any team's that good. It starts with me as well. Just gotta be more vocal and lead by example. It's all of us."

"When you're shorthanded, your margin of error is a lot tighter," says Tom Thibodeau. "You've got to play with great intensity on every possession, and if you do that, you're going to have a chance to win."

It's the second possession of the opening period, and Jericho Sims, starting for Karl-Anthony Towns (patellar tendinopathy) is in motion.

His man, Jalen Duren, just set a pin-down screen on Ivey. Now, he's flaring up to the top of the key to set a screen on Bridges, guarding Cunningham at the point of attack.

Bridges fights over the screen and sticks with Cunningham. Sims follows. The unguarded Duren rolls hard to the paint.

Now Josh Hart is in a bind: Whose man is this? Hart leaves Tobias Harris wide open in the corner to take away the easy pass to Duren for the dunk. Cunningham, smothered by the Sims-Bridges double, picks up his dribble, then whips a cross-court pass to Harris.

Harris misses the open look, but for a second possession in a row, the Knicks cede an open three.

The Pistons would shoot 7-of-15 from deep in the opening period alone and 18-of-36 on the night.

"Think communication is the biggest thing. A lot of transition, just no communication, just not talking to each other. And it's not like we don't like each other or anything. It's just that sense of urgency, trying to help each other out," Bridges says. "We gotta understand that when we don't talk to each other, it's gonna hurt us, and so in transition, not saying nothing, so somebody's gonna step up, and two are gonna go to the ball, and two are gonna go to one man, and you give up open 3s.

Now Sims is making the right play.

He's closing out hard to Ivey and recovering to take away the baseline drive. Cunningham, however, is playing chess against a Knicks defense playing tictac-toe. He begins this possession using his six-inch height advantage in a mismatch with Brunson on the high post.

Cunningham watches OG Anunoby cheat before committing to the double. He watches Bridges slowly cheat off of Hardaway, to cover for Anunoby. Hart is next in rotation. He is up to leave his man - Ivey in the corner – to cover for Bridges. With Bridges and Hart caught mid-rotation, Cunningham whips a pass to Hardaway before Hart begins to rotate.

"I thought it was a work of art, to not only move the ball - we did - but to have the recognition and the reads of what their defense was trying to do," Pistons coach J.B. Bickerstaff says. "And then we use their defense against them to create open opportunities."

Which brings us to the roller-coaster ride that has been the start to Sims' fourth NBA season. Now in rotation. Sims closes out hard on Ivey, recovers and denies the baseline drive, forcing the crafty guard to pick up his dribble.

But his teammates collapse the paint - and Brunson leaves Cunningham to help under the rim. The Pistons' star floats to the corner for a wide-open three

The first quarter was rife with defensive miscues and miscommunication.

There were far too many instances, particularly in transition, where Pistons feasted from downtown.

can always be better. And today we lacked it real early." Bridges says.

back crippling turnovers, Thibodeau has little choice

Sims can leap with the best of them and has flashed the potential to rebound at a high level, but costly mistakes on offense have hurt his opportunities this season.

After his dogged defense on Ivey, Sims turns the ball over on back-to-back possessions, Detroit scoring on both: first a fumbled dump-off pass on a rare look from Brunson, then an inexcusable drive to the rim from the three-point line.

Seething with anger, Thibodeau hooks Sims after six first-quarter minutes and benches him for the night. Next up is Ariel Hukporti, the 58th and final pick in the 2024 draft.

No Towns. No Mitchell Robinson. Now, no Sims. Thibodeau is "searching."

"We wanted energy. You have to hustle. You have Cunningham and Ivey, very dynamic off the dribble. So any time you put two on the ball, you have to protect the rim, but you also have to rotate cleanly to challenge shots," Thibodeau says. "Everyone's gotta know what the next guy's doing. Normally, we're good at that. We weren't tonight. And we've gotta fix it quickly and get ready for the next game."

After building a 12-point lead midway through the third quarter, Milwaukee closed the period on a 17-5 run to tie the game, 86-86, entering the final frame.

An Antetokounmpo dunk off a Schröder miss gave the Bucks a 111-108 lead with 1:09 left. Cam Johnson could not answer at the other end. But a bad pass by Damian Lillard ended up in the hands of Keon Johnson, and the Nets had one last shot to tie the game.

They pushed in transition and the ball found Keon Johnson. The guard took one dribble, then hoisted a heavily contested 3-pointer that missed off the far side of the rim. If he made it, it would have been the Nets' moment of the game. Instead, it was the Bucks' defining stop, as they were able to ice the game from there at the free-throw line. Milwaukee shot 55.6% from the field, 50% from deep, and 62.5% on two-point attempts in the fourth quarter. The moments the Nets truly needed down the stretch were stops.

"Our defense was atrocious," coach Jordi Fernandez said. "If our guys that wear a Brooklyn Nets jersey don't play harder defense, they don't have a place on our roster... We didn't guard anybody in the last two minutes."

Schröder finished with 34 points, three rebounds and 11 assists for the Nets, and Cam Johnson added 26 points in a 50.6% team shooting effort. Claxton played his best all-around game of the season with 21 points, 10 rebounds and two blocks.

Antetokounmpo matched Schröder with 34 points of his own in Milwaukee's 12th win of the season.

"I'm just getting my flow back," Claxton said.

"That's just me playing more games. My body, everything is just starting to come together. I need to be aggressive for us, especially right now with Cam (Thomas) being out and us missing some scoring."

The Nets fell to 10-14 and have lost four of their last five games. Their season series with the Bucks is tied, 1-1. They will face Milwaukee two more times this season, both at Fiserv Forum on Dec. 26 and Jan. 2.

The Nets will have the next four days off after failing to advance to the knockout rounds of the NBA Cup. They will return to action on Friday against the Grizzlies at FedExForum.

Despite loss, Claxton gives Nets promise

BY PETER SBLENDORIO NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

This season has come with its share of challenges for Nets center Nic Claxton.

He suffered a hamstring injury before the start of the preseason, causing him to begin the regular season on a minutes restriction.

A nagging lower-back injury then required an epidural injection in mid-November. Claxon missed three consecutive games after the injection, then sat out two more toward the end of the month, again due to his back.

Claxton said last month that the back issue began in the summer and was something he expected he would need to continue to manage.

He entered Sunday averaging 9.1 points, 7.6 rebounds and 1.2 blocks in 24.8 minutes per game this season - his lowest marks in each category in three years.

But in Sunday's 118-113 loss to the Bucks at Barclays Center, Claxton looked the part of the game-disrupting center that the Nets signed to a four-year, $100 million extension during the offseason to be a foundational piece in their rebuild.

He scored a season-high 21 points on 9-of-14 shooting, adding 10 rebounds, four assists, two blocks and three steals in a season-high 33 minutes.

"I'm just getting my flow back," Claxton, 25, said. "Just playing more games, my body, everything's starting to come together. I need to be aggressive for us, especially right now with Cam (Thomas) being out."

Claxton's uptick in aggressiveness came against one of the NBA's most physically imposing frontcourts, led by Giannis Antetokounmpo, who won NBA Defensive Player of the Year in 2020, and fellow 7-footer Brook Lopez, who was the runner-up for the award in 2023.

The 6-11 Claxton got off to a fast start, driving past Lopez from the top of the key for a two-handed dunk in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, he stayed in front of a driving Antetokounmpo and delivered an emphatic block off of the backboard.

And in the third quarter, Claxton collected a pass from Dennis Schröder on a pick-and-roll and used a spin move before banking in a layup over Lopez. Later in the period, he tipped his own miss back to himself for another layup, this time past Bobby Portis.

"All it takes is a good three weeks and he's right back to his numbers," Nets forward Dorian Finney-Smith said of Claxton.

"He's been hurt all summer. He's been in and out of the lineup, so it's hard to get your rhythm, especially playing as a big nowadays. It ain't like they're throwing you the ball 15 times and telling you to go get a bucket. He's gotta work for his points."

Claxton, a six-year NBA veteran, appeared in at least 71 games in each of the last two seasons, averaging at least 11.8 points, 9.2 rebounds, 1.9 blocks and 29.8 minutes per game in both.

Sunday marked the first time since Nov. 11 that Claxton played at least 30 minutes. He had not scored more than 16 points in any of his 17 games this season before Sunday's.

But Claxton's numbers have been improving. He's now scored in double-figures in three straight games. He scored 16 points on 7-of-8 shooting and eight rebounds in the Nets' previous game, a victory over Indy.

"I'm feeling better mentally, physically, and everything's just coming together," Claxton said. "Just knowing that my back's OK, so I'm trusting my body, I'm putting the work in, and I'm getting back into the flow of things."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SMU captured the last open spot in the College Football Playoff, edging Alabama to land in a first-of-its-kind, 12-team bracket that placed undefeated Oregon at No. 1.

The selection committee preferred the Mustangs (11-2), losers of a heartbreaker in the Atlantic Coast Conference title game, who had a far less difficult schedule than Alabama (9-3) of the SEC but, ultimately, still one fewer loss

The expanded bracket marks a new era for college football, though the Alabama-SMU debate made clear that there is no perfect formula for identifying a champion.

"We just felt, in this particular case, SMU had the nod above Alabama," said Michigan athletic director Warde Manuel, the chair of the selection committee. "But it's no disrespect to Alabama's strength of schedule. We looked at the entire body of work for both teams."

The tournament starts Dec. 20-21 with four first-round games involving teams seeded 5-12. It concludes Jan. 20 with the national title game in Atlanta.

Georgia, Boise State and Arizona State join Oregon with first-round byes

Georgia, the SEC champion, was seeded second; Boise State, the Mountain West champion, earned the third seed; and Big 12 titlist Arizona State got the fourth seed and the fourth and final first-round bye. All will play in quarterfinals at bowl games on Dec. 31-Jan. 1. Clemson stole a bid and the 12th seed with its crazy win over SMU, the result that ultimately cost Alabama a spot in the field. The Tigers moved to No. 16 in the rankings, but got in as the fifth-best conference winner. Texas, Penn St, Notre Dame and Ohio St get home field in first round There was some tension around how the rest of the teams were seeded because that determined who gets home-field advantage in the first round. The games are No. 12 Clemson at No. 5 Texas; No. 11 SMU at No. 6 Penn State; No. 10 Indiana at No. 7 Notre Dame; and No. 9 Tennessee at No. 8 Ohio State.

Alabama comes up short in the bracket's biggest debate

The Big Ten leads the way with four teams, followed by the SEC with three and the ACC with two.

The lasting memory from the inaugural bracket reveal will involve the decision that handed the ACC that second bid.

There's a portion of college football fandom that believes almost everything in the sport has been rigged in favor of Alabama and the SEC over recent years. The Crimson Tide has won three national titles in the 10-year history of the playoff and had made the field eight times, including last year when it edged out undefeated Florida State for the last of what was then four spots.

SEC backers argue the preferential treatment is deserved, mainly because the SEC is a 16-team league loaded with powerhouse programs

This season, for instance, the Tide played the 16th toughest schedule and went 3-1 against teams in the top 25. SMU's numbers: 60th in strength of schedule and 0-2 against the top 25.

But the committee also indicated it was reluctant to penalize teams that play in conference title games. SMU did. Alabama didn't. And the way the Mustangs fought back from a three-touchdown deficit before finally losing to Clemson had an impact among the 13 people making the decision.

"We were impressed with the fact that SMU came back the way they did," Manuel said. "They performed better in that second half offensively," sort of like they have all season.

Conference commissioners OK'd the idea of giving conference champions preferable treatment in this first iteration of the 12-team playoff.

The committee actually ranked Boise State, the Mountain West Champion, at No. 9 but the Broncos are the 3 seed, set to play in the Fiesta Bowl on Dec. 31. Arizona State was 12th-ranked but jumped to the No. 4 seed and will play in the Peach bowl on New Year's.

Georgia moved up to No. 2 behind Oregon in The Associated Press Top 25 on Sunday, Texas and Penn State remained in the top five after losing conference championship games, and Arizona State appeared in the top 10 for the first time in a decade.

Unbeaten Oregon, with its win over Penn State in the Big Ten title game, goes into the College Football Playoff as the No. 1 seed and the No. 1 team in the AP poll for the eighth straight week. Oregon's hold on No. 1 is the longest by a Big Ten team since Ohio State went on an 11-week run in 2014

Alabama and SMU were Nos. 11 and 12, respectively, in the AP Top 25, but the Mustangs edged out the Crimson Tide for the final playoff spot. The poll was released shortly before the CFP rankings.

Georgia's overtime win over Texas in the Southeastern Conference championship game earned the Bulldogs a three-spot promotion. The Bulldogs, like Oregon, locked up a first-round bye in the playoff.

Notre Dame rose one spot to No. 3 for its highest ranking since late in the 2020 season. Texas and Penn State each slipped two spots.

Ohio State, Tennessee, Boise State, Indiana and Arizona State - all playoff teamsrounded out the top 10.

Arizona State's win over Iowa State in the Big 12 title game gave the Sun Devils their first 11-win season since 1996 and their first top-10 ranking since they were No. 7 following an 8-1 start in 2014.

The final AP Top 25 will be released following the national championship game Jan. 20

VONN 'REALLY FREAKING CLOSE'

Lindsey Vonn is still getting her ski equipment dialed in and getting used to going full speed again on her new titanium knee.

That's why all that the 40-year-old is reading into being more than two seconds behind in a pair of lower-level super-G races on Sunday is that she's right there. This after nearly six years away from ski racing and only an abbreviated prep period.

"I know it seems like I'm far away, but I'm actually really freaking close for only having run a few days of training after basically six years," Vonn said in an interview with The Associated Press after a series of lower-level downhill and super-G races over the weekend at Copper Mountain. "I honestly never thought I'd be back in this position."

Vonn isn't coming out of retirement as part of some sort of feel-good story. Her return is simply about proving something to herself

Oliver Bjorkstrand scored two goals to go along with two assists to help Philipp Grubauer and the Kraken beat the Rangers, 7-5, on Sunday afternoon at the Garden.

Eeli Tolvanen notched a goal and two assists for Seattle, which trailed, 3-1, early in the second period.

Brandon Tanev, Vince Dunn, Shane Wright and Yanni Gourde also scored. Grubauer stopped 32 shots.

K'Andre Miller and Vincent Trocheck each recorded a goal and an assist for the Rangers, who lost for the seventh time in nine games. Reilly Smith, Filip Chytil and Alexis Lafreniere also scored.

The Rangers traded captain Jacob Trouba to Anaheim on Friday, and then topped Pittsburgh, 4-2. Jonathan Quick stopped 15 shots for the Rangers while subbing for Igor Shesterkin, who was away from the team because his wife went into labor with their second child. Shesterkin's eight-year contract extension was announced Saturday.

Wright's seventh goal of the season gave Seattle a 6-3 lead 11:13 into the third period.

But the Rangers pulled within one on goals by Miller and Lafreniere.

Gourde's empty-netter at 18:14 helped close it out for the Kraken. The Rangers allowed six or more goals for the third time in their last eight home games.

Tolvanen's tying goal 88 seconds after Tanev cut Seattle's deficit to one energized the Kraken in the second period.

The Rangers fell to 7-6-1 at home with a third loss in their last five games at Madison Square Garden.

ISLANDERS 4, SENATORS 2

Ilya Sorokin stopped 29 shots to lift the Islanders over the Senators on Sunday night, one day after stopping 28 in a win stopping 28 in a win over the Hurricanes.

 In comparison,
 Ottawa's Anton
 Forsberg faced 12 shots.

Both teams were playing the back half of back-to-backs.

With the game tied, 2-2, Kyle Palmieri gave the Islanders the lead at 13:46 of the third with their second power-play goal of the game. Ottawa pressed hard for the equalizer, but Sorokin rose to the occasion and Bo Horvat added an empty-net goal to secure the win.

Adam Gaudette opened the scoring early in the first for his 13th of the season, setting a new career high.

Anders Lee came up big to tie the game. Palmieri picked up his 500th career point with an assist on the play.

AVALANCHE 4, DEVILS 0

Scott Wedgewood stopped 25 shots for his seventh career shutout, leading the Avalanche to victory over the Devils on Sunday night in Newark.

Ross Colton, Logan O'Connor, Artturi Lehkonen and Parker Kelly scored for the Avalanche (16-13-0). Casey Mittelstadt and Calvin de Haan recorded two assists apiece. Jake Allen stopped 19 shots for the Devils (18-10-2).

Wedgewood was acquired from the Predators on Nov. 29 in exchange for Justus Annunen and a sixth-round draft choice. He appeared in 23 games over parts of three seasons (2015-16, 2020-21 and 2021-22) with the Devils.

Colton, who scored in the first period, was skating in his second game since suffering a lower-body injury on Oct. 28 against Chicago. He had gotten off to a hot start for Colorado, scoring eight goals in the first 10 games of the season prior to the injury.

Lehkonen scored for the third time in Colorado's last four games.

Colorado earned its fourth shutout of the season. The Devils were blanked for the fifth time this season.
